STOP PRESS:

The Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Act 2009 makes provision for the purposes of promoting public involvement in relation to local authorities and other public authorities, about bodies representing the interests of tenants, local freedoms and honorary titles, and the procedures of local authorities and their powers relating to insurance and the audit of entities connected with them, to establish the Local Government Boundary Commission for England and to make provision relating to local government boundary and electoral change, about local and regional development, and to amend the law relating to construction contracts. The Act received the royal assent on 12 November 2009 and the following provisions came into force on that date: ss 25, 26, 62, 64, 68, 146-150, Sch 3. Sections 27-30, 32, 33, and 121-137 came into force on 12 January 2010 and the following provisions also come into force on that day: ss 114-117 (SI 2009/3318). The following provisions were brought into force on 25 November 2009: ss 69 (in part), 71, 84, 86, 87 (SI 2009/3087). The following provisions were brought into force on 17 December 2009: ss 88-113, 118-120 and Sch 6 (SI 2009/3318). Further provisions come into force on 1 April 2010: ss 23, 24, 31, 55-61, 63, 65-67, 69, 70, 72-83, 85, Schs 1, 2, 4, 5, 7 (in part) (SI 2009/3318). Part 1 (ss 1-30) Democracy and involvement

Chapter 1 (ss 1-9) Duties relating to promotion of democracy

Section 1 places a duty on principal local authorities to promote understanding of their functions and their democratic arrangements. By virtue of s 2, principal local authorities are under a duty to promote understanding among local people of public bodies which relate to the authority's area. A duty is placed on principal local authorities by s 3 to promote understanding among local people of courts boards, independent monitoring boards for prisons and immigration removal centres and Youth Offending Teams. Section 4 places a duty on principal local authorities to promote understanding among local people of lay justices. By virtue of s 5, ss 2-4 do not apply to principal local authorities if information has not been provided by the connected authorities, monitoring boards, courts boards, youth offending teams and, in the case of lay justices, the Lord Chancellor, after it has been requested of them. The appropriate national authority may produce guidance for principal local authorities on how to fulfil their duties: s 6. Section 7 deals with the Isles of Scilly. Section 8 specifies that any order made under Pt 1 Ch 1 is to be made by statutory instrument and is to be subject to negative resolution procedure. Section 9 deals with interpretation.

Chapter 2 (ss 10-22) Petitions to local authorities

Section 10 places duties on principal local authorities in relation to electronic petitions signed by those who live, work or study in local areas. Under s 11, principal local authorities are required to make, publicise and comply with a scheme for handling both paper and electronic petitions. Section 12 makes provision about the petitions to which a petition scheme must apply. By virtue of s 13, petition schemes are required to ensure that petitions are acknowledged in writing within a time specified in the scheme. Principal local authorities are required by s 14 to take one or more steps in response to petitions which meet the specified criteria and are therefore 'active' petitions. Section 15 gives an automatic right for the matter raised in a petition to be debated by the full council if more than a specified number of people have signed it. By virtue of s 16, certain senior officers of a principal local authority can be called to account at a public meeting. Under s 17, the petition organiser is given the power to ask an overview and scrutiny committee, or its equivalent in authorities not operating executive arrangements, to review the principal local authority's response to their petition, if the organiser is not satisfied with the steps taken by the authority under s 14. Section 18 sets out other issues which principal local authorities' schemes may include. The powers of the appropriate national authority to issue guidance in relation to the discharge of the petition function by principal authorities are set out by s 19. Section 20 provides that the appropriate national authority may by order make provision for the handling of petitions by any specified body. Section 21 provides that orders under Ch 2 are to be made by statutory instrument. Section 22 deals with interpretation.

Chapter 3 (ss 23, 24) Involvement in functions of public authorities

Section 23 places a duty on the authorities listed to involve representatives of interested persons in the exercise of their functions, where they consider that it is appropriate to do so. The Secretary of State may, by virtue of s 24, issue guidance on the discharge of the duties under s 23.

Chapter 4 (ss 25, 26) Housing

Section 25 makes provision for the Secretary of State to establish and give financial or other support to a body that will represent the interests, at national level, of housing tenants in England. Section 26 provides a power to the Secretary of State to nominate a body representing the interests of social housing tenants for the purposes of consultation in connection with certain functions carried out by the social housing regulator and the Secretary of State and set out in the Housing and Regeneration Act 2008.

Chapter 5 (ss 27-29) Local freedoms and honorary titles

The 2009 Act s 27 makes provision for a daughter of a freeman of a city or town to be admitted as a freeman where a son would have the right to be so admitted. By virtue of s 28, the laws relating to the admission of freeman are more easily amended. The power to confer the title of 'honorary freeman' is extended by s 29 to all principal councils, parish and community councils, and charter trustees in England.

Chapter 6 (s 30) Politically restricted posts

Section 30 removes the requirement imposed by the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 2 for local authorities to prepare and maintain a list of posts that exceed a specified salary, and which as a consequence mean that the post-holder is subject to political restrictions.

Part 2 (ss 31-54) Local authorities: governance and audit

Chapter 1 (ss 31-33) Governance

Section 31 requires local authorities, with the exception of district councils in areas where there is a county council, to designate one of their officers as a scrutiny officer to support the work of the authority's overview and scrutiny committee. By virtue of s 32, the scope of joint overview and scrutiny arrangements are broadened so that joint overview and scrutiny committees may be set up by any two or more local authorities, so that such committees may make reports and recommendations on any matter, other than excluded matter, and so that associated authorities may be required to provide any information to joint overview and scrutiny committees, other than that relating to crime and disorder matters, and not just that relevant to local improvement targets. Section 33 extends the legislative competence of the National Assembly for Wales to make Measures of the National Assembly for Wales.

Chapter 2 (ss 34, 35) Mutual insurance

Section 34 provides that a qualifying authority may become a member of a body corporate whose objects must be those specified and all of whose members are other qualifying bodies. Section 35 lists the qualifying authorities that are being provided with the power to become members of a mutual insurance body corporate.

Chapter 3 (ss 36-54) Audit of entities connected with local authorities

Section 36 provides that the relevant audit authority may appoint a person to carry out audit functions in relation to a local authority entity which meets certain qualifying criteria. By virtue of s 37, a local authority must notify the entity and the relevant audit authority if an entity meets, or ceases to meet, the qualifying conditions or ceases to be connected with the authority. Under s 38, the audit authority may appoint a person to carry out an audit of a local authority entity where the entity appears to the audit authority to meet the qualifying criteria. Where an appointed auditor dies, is dismissed, or is unable or unwilling to act, the audit authority may appoint a replacement auditor for that financial year: s 39. Section 40 provides that, unless the entity otherwise requests, the audit authority must not make an appointment if the entity appears to be exempt from statutory audit. Section 41 specifies who is eligible for appointment as an auditor. The terms of appointment for an auditor are set out by s 42. Where an audit authority appoints an auditor to an entity, s 43 provides that the entity may also appoint that same auditor as its statutory auditor under the Companies Act 2006 Pt 16 (ss 475-539) or the Friendly and Industrial and Provident Societies Act 1968 s 4. The 2009 Act s 44 applies when the entity does not wish to exercise the power in s 39 and instead chooses to appoint a different auditor as its statutory auditor, or where the entity exercises the power in s 39 but then terminates the appointment, so as to provide that the audit's authority's appointed auditor has the same powers as in the 2006 Act or the 1968 Act to enable the auditor to make a report to the company, partnership or society on the annual accounts. The 2009 Act ss 45-49 provide the powers for an auditor appointed under Ch 3 to make a report in the public interest. By virtue of s 50, a fee must be paid by the entity to the appointing audit authority when an auditor discharges any functions under ss 44-49. Section 51 sets out the power of the audit authority to request information relating to the accounts audited by the auditor and any other document or information relating to the entity, which would have been available to the auditor under the powers he had. By virtue of s 52, a company which is a subsidiary of a Passenger Transport Executive is to be regarded as connected with the Integrated Transport Authority for the areas for which the executive is established. Section 53 makes general provision in respect of regulations, and s 54 deals with interpretation.

Part 3 (ss 55-68) Local government boundary and electoral change

Section 55 establishes the Local Government Boundary Commission for England as a separate corporate body, and Sch 1 contains the detailed provisions for the constitution and administration of the new body. Section 56 provides that the Local Government Boundary Commission for England must from time to time conduct a review of electoral arrangements of each principal council in England and recommend whether a change should be made to the electoral arrangements for an area, and introduces Sch 2, which sets out the criteria that the Local Government Boundary Commission for England must have regard to when conducting electoral reviews. Under s 57, a power is provided for the Local Government Boundary Commission for England to conduct a review of the area of a principal council, at that council's request, with a view to making recommendations as to whether each electoral area in the area of the principal council should return only one member. The procedure which the Local Government Boundary Commission for England must follow when conducting electoral reviews under s 53 is set out by s 58. By virtue of s 59, the Local Government Boundary Commission for England is provided with the power to make an order to give effect to all or any of the recommendations which it makes following a review of electoral arrangements for a local government area. Various functions are transferred from the Electoral Commission and the Boundary Committee for England to the new Local Government Boundary Commission for England by s 60. Section 61 abolishes the Electoral Commission's duty to establish a Boundary Committee for England and repeals the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 ss 14, 15. The Electoral Commission is placed under a duty by the 2009 Act s 62 to produce one or more schemes for the transfer of property, rights and liabilities from the Electoral Commission to the Local Government Boundary Commission for England. Section 63 provides that anything done by the Boundary Committee for England or by the Electoral Commission, in relation to structural or boundary changes or electoral arrangements, may be treated as having been done by the new Local Government Boundary Commission for England. Section 64 introduces Sch 3, which makes modifications to the Local Government Act 1992. Under the 2009 Act s 65, the process set out for the review by the Boundary Committee for England of the boundaries of local government areas is amended to enable the new Local Government Boundary Commission for England to consider whether consequential changes should be made to electoral arrangements as part of the same review. Provisions which relate to the defunct Local Government Commission for England are repealed by s 66. Section 67 gives effect to Sch 4, which contains amendments consequential on provision made in Pt 3 and gives the Secretary of State a power by order to amend, repeal or revoke enactments for the purposes of making further consequential provisions in relation to any provisions within Pt 3. Section 68 deals with interpretation.

Part 4 (s 69) Local authority economic assessments

Section 69 requires principal local authorities to prepare an assessment of the economic conditions of their area.

Part 5 (ss 70-87) Regional strategy

Section 70 provides for a regional strategy in each region other than London, which must set out policies in relation to sustainable economic growth, development and the use of land within the region and can include different policies for different areas within the region. By virtue of s 71, the participating authorities in each region, other than London, must make a scheme for the establishment and operation of a body known as a 'Leaders' Board'. Under s 72, the regional development agency and local authorities' Leaders' Board for the region, are, jointly, the 'responsible regional authorities' referred to in Pt 5, and if there is not a Leaders' Board the regional development agency will act alone. In accordance with s 73, the bodies responsible for regional strategy are required to exercise their functions with the objective of contributing to the achievement of sustainable development and having regard to the desirability of achieving good design. Section 74 gives the responsible regional authorities a duty to keep the regional strategy and relevant matters under review and explains when a draft revision is to be prepared either of part or the whole of the strategy. The responsible regional authorities are required by s 75 to prepare, publish and comply with a statement setting out their policies for involving interested persons when preparing a draft revision of a regional strategy. Section 76 provides for the responsible regional authorities to arrange for an examination in public into the draft revision to be held by a person appointed by the Secretary of State. The matters that the responsible regional authorities must take into account when preparing a revision are set out by s 77. Once the responsible regional authorities have prepared and published a draft revision of the regional strategy and the sustainability appraisal report, s 78 requires them to submit these to the Secretary of State, who can then choose either to approve the draft revision as it stands or to modify it before approving it. Section 79 sets out the Secretary of State's reserve power to revise a regional strategy in whole or in part, where the responsible regional authorities fail to do so at the time specified in the regulations or directions. The Secretary of State's power to make regulations for procedural matters in connection with the revisions of regional strategies is set out by s 80. Section 81 imposes duties on the responsible regional authorities to implement and monitor the regional strategy. Under s 82, until a regional strategy is revised, the statutory development plan for an area will only consist of the policies that were previously in the regional spatial strategy. Section 83 requires regional development agencies to have regard to the regional strategy in exercising their functions. By virtue of s 84, the Secretary of State has the power to give guidance and directions in relation to the exercise of functions under Pt 5. Section 85, Sch 5 make consequential provision. Section 86 provides that regulations under Pt 5 are to be made by statutory instrument, and s 87 deals with interpretation.

Part 6 (ss 88-120) Economic prosperity boards and combined authorities

Section 88 provides that the Secretary of State can make an order establishing an Economic Prosperity Board ('EPB') for an area and specifies the conditions that need to be met for an area to be capable of designation as an EPB's area. Under s 89, the Secretary of State may by order make provision in relation to an EPB about the membership of the EPB, the voting powers of the members of the EPB, and the executive arrangements of the EPB. Section 90 sets out the provision which must be included in an order made under s 89 that deals with the number and appointment of members of an EPB. By virtue of s 91, the Secretary of State is allowed to make an order that provides for functions of a county council or district council to be exercisable by the EPB. The Secretary of State is allowed by s 92 to set out how the EPB will be funded. Under s 93, an EPB is required to keep a general fund whereby all receipts of the EPB must be carried to that fund and all liabilities falling to be discharged by the EPB must be discharged out of that fund. Section 94 provides that an existing EPB can pass a resolution to change its name. By virtue of s 95, the Secretary of State is allowed to make an order changing the boundary of an existing EPB's area. The Secretary of State is allowed to make an order to dissolve an EPB's area and abolish the EPB: s 96. Section 97 provides that any two or more of the specified authorities may review the effectiveness and efficiency of arrangements to promote economic development and regeneration within the geographical area covered by the review. Under s 98, if two or more of the councils that have conducted a review under s 97 conclude that the establishment of an EPB for an area would be likely to improve the exercise of statutory functions relating to economic development and regeneration and economic conditions within the area, then they have the power to prepare and publish a scheme for the establishment of an EPB for the area. In accordance with s 99, the Secretary of State may make an order establishing an EPB for an area if, having had regard to a scheme prepared and published under s 98, the Secretary of State considers that the establishment of an EPB for an area is likely to improve both the exercise of statutory functions relating to economic development and regeneration in the area and the economic conditions in the area. By virtue of s 100, one or more of the specified authorities is allowed to review an EPB matter. Section 101 provides that, if one or more of the authorities who have concluded a s 100 review conclude that the exercise of economic development and regeneration functions, or economic conditions, in an existing or proposed area of an EPB would be likely to be improved by the making of an order under any one or more of ss 89, 91, 92, 95 and 96, then those authorities have the power to prepare and publish a scheme proposing how this should be done. The requirements applying to the Secretary of State's power to make orders under ss 89, 91, 92, 95 and 96 in relation to an existing EPB are set out by s 102. By virtue of s 103, the Secretary of State can make an order establishing a combined authority for an area which meets certain conditions. The Secretary of State is allowed by s 104 to make an order about the constitutional arrangements and functions of an individual combined authority. By virtue of s 105, the Secretary of State may make in relation to a combined authority any provision that may be made in relation to an EPB under s 91. Section 106 allows the Secretary of State to make an order changing the boundary of the area of an existing combined authority. The Secretary of State is allowed by s 107 to make an order to dissolve a combined authority's area and abolish its combined authority. Under s 108, any two or more of the specified authorities may review the effectiveness and efficiency of transport, and of the arrangements to promote economic development and regeneration, within the geographical area covered by the review. If two or more of the authorities who have conducted a s 108 review conclude that the establishment of a combined authority for an area would be likely to improve the exercise of statutory functions relating to transport and economic development and regeneration, the effectiveness and efficiency of transport in the area, and the economic conditions in the area, by virtue of s 109 the authorities may prepare and publish a scheme for the establishment of a combined authority for the scheme area. Section 110 specifies that the Secretary of State may make an order establishing a combined authority for an area if, having regard to the prepared and published scheme, the Secretary of State considers that the establishment of a combined authority is likely to improve the exercise of statutory functions relating to transport and the effectiveness and efficiency of transport in the area as well as the exercise of statutory economic development and regeneration functions in the area and the economic conditions in the area. Under s 111, one or more of the authorities specified is allowed to review a 'combined matter'. By virtue of s 112, authorities are able to prepare a scheme if one or more of the authorities who have conducted a s 111 review conclude that the exercise of statutory transport or economic development and regeneration functions, the effectiveness and efficiency of transport, or the economic conditions in an existing or proposed area of a combined authority would be likely to be improved by the making of an order under any one or more of ss 104-107. The requirements applying to the Secretary of State's power to make orders under ss 104-107 in relation to an existing combined authority are set out by s 113. Section 114 provides that the Secretary of State may make incidental, consequential, transitional or supplementary provision in support of an order made under Pt 6. Under s 115, the Secretary of State may make provision by order for the transfer of property, rights and liabilities for the purpose of, or in consequence of, an order under Pt 6. By virtue of s 116, the Secretary of State is allowed, by order, to make provision in consequence of any provision made by Pt 6. Section 117 sets out the procedure for making orders under Pt 6. Under s 118, the Secretary of State can issue guidance about anything which could be done under or by virtue of Pt 6 by a specified authority. Section 119 introduces Sch 6, which makes a number of amendments to apply provisions of local government and transport law to EPB's and combined authorities. Section 120 deals with interpretation.

Part 7 (ss 121-137) Multi-area agreements

Section 121 defines a multi-area agreement, and s 122 defines 'local authority' for the purpose of Pt 7. A list of public bodies and persons that will be 'partner authorities' for the purpose of a multi-area agreement are set out by s 123. By virtue of s 124, any group of two or more local authorities may approach the Secretary of State and request that the Secretary of State direct a multi-area agreement to be prepared for their area and submitted to the Secretary of State. Section 125 provides for the Secretary of State, in response to a request made under s 124, to direct the responsible authority to prepare and submit a draft multi-area agreement. Section 126 places certain duties on the responsible authority and other local and partner authorities where a direction has been issued under s 125, following a request under s 124. Provision is made by s 127 for the Secretary of State to approve, require modifications to or reject a draft multi-area agreement that is submitted in accordance with a direction issued under s 125. Section 128 provides for a multi-area agreement that is prepared through procedures other than following a direction from the Secretary of State under s125 to be submitted with a request that the Secretary of State approve it. Under s 129, the Secretary of State is able to approve a multi-area agreement submitted under s 128. A duty is placed by s 130 on all local and partner authorities for the area covered by a multi-area agreement approved by the Secretary of State under ss 127 or 129 to have regard, when exercising their functions, to each improvement target in the agreement that relates to them. Section 131 defines who the responsible authority is and provides a mechanism for this to be changed by the local authorities to whom improvement targets in a multi-area agreement relate, with the agreement of the Secretary of State. A mechanism is provided by s 132 for a multi-area agreement that has been approved by the Secretary of State to be amended. Section 133 places equivalent duties on the responsible authority to consult and co-operate and have regard to guidance, and on other local and partner authorities to co-operate and have regard to guidance, when preparing a revision proposal as is placed on them when they are preparing a draft multi-area agreement by s 126. In accordance with s 134, the Secretary of State may approve or reject a revision proposal that is submitted by the responsible authority. A duty is placed on the responsible authority by s 135 to publish information about the multi-area agreement and any subsequent changes that are made to it through a revision proposal but leaves the decision as to what information is to be published and the manner of publication to the responsible authority. Under s 136, the Secretary of State is required to consult representatives of local government and, if appropriate, other people with an interest in multi-area agreements before issuing the guidance that responsible, local and partner authorities will have to have regard to in preparing agreements and revision proposals. Section 137 deals with interpretation.

Part 8 (ss 138-145) Construction contracts

Section 138 substitutes a new power allowing the Secretary of State and Welsh Ministers to disapply, by order, any or all of the provisions of the Housing Grants, Construction and Regeneration Act 1996 Pt 2 (ss 104-117) in relation to descriptions of construction contract specified in the relevant order. By virtue of the 2009 Act s 139, the original limitation of the 1996 Act Pt 2 to contracts which were in writing is removed, but it is prescribed that various matters must nonetheless be in writing. A provision to facilitate the correction of clerical or typographical errors in an adjudicator's decision is introduced by s 140. Section 141 provides that any contractual provision by the parties to a construction contract concerning the allocation between them of costs relating to an adjudication is ineffective unless certain conditions apply. Section 142 addresses the issue of making periodic payments under a construction contract conditional on obligations under another contract, and the issue of making the date a payment becomes due dependent on the giving of a notice by the payer of the sum the payer proposes to pay. Section 143 amends the original provisions of the 1996 Act relating to the notices which a payer gives of the sum which the payer proposes to pay and introduces provisions relating to the giving of notices by the payee. A statutory requirement to pay sums specified in such notices is introduced by the 2009 Act s 144. Section 145 amends the provisions relating to a contractor's right to stop working when the contractor has not been paid so as to put it beyond a doubt that a contractor may stop carrying out some, and not simply all, of the work in such a case.

Part 9 (ss 146-150) Final

Section 146 introduces Sch 7, which contains various repeals. Sections 147-150 deal with extent, commencement and the short title.

The remaining provisions come into force on a day or days to be appointed. For details of commencement, see the COMMENCEMENT OF STATUTES table in the Current Service Noter-up booklet.

Part 1 (ss 1-4) The Infrastructure Planning Commission

Section 1 creates the Infrastructure Planning Commission ('the Commission'), and gives effect to Sch 1, which describes the structure of the Commission, the process by which Commissioners are appointed, and their terms and conditions of employment. By virtue of s 2, the Commission must issue a code of conduct for its Commissioners, which should include a requirement for Commissioners to disclose all relevant interests, including financial information. The Commission is required under s 3 to establish a procedure for the disclosure and registration of financial and other interests of the Commissioners and arrange for a register of entries to be published. The Secretary of State may make regulations to allow the Commission to charge fees for the performance of any of its functions: s 4.

Part 2 (ss 5-13) National policy statements

Section 5 enables the Secretary of State to designate a national policy statement dealing with matters such as the criteria to be applied in deciding whether a location is suitable for a particular description of development. The Secretary of State may review all or part of a national policy statement when he considers it appropriate: s 6. Consultation and publicity requirements in relation to national policy statements are prescribed by ss 7-9. Where the Secretary of State is either designating or reviewing a national policy statement, by virtue of s 10 he must do so with the objective of contributing to sustainable development, which includes a duty to have regard to the desirability of mitigating, and adapting to, climate change, and achieving good design. Section 11 empowers the Secretary of State to suspend the operation of part or all of a national policy statement if he decides that, since the relevant part of the statement was issued or reviewed, there has been a significant and unanticipated change in circumstances. The Secretary of State is entitled to designate a statement as a national policy statement even if the statement was issued by the Secretary of State before the commencement of s 5: s 12. Under s 13, legal challenges in connection with national policy statements can be brought only by judicial review and only during specified six-week periods.

Part 3 (ss 14-30) Nationally significant infrastructure projects

Section 14 lists at the general level the categories of project that are nationally significant infrastructure projects for the purposes of the 2008 Act. The situations in which the following specific types of project constitute nationally significant infrastructure projects are also prescribed: (1) the construction or extension of a generating station (s 15); (2) the installation of an electric line above ground (s 16); (3) development relating to the underground storage of gas (s 17); (4) the construction or alteration of a facility for the import of liquid natural gas or other natural gas (ss 18, 19); (5) the construction of a pipe-line by a gas transporter licensed under the Gas Act 1986 (2008 Act s 20); (6) the construction of a pipe-line other than by a gas transporter (s 21); (7) highway-related development (s 22); (8) airport-related development (s 23); (9) the construction or alteration of harbour facilities (s 24); (10) the construction or alteration of a railway or a rail freight interchange (ss 25, 26); (11) the construction or alteration of a dam or reservoir or development relating to the transfer of water resources (ss 27, 28); (12) the construction or alteration of a waste water treatment plant (s 29); and (13) the construction or alteration of a hazardous waste facility (s 30).

Part 4 (ss 31-36) Requirement for development consent

Under s 31, development consent must be given for development which is, or forms part of, a nationally significant infrastructure project, and s 32 defines 'development' for this purpose. Where a project requires development consent, by virtue of s 33 it no longer requires certain other consents under existing consent regimes. Section 34 preserves the powers of Welsh Ministers to make orders under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3 in relation to the construction or extension of Welsh offshore generating stations. Under the 2008 Act s 35, the Secretary of State may direct that an application made to the relevant authority for a consent or authorisation under s 33 should be referred to the Commission, which must then treat it as an application for development consent. Section 36 gives effect to Sch 2, which makes amendments consequential on the development consent regime.

Part 5 (ss 37-54) Applications for orders granting development consent

Chapter 1 (ss 37-40) Applications

Where development consent is required under the new single consent regime, promoters of nationally significant infrastructure projects must submit an application to the Commission in the prescribed form: s 37. Section 38 allows the Secretary of State to prescribe model provisions that developers may use if required to prepare a draft order to accompany an application for an order granting development consent. Under s 39, the Commission has a duty to maintain a register of applications for orders granting development consent and to publish this register or make arrangements for its inspection by the public. The Secretary of State is authorised by s 40 to make regulations modifying or excluding certain statutory provisions in relation to applications made by the Crown for an order granting development consent.

Chapter 2 (ss 41-50) Pre-application procedure

Where a person proposes to make an application for an order granting development consent, he is required to consult certain local authorities, persons with rights over the land and other prescribed persons: ss 41-44. Under s 45, the applicant must give each consultee a deadline for responding to the consultation. Section 46 requires the applicant to give the Commission a copy of the consultation documents on or before commencing consultation. The applicant must also, by virtue of s 47, prepare and publish a statement setting out how he proposes to consult local people about the proposed application, and, by virtue of s 48, publicise the proposed application in the prescribed manner. Section 49 provides that the applicant must consider any relevant responses he has received to the consultation and publicity, and take these into account before submitting an actual application to the Commission. A power is given to the Commission and the Secretary of State by s 50 to give guidance on how to comply with the requirements of the pre-application procedures.

Chapter 3 (ss 51-54) Assistance for applicants and others

Under s 51, the Commission may give advice to an applicant, a potential applicant or others about applying for an order granting development consent or making representations about an application or proposed application. Section 52 provides that the Commission may authorise an applicant or proposed applicant to serve a notice on specified persons, requiring them to give to the applicant the names and addresses of persons who have an interest in the land to which the application relates. The Commission may authorise a person to enter a particular piece of land in order to survey or take levels in connection with various prescribed matters: s 53. Section 54 modifies the rights of entry in relation to Crown land.

Part 6 (ss 55-119) Deciding applications for orders granting development consent

Chapter 1 (ss 55-63) Handling of application by Commission

An application for an order granting development consent can be accepted by the Commission only if it complies with the requirements of s 37: s 55. Sections 56, 57 specify the persons who must be notified of an application for an order granting development consent that the Commission has accepted. By virtue of s 58, the applicant must certify to the Commission that he has complied with s 56. Where the Commission has accepted an application for an order granting development consent that includes a request for authorisation of the compulsory acquisition of land or an interest in or right over land, under s 59 the applicant must give the Commission names and other prescribed information in relation to persons with an interest in the land. Section 60 requires the Commission to notify relevant local authorities of the acceptance of an application for development consent and to invite them to submit a report giving details of the likely impact of the proposed development on their area. Where a Commissioner accepts an application for an order granting development consent, the chair must decide whether the application should be handled by a panel or by a single Commissioner: s 61. Section 62 provides that, where an application for an order granting development consent is being handled by a single Commissioner, the chair can decide that it should instead be handled by a panel. Under s 63, the chair has the power to delegate any of his functions under Pt 6 to one of the deputy chairs, subject to certain specified restrictions.

Chapter 2 (ss 64-77) The panel procedure

Special provisions apply when the Commission has accepted an application and the chair has decided that it should be handled by a panel: s 64. Provision is made for the appointment of the panel (s 65), for when a person ceases to be a member, or the lead member, of a panel (s 66), for when a panel member ceases to be a Commissioner (s 67), for additional appointments to be made to a panel where the panel has fewer than three members (s 68), and for the replacement of the lead member of a panel if the lead member ceases to hold that office (s 69). Under s 70, a panel that considers an application relating to land in Wales must include, if reasonably practicable, a Commissioner who was nominated for appointment as a Commissioner by the Welsh Ministers or any other Commissioner notified to the Commission by the Welsh Ministers as being a Commissioner who should be treated as a Welsh Commissioner nominated by them. If the chair of the Commission decides that an application that was being considered by a single Commissioner should instead be considered by a panel, the single Commissioner who has considered the case may by virtue of s 71 become a member of the panel. Section 72 provides that, if the panel ceases to have any members, a new panel must be constituted. The identity of the panel is not affected by changes to the membership of the panel or the lead member, or any vacancies: s 73. Section 74 sets out the panel's role in relation to applications, and s 75 provides that a decision of the panel requires the agreement of a majority of its members, with the lead member having the casting vote. Under s 76, during the examination of an application the panel may allocate part of the examination to any one or more of its members. The procedural powers of the panel may, unless the panel decides otherwise, be exercised by any one or more of the panel's members: s 77.

Chapter 3 (ss 78-85) The single-Commissioner procedure

Part 6 Ch 3 has effect where it has been decided that an application should be handled by a single Commissioner: s 78. In that situation, the chair or a deputy chair to the Commission must appoint a Commissioner to handle the application: s 79. Provision is made by s 80 for where a person ceases to be the single Commissioner. By virtue of s 81, a person can in certain circumstances continue to act as a single Commissioner although he is no longer a Commissioner. Section 82 provides that, when a person ceases to be a single Commissioner, a replacement Commissioner must be appointed. Under ss 83, 84, the single Commissioner is responsible for examining the application and making a report to the authority responsible for determining the application. At least five members of the Commission's Council must participate in any decision that requires majority agreement: s 85.

Chapter 4 (ss 86-102) Examination of applications under Chapter 2 or 3

Part 6 Ch 4 applies to the examination of an application by a panel or by a single Commissioner: s 86. Section 87 provides that it is for the examining authority to decide how to examine an application. Under s 88, the examining authority must make an initial assessment of the principal issues arising on an application, before holding a preliminary meeting with the applicant and any interested parties. Section 89 requires the examining authority, in the light of the discussion at the preliminary meeting, to make procedural decisions in respect of the examination of the application, and s 90 provides that the examining authority's examination of the application should take the form of the consideration of written representations subject to any requirements in ss 91-93 and to any decision of the examining authority that it should take a different form. The examining authority must arrange a hearing when it decides that it is necessary for its examination of a specific issue to receive oral representations, either to ensure the adequate examination of the issue or so that an interested party has a fair chance to put its case: s 91. Where an application for a development consent order includes a request for authorisation of compulsory acquisition of land or an interest in or right over land, under s 92 the examining authority must inform affected parties of a deadline by which they must notify the Commission that they require a compulsory acquisition hearing to take place. By virtue of s 93, the examining authority must also arrange an open floor hearing if at least one interested party informs the examining authority of a wish to be heard within the specified deadline. General provision with regard to hearings is made by s 94, and s 95 empowers the examining authority to exclude a person from a hearing if he behaves in a disruptive manner. Where a person has asked to make an oral representation at a hearing, but has not done so, he can make a written representation, which the examining authority must consider as part of its examination of an application: s 96. The Lord Chancellor or, in certain cases, the Secretary of State, may by virtue of s 97 make procedural rules for the examination of applications. Section 98 imposes a duty on the examining authority to complete its examination of an application within six months of the last day of the preliminary meeting held pursuant to s 88. The examining authority must inform each interested party once it has completed its examination of the application: s 99. Under s 100, the chair or a deputy chair of the Commission may, at the examining authority's request, appoint a suitably qualified assessor to help it examine an application. Section 101 allows the chair of the Commission to appoint a barrister, solicitor or advocate to provide legal advice and assistance to the examining authority. Section 102 deals with interpretation.

Chapter 5 (ss 103-107) Decisions on applications

The Secretary of State is required by s 103 to decide an application for an order granting development consent where he receives a report from the panel or a single Commissioner. Where a panel or the Commission's Council is responsible for deciding an application for an order granting development consent, it must have regard to various specified matters, including any relevant national policy statement and any local impact report submitted by a relevant local authority: s 104. Section 105 provides that, in deciding an application for an order granting development consent, the Secretary of State must have regard to certain prescribed matters. Under s 106, a person deciding an application for an order granting development consent may disregard representations that are vexatious or frivolous or relate to the merits of policy set out in a national policy statement or to compensation payable on the compulsory acquisition of land or of an interest in or right over land. Section 107 specifies that the decision-maker is under a duty to decide an application for a development consent order within a period of three months.

Chapter 6 (s 108) Suspension of decision-making process

By virtue of s 108, if the Secretary of State considers it necessary to review all or part of a relevant national policy statement before an application for an order granting development consent is decided, he may direct that the examination and decision of the application is suspended by the panel or Commission's Council until the review of the national policy statement has been completed.

Chapter 7 (ss 109-113) Intervention by Secretary of State

The various circumstances in which the Secretary of State may intervene and decide an application in place of the Commission are prescribed by ss 109-112. Section 113 details the consequences of the Secretary of State making an intervention, and gives effect to Sch 3, which makes provision in relation to the Secretary of State's function of examining an application.

Chapter 8 (ss 114-117) Grant or refusal

Section 114 provides that, at the conclusion of consideration of an application for an order granting development consent, the decision-maker must either make an order granting development consent or refuse development consent. An order may grant development consent not only for development for which consent is required but also for associated development (as defined): s 115. Under s 116, a statement of reasons for deciding to make an order granting development consent or to refuse development consent must be given to interested parties and published, and under s 117 certain formalities must be observed in relation to the order.

Chapter 9 (s 118) Legal challenges

Section 118 provides that specified decisions in connection with applications for development consent can be challenged only by way of judicial review.

Chapter 10 (s 119) Correction of errors

Section 119 gives effect to Sch 4, which describes the mechanisms by which the decision-maker can correct errors in decision documents relating to an application for an order granting development consent.

Part 7 (ss 120-159) Orders granting development consent

Chapter 1 (ss 120-152) Content of orders

Section 120, Sch 5 specify what may be included in an order granting development consent. Under s 121, the panel or Council must send to the Secretary of State a draft of any proposed order that affects the application of statutory provisions. The purpose for which an order granting development consent can authorise the compulsory acquisition of land are specified in s 122. The decision-maker can authorise the compulsory acquisition of land only if he is satisfied that one of various specified conditions is met: s 123. Section 124 empowers the Secretary of State to issue guidance about the authorisation of the compulsory acquisition of land in an order granting development consent. By virtue of s 125, the Compulsory Purchase Act 1965 Pt 1 (ss 1-32) applies with specified modifications to any order granting development consent that contains provisions on compulsory acquisition of land, unless the order specifies otherwise. The 2008 Act s 126 places restrictions on the provision that may be made about compensation in an order granting development consent that authorises the compulsory acquisition of land. The conditions that must be satisfied for an order granting development consent to authorise the compulsory purchase of land which a statutory undertaker has acquired for the purpose of its undertaking in circumstances where a representation has been made about the application for the order and that representation is not withdrawn are contained in s 127. Section 128 details the circumstances in which an order granting development consent that authorises the compulsory purchase of land belonging to a local authority or statutory undertakers is to be subject to the special parliamentary procedure. Under s 129, the procedure does not apply where the person who would acquire the land is one of certain specified public bodies. In certain circumstances, an order granting development consent that authorises the compulsory purchase of land held inalienably by the National Trust is subject to the special parliamentary procedure: s 130. By virtue of s 131, the special parliamentary procedure also applies in relation to an order granting development consent that authorises the compulsory purchase of land forming part of a common, open space or fuel or field garden allotment, where the acquisition does not involve the acquisition of a new right over that land. An order granting development consent that authorises the compulsory acquisition of a new right over land forming part of a common, open space or fuel or field garden allotment is also subject to the special parliamentary procedure unless the Secretary of State is satisfied of certain facts: s 132. Section 133 modifies some of the usual procedures where an order granting development consent authorises the development of underground gas storage facilities, and authorises the compulsory acquisition of rights to store gas underground or certain other rights over land. Under s 134, a person who has been authorised to acquire land compulsorily by an order granting development consent is required to serve a notice about this on persons with certain interests in that land. An order granting development consent can authorise the compulsory purchase of an interest in Crown land only if the interest is for the time being held otherwise than by or on behalf of the Crown and the appropriate Crown authority consents to the acquisition: s 135. By virtue of s 136, no order granting development consent can be made that extinguishes any public right of way over land unless the authority making it is satisfied that an alternative right of way has been or will be provided, or that such an alternative right of way is not required. An order granting development consent may provide for the acquisition of land and authorise the extinguishment or diversion of a public right of way for non-vehicular traffic over land on which a statutory undertaker has erected apparatus or where electronic communications apparatus is kept installed only if the relevant undertaker or operator of the network has given its consent: s 137. Section 138 makes provision for orders granting development consent that authorise the acquisition of land on, under or over which a statutory undertaker has erected apparatus or where electronic communications apparatus is kept installed. Under s 139, an order granting development consent cannot include provisions that exclude or modify the application of a provision of, or made under, the Commons Act 2006, or authorise the suspension of, or extinguishment or interference with, registered rights of common. An order granting development consent that authorises the operation of a generating station can, by virtue of the 2008 Act s 140, be made only if the development to which the order relates is or includes the construction or extension of the generating station. Section 141 provides that an order granting development consent may authorise overhead electric lines to be kept installed only if the development to which the order relates is or includes the installation of such lines. An order granting development consent that authorises the use of underground gas storage facilities can be made only if the order authorises the development of such facilities: s 142. Under s 143, an order granting development consent that authorises the diversion of a navigable watercourse can be made only if the new length of watercourse is conveniently navigable by vessels of a kind accustomed to using that part of the watercourse. Section 144 provides that an order granting development consent may authorise the charging of tolls in relation to a highway only if a request for such provision was included in the application for the order. The circumstances in which an order granting development consent may provide for the creation of a harbour authority, the modification of the powers or duties of an existing harbour authority or the transfer of property, rights or liabilities from one harbour authority to another are set out in s 145. Where an order granting development consent authorises the discharge of water into inland waters or underground strata, the person to whom the order is granted does not acquire the power to take water or require discharges to be made from the source of water mentioned in the order: s 146. Under s 147, where an order granting development consent includes certain prescribed provisions in relation to Green Belt land, the panel, the Council or the Secretary of State, as the case may be, must notify the relevant local authorities of the provision made by the order. An order granting development consent may deem a consent under the Coast Protection Act 1949 s 34 to have been given in relation to operations in specified areas: 2008 Act s 148. Section 149 provides that an order granting development consent may deem a licence under the Food and Environment Protection Act 1985 Pt 2 (ss 5-15) to have been issued for operations in specified areas. Under the 2008 Act s 150, an order granting development consent may include provision removing a requirement for a prescribed consent or authorisation to be granted only if the relevant body consents. Section 151 prevents an order granting development consent from excluding or modifying liability under any of the statutory regimes specified. By virtue of s 152, a right to compensation in cases where, as a result of s 158 or the terms of a development consent order, a person would not be able to succeed in a claim for nuisance in respect of works authorised by a development consent order.

Chapter 2 (s 153) Changes to, and revocation of, orders

Section 153 gives effect to Sch 6, which describes the mechanisms by which subsequent modifications or revocations can be made to orders granting development consent.

Chapter 3 (ss 154-159) General

After a development consent order is granted, the development must begin before the end of the period prescribed by the Secretary of State or such other period as is specified in the order: s 154. By virtue of s 155, development is taken to begin as soon as any material operation comprised in or carried out for the purposes of the development begins to be carried out. Section 156 provides that, while a development consent order generally has effect for the benefit of the land mentioned in the order and all those for the time being interested in it, it is possible for the order to make provision to the contrary. Where an order granting development consent grants consent for the erection, extension, alteration or re-erection of a building, the order may specify the purposes for which the building may be used: s 157. Where nuisance proceedings arise out of the carrying out of a development for which consent is granted by an order granting development consent, a defence of statutory authority is provided for by s 158. Section 159 defines 'land' for the purposes of Pt 7.

Part 8 (ss 160-173) Enforcement

A person commits an offence if he carries out development for which development consent is required without such consent (s 160), carries out development in breach of the terms of an order granting development consent or fails to comply with the terms of such a consent without reasonable excuse (s 161). The time limits for bringing charges in relation to the offences created by ss 160, 161 are prescribed by s 162. Local planning authorities and justices of the peace are given the power under ss 163, 164 to authorise a person to enter land if he has reasonable grounds to suspect an offence is being or has been committed under s 160 or s 161. By virtue of s 165, a person so authorised must produce evidence, if requested, of the authority and state the purpose for entry before entering the land. The rights of entry do not apply to Crown land: s 166. Section 167 enables the relevant local planning authority to serve an information notice on the owner or occupier of land or anyone carrying out work on land or using it for any purpose. A person commits an offence contrary to s 168 if, without reasonable excuse, he fails to comply with any requirement of an information notice within a period of 21 days beginning on the day the notice is served. Where a person has been found guilty of an offence under s 160, the relevant local planning authority may serve a notice requiring the person to remove the unauthorised development and return the land to its previous condition: s 169. Under s 170, where steps have not been taken to comply with a notice of unauthorised development within the stipulated period for compliance, the relevant local planning authority may enter the land and carry out the works required in the notice and recover any expenses reasonably incurred in doing so from the owner of the land. Section 171 authorises the relevant local planning authority to apply to the county court or the High Court for an injunction where it considers it necessary or expedient to prevent an actual or anticipated offence under s 160 or s 161. The application of the enforcement provisions to the Isles of Scilly is dealt with in s 172. Section 173 defines 'relevant local planning authority' for the purposes of Pt 8.

Part 9 (ss 174-201) Changes to existing planning regimes

Chapter 1 (ss 174-178) Changes related to development consent regime

Section 174 enables the promoter of a nationally significant infrastructure project to enter into agreements with local authorities in the same way as a developer seeking planning permission under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990. The 2008 Act s 175 amends the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 to allow owner-occupiers adversely affected by a nationally significant infrastructure project to have the benefit of the existing statutory provisions relating to blight, and the 2008 Act s 176 makes equivalent provision with regard to Scotland. Section 177 amends the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 304A(1) to ensure that the Secretary of State may make grants for advice and assistance in connection with applications for development consent under the 2008 Act. Section 178 deals with Scotland.

Chapter 2 (s 179-201) Other changes to existing planning regimes

Sections 179-185 amend the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004. By virtue of the 2008 Act s 179, a regional planning body may enter into an agreement with the regional development agency for its region regarding the delegation of any of the body's functions. Section 180 makes provision relating to supplementary planning documents and statements of community involvement. Regional spatial strategies and development plan documents must include policies on climate change: ss 181, 182. Under s 183, persons or bodies exercising functions in relation to development plans have a duty to have regard to the desirability of achieving good design. The requirement for the Secretary of State or an inspector to obtain the consent in writing of the applicant and, if different, the owner of the land before he may correct an error in a decision document is removed by s 184. Section 185 provides that, where certain development-related strategies, plans and documents are successfully challenged in the High Court, the judge can give directions as to the steps required for the strategy, plan or document to be accepted. By virtue of s 186, certain local planning authorities in Wales can complete unitary development plans under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 before embarking on the local development plans required by the 2004 Act. The 2008 Act s 187 gives effect to Sch 7, which makes amendments in relation to the power to decline to determine applications. Sections 188-192 amend the Town and Country Planning Act 1990. The restriction under which local development orders can be made only to implement a policy in a development plan document or a local development plan is removed by the 2008 Act s 188. Under s 189, where planning permission of a prescribed description granted by a development order or local development order is withdrawn by the issue of directions under powers conferred by that order, compensation is payable only if an application for planning permission for development formerly permitted by that order is made within 12 months of the directions taking effect. Local authorities are empowered by s 190 to make non-material changes to planning permissions. Legal proceedings challenging decisions made in connection with applications for major infrastructure projects must be brought within six weeks of the decision: s 191. Section 192, Sch 8 provide for the transfer of provisions from tree preservation orders into regulations, and s 193 makes transitional provision in regard to tree preservation orders. Section 194 gives effect to Sch 9, which amends the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 by authorising a local authority to override easements and other rights restricting the use of land which it has acquired or appropriated for planning purposes. Under the 2008 Act s 195, the joint determination of certain planning applications and appeals by the Secretary of State and the appropriate minister is disapplied in certain prescribed circumstances. Section 196 requires the Secretary of State to determine the procedure by which certain proceedings under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 and the Planning (Hazardous Substances) Act 1990 should be considered, and gives effect to the 2008 Act Sch 10, which makes amendments consequential on the new duty. Section 197 gives effect to Sch 11, which amends various legislation to provide for notices of appeal to be accompanied by prescribed information. Sections 198-201 amend the Town and Country Planning Act 1990. By virtue of the 2008 Act s 198, regulations may be made for the transfer to inspectors of appeals under the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 in respect of old mining permissions for development authorised under interim development orders made between 1943 and 1948. Provision may be made for the whole of the fee payable when an applicant appeals under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 177(5) against an enforcement notice to be paid to either the local planning authority, the appropriate authority, or both the local planning authority and the appropriate authority: 2008 Act s 199. Under s 200, the Secretary of State is entitled to make provision for the payment of a fee for appeals made under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 and the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990. The 2008 Act s 201 amends the definition of 'local authority' in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 to include the London Fire and Emergency Planning Authority.

Part 10 (ss 202-204) Wales

Section 202 amends the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 5 to enable the National Assembly for Wales to pass measures relating to plans of the Welsh Ministers and local planning authorities concerning the development and use of land, subject to an exception regarding the status of such plans. The Welsh Ministers are empowered under the 2008 Act s 203 to make an order giving effect in Wales to certain reforms to the land use planning system provided for in Pt 9 which would otherwise have effect only in England. Transitional provision concerning blighted land is made in relation to Wales by s 204.

Part 11 (ss 205-225) Community infrastructure levy

Section 205 authorises the Secretary of State to establish a community infrastructure levy with the purpose of ensuring that costs incurred in providing infrastructure to support the development of an area can be funded wholly or mainly by owners or developers of land. Under s 206, charging authorities (as defined) can charge a levy in respect of development within their respective areas. Regulations may provide that a joint committee established under the 2004 Act s 29, where it includes a charging authority, is to exercise specified functions in relation to the area of the committee on behalf of the charging authority: 2008 Act s 207. Provision for how liability to pay a levy arises is made in s 208, and s 209 defines various terms used in s 208. By virtue of s 210, charities may be entirely or partially exempt from the levy. Section 211 requires a charging authority that proposes to charge a levy to issue a charging schedule setting out the rates or other criteria by reference to which the amount is to be calculated. Before a charging schedule is approved, a draft of it must have been examined by a person appointed for that purpose by the charging authority: s 212. The circumstances in which a charging authority may approve a charging schedule are prescribed by s 213. Under s 214, an approved charging schedule does not take effect until it has been published. Section 215 makes provision for appeals in relation to the calculation of the levy due. Regulations concerning the levy must require charging authorities to apply it to funding infrastructure (s 216), must include provision about the collection of the levy (s 217), and must include provision for enforcement (s 218). Under s 219, such regulations may also require a charging or other public authority to pay compensation for loss and damage caused by enforcement action that has been improperly taken by them, and under s 220 they may also make provision about the procedures to be followed in connection with the levy. Section 221 empowers the Secretary of State to give guidance on any matter connected with the levy. Various supplementary powers in relation to the making of regulations regarding the levy are conferred by s 222. Under s 223, regulations dealing with the levy may include provision controlling the use of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106, which relates to planning obligations, and the Highways Act 1980 s 278, which relates to agreements with highways authorities for highways works. The 2008 Act ss 224, 225 make various amendments and repeals consequential on the establishment of the levy.

Part 12 (ss 226-242) Final provisions

Subject to certain specified exceptions, the 2008 Act applies to the Crown: s 226. 'Crown land' and 'the appropriate Crown authority' are defined by s 227. By virtue of s 228, offences in the 2008 Act do not apply to the Crown. Sections 229-231 make provision concerning the service of notices and other documents. General provision for orders, regulations and directions under the 2008 Act is made by ss 232, 233. Sections 234, 235 deal with interpretation. Schedule 12, which is given effect by s 236, makes various modifications to the 2008 Act in its application to Scotland. An order-making power is conferred on the Secretary of State by s 237. Section 238 gives effect to Sch 13, which makes various repeals. Section 239 makes financial provision, s 240 deals extent, s 241 makes provision concerning commencement and s 242 specifies the short title.

(i) Introduction

1. The planning system.

The planning system in England and Wales is regulated by statute and by subordinate instruments made both under the relevant domestic legislation and in order to give effect to European Community obligations¹. It is a plan-led system which operates on a national, regional and local level². National policies are formulated by the Secretary of State³ or, in relation to Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales⁴ and published in policy statements, guidance notes, departmental or Assembly circulars and Parliamentary or Assembly statements⁵.

In England, under the arrangements introduced by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004⁶, regional spatial strategies are prepared by regional planning bodies⁷, except in relation to Greater London, where the Mayor of London is responsible for preparing the spatial development strategy⁸. At local level, local planning authorities⁹ other than county councils in England must prepare a local development framework comprising a folder of documents for delivering the spatial or minerals planning strategy for the area; this includes a local development scheme¹⁰, local development documents¹¹ and a statement of community involvement¹². In Wales, the Assembly prepares the Wales Spatial Plan¹³ and local planning authorities must prepare a local development plan¹⁴. In practice, however, the unitary development plans prepared for areas of England and Wales under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹⁵ and the structure and local plans also prepared under that Act¹⁶ continue to provide the framework for local development¹⁷.

An important objective of the planning system is the achievement of sustainable development¹⁸.

The planning system does not exist to protect the private interests of one person against the activities of another, although private interests may coincide with the public interest in some cases. The basic question is not whether owners and occupiers of neighbouring properties would experience financial or other loss from a particular development, but whether the proposal would unacceptably affect amenities and the existing use of land and buildings which ought to be protected in the public interest¹⁹.

(ii) Domestic Legislation

2. The planning Acts.

There are four principal consolidating Acts relating to town and country planning legislation ('the planning Acts'):

- 1 (1) the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 ('the principal Act')¹;
- 2 (2) the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 ('the listed buildings Act')²;

- 3 (3) the Planning (Hazardous Substances) Act 1990 ('the hazardous substances Act')³; and
- 4 (4) the Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990⁴.

The substitution of the consolidating Acts⁵ for the repealed enactments does not affect the continuity of the law⁶; and anything done or having effect as if done under or for the purposes of a provision of the repealed enactments has effect, if it could have been done under or for the purposes of the corresponding provision of the consolidating Acts, as if done under or for the purposes of that corresponding provision⁷. Any reference, whether express or implied, in the consolidating Acts or any other enactment, instrument or document to a provision of the consolidating acts is to be construed, so far as the context permits, as including, in relation to the times, circumstances and purposes in relation to which the corresponding provision of the repealed enactments has effect, a reference to that corresponding provision⁸; and any reference, whether express or implied, in any enactment, instrument or document to a provision of the repealed enactments is to be construed, so far as is required for continuing its effect, as including a reference to the corresponding provision of the consolidating Acts⁹.

The provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, and any restrictions or powers imposed or conferred by it in relation to land¹⁰, apply and may be exercised in relation to any land notwithstanding that provision is made by any enactment¹¹ in force on 6 August 1947¹², or by any specified local Act¹³, for authorising or regulating any development¹⁴ of the land¹⁵.

The planning Acts have been significantly amended and supplemented by subsequent legislation, in particular by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991¹⁶, the Environment Act 1995¹⁷ and the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004¹⁸.

1 Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 s 91(1); Planning (Hazardous Substances) Act 1990 s 39(1); Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990 s 1(1); Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 117(5). As to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 see PARA 3 et seq post. The Town and Country Planning Act 1990 extends to England and Wales only: s 337(3). That Act also applies, however, to the Isles of Scilly subject to such exceptions, adaptations and modifications as the Secretary of State may by order direct: s 319(1) (s 319(1)-(3) substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 32, Sch 7 paras 8, 49). Such an order may in particular provide for the exercise by the Council of the Isles of Scilly of any functions exercisable by a local planning authority or mineral planning authority: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 319(2) (as so substituted). Before making such an order, the Secretary of State must consult with that Council: s 319(3) (as so substituted). As to the exercise of this power see the Town and Country Planning (Isles of Scilly) Order 2005, SI 2005/2085, arts 2-4; for transitional provisions see art 5(2), (3); as to the Council of the Isles of Scilly see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 36; as to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 post; and as to the making of orders generally see PARA 3 post.

For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'functions' includes powers and duties; 'local planning authority' is to be construed in accordance with the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt I (ss 1-9) (as amended) (see PARAS 28-36 post); and 'mineral planning authority' has the meaning given in s 1(4) (see PARA 29 post): s 336(1). It is unlawful for a planning authority to discriminate on racial grounds against a person in carrying out its planning functions: see the Race Relations Act 1976 s 19A (as added); and DISCRIMINATION vol 13 (2007 Reissue) PARA 468. See also the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 s 21B (as prospectively added) (unlawful for a public authority to discriminate against a disabled person in carrying out its functions); and DISCRIMINATION vol 13 (2007 Reissue) PARA 593.

As to what constitutes consultation see Fletcher v Minister of Town and Country Planning [1947] 2 All ER 496; Rollo v Minister of Town and Country Planning [1948] 1 All ER 13, CA; Agricultural, Horticultural and Forestry Industry Training Board v Aylesbury Mushrooms Ltd [1972] 1 All ER 280, [1972] 1 WLR 190; R v Secretary of State for Social Services, ex p Association of Metropolitan Authorities [1986] 1 All ER 164, [1986] 1 WLR 1. As to statutory consultees see PARA 70 post.

2 Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 117(6). As to the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 see PARA 1072 et seq post. The Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 extends to England and Wales only: s 94(3). After consultation with the Council of the Isles of Scilly, the Secretary of State may, however, by order provide for the application to those Isles of specified provisions of that Act as if those Isles were a separate county: s 92(1). As to the specified provisions see s 92(2) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 ss 25, 84(6), Sch 3 Pt II para 27, Sch 19 Pt I; and by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 120, Sch 9). He may also, after the like consultation, by order provide for the application to those Isles of certain other specified provisions of the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 as if those Isles were a separate county or district: see s 92(3). Any order under s 92 (as amended) may provide for the application of provisions to the Isles subject to such modifications as may be specified in the order: s 92(4). In exercise of the power so conferred the Secretary of State made the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) (Isles of Scilly) Order 1990, SI 1990/2237, which came into force on 3 December 1990: art 1(1).

3 Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 117(7). As to the Planning (Hazardous Substances) Act 1990 see PARA 1212 et seq post. The Planning (Hazardous Substances) Act 1990 extends to England and Wales only: s 41(4). In relation to land in the Isles of Scilly, however, the provisions of that Act, and any other provisions of the planning Acts in so far as they apply or have effect for the purposes of those provisions, have effect as if those Isles were a district and the Council of the Isles were the council of that district: Planning (Hazardous Substances) Act 1990 s 35. For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'land' has the same meaning as in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 (see note 10 infra): Planning (Hazardous Substances) Act 1990 s 39(1), (2).

4 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1); Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 s 91(2); Planning (Hazardous Substances) Act 1990 s 39(2); Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 117(4).

5 For these purposes, 'the consolidating Acts' means the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 and the Planning (Hazardous Substances) Act 1990 and, so far as it reproduces the effect of the repealed enactments, the Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990: s 1(1). 'The repealed enactments' means the enactments repealed by the Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990: s 1(1). For these purposes, 'enactment' has the same meaning as in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 (see note 11 infra): Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990 s 1(1), (2).

7 Ibid s 2(2).

8 Ibid s 2(3).

9 Ibid s 2(4).

10 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'land' means any corporeal hereditament, including a building and, in relation to the acquisition of land under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt IX (ss 226-246) (as amended) (see PARA 934 et seq post), includes any interest in or right over land; 'building' includes any structure or erection, and any part of a building, as so defined, but does not include plant or machinery comprised in a building; and 'erection', in relation to buildings as so defined, includes extension, alteration and re-erection: s 336(1).

'Erection' refers to a structure or erection which can be said to form part of the realty and to change the physical character of the land, but there is no one test: Cheshire County Council v Woodward [1962] 2 QB 126, [1962] 1 All ER 517, DC. Possible criteria were indicated in Barvis Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment (1971) 22 P & CR 710 at 716, DC, per Bridge J: (1) a building or structure is something which has either been in fact, or normally would be, built or constructed on the land as opposed to being brought on to it ready made; (2) it will have some degree of permanence; (3) whether the object is or is not physically attached to the land is relevant but not conclusive; and (4) the fact that a thing has a limited degree of motion does not necessarily prevent its being a structure or erection. A model railway and model buildings were held to be a structure or erection in Buckingham County Council v Callingham [1952] 2 QB 515, [1952] 1 All ER 1166, CA. See also Cooper v Bailey (1956) 6 P & CR 261, DC (concrete kerb held to be part of the building or structure of the garage); James v Brecon County Council (1963) 15 P & CR 20, DC (swing-boats held not to be a building).

In relation to the meaning of 'building', incorporation in the realty is but one factor and is not determinative either way, the degree of permanence is a highly material factor and size and composition by components are significant factors: R v Swansea County Council, ex p Elitestone Ltd (1993) 66 P & CR 422. Mobile caravans should not be treated as 'buildings' as of right: Measor v Secretary of State for the Environment [1999] JPL 182.

11 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'enactment' includes an enactment in any local or private Act of Parliament, and an order, rule, regulation, byelaw or scheme made under an Act of Parliament: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1).

12 Ie the date of the passing of the Town and Country Planning Act 1947.

13 Ie any local Act passed at any time during the session of Parliament during the regnal years 10 & 11 Geo 6.

14 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'development' has the meaning given in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55 (as amended) (see PARA 217 post); and 'develop' is to be construed accordingly: s 336(1).

15 Ibid s 335. The land referred to must be the particular piece of land over which it is sought to exercise powers under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 and not other land to which the prior enactment also relates: Harlow v Minister of Transport and Rugby Portland Cement Co Ltd [1951] 2 KB 98 at 108, [1950] 2 All ER 1005 at 1011, CA.

16 The Planning and Compensation Act 1991 reformed and streamlined the previous development plan system in accordance with the proposals set out in The Future of Development Plans (Cm 569, January 1989) as modified by the government decision announced in September 1990 to retain county structure plans. Other changes introduced by that Act include:

- 1 (1) the amendment of the definition of 'development', in particular so as to include the demolition of certain buildings (see PARA 218 post) and development of land for the purposes of fish farming (see PARA 219 post);
- 2 (2) new arrangements relating to publicity for planning applications (see PARA 468 post);
- 3 (3) a new power to make regulations requiring environmental assessment of proposed developments (see PARA 487 post);
- 4 (4) the introduction of a power to grant planning permission retrospectively (see PARA 525 post);
- 5 (5) new provisions regarding planning obligations (previously referred to as 'section 106 agreements') (see PARAS 244-249 post);
- 6 (6) new arrangements for compensation in respect of mineral working (see PARA 925 post);
- 7 (7) new provisions relating to enforcement which implement certain recommendations of the Carnwath Report (Enforcing Planning Control (HMSO, February 1989));
- 8 (8) provisions relating to certain old mining permissions (see PARA 718 et seq post).

Heads (1)-(8) supra do not purport to be an exhaustive list.

17 The Environment Act 1995 made a number of amendments to the planning Acts relating to National Parks: see eg the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 147A (added by the Environment Act 1995 s 67(5)); and PARA 966 post. Schedules 13, 14 (as amended) contain provisions relating to certain mineral planning permissions: see PARA 726 et seq post.

18 As to the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 see PARA 4 post.

2-4 The planning Acts ... The Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004

Certain persons or indorsements mentioned in these paragraphs are specified for the purposes of Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 37, Schs 5, 6 (meaning of 'regulator' for the purposes of imposing civil sanctions): see ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) PARA 196A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/1. INTRODUCTION/(1) LEGISLATIVE FRAMEWORK/(ii) Domestic Legislation/3. Regulations and orders under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990.

3. Regulations and orders under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990.

The Secretary of State¹ or, in certain cases, the National Assembly for Wales², may make regulations under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 for:

- 5 (1) prescribing the form of any notice, order or other document authorised or required by that Act to be served, made or issued by any local authority³ or National Park authority⁴;
- 6 (2) any purpose for which regulations are authorised or required to be made under that Act, other than a purpose for which regulations are authorised or required to be made by another minister⁵.

Regulations may make different provision for different purposes⁶. Any power so conferred to make regulations is exercisable by statutory instrument⁷; and any statutory instrument containing regulations so made is, subject to the specified exceptions⁸ and if made by the Secretary of State, subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament⁹.

The power to make development orders¹⁰ and other specified orders¹¹ is exercisable by statutory instrument¹².

Any statutory instrument:

- 7 (a) which contains an order relating to joint planning boards¹³ which has been made after a relevant local inquiry has been held¹⁴; or
- 8 (b) which contains a development order or other specified order¹⁵, is, if made by the Secretary of State, subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament¹⁶. Where, however, a development order makes provision for excluding or modifying any enactment¹⁷ contained in a public general Act¹⁸, the order does not have effect¹⁹ until that provision is approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament²⁰.

Any power²¹ so to make an order includes²² power to vary or revoke any such order by a subsequent order²³.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 post.

2 As to the transfer of functions under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 333 (as amended), so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, to the Assembly see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1 (as amended); and as to the Assembly see PARA 20 post.

3 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'local authority' means, except in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 252 (as amended) (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 798 note 9) and subject to s 336(10) (as amended) (see infra) and the Environment Act 1995 s 71(7) (see note 4 infra): (1) a billing authority or a precepting authority, as defined in the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 69 (as amended) (see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARAS 9, 229) or the Metropolitan Police Authority; (2) a fire and rescue authority in Wales constituted by a scheme under the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004 s 2 or a scheme to which s 4 applies (see FIRE SERVICES); (3) a levying body within the meaning of the Local Government Finance Act 1988 s 74 (as amended) (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 29(1) (Reissue) PARA 530); (4) a body as regards which s 75 (as amended) applies (special levies: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 29(1) (Reissue) PARA 530); and includes any joint board or joint committee if all the constituent authorities are local authorities within heads (1), (3) or (4) supra: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1) (amended by the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 117(1), Sch 13 para 91; the Police and Magistrates' Courts Act 1994 s 93, Sch 9 Pt I; the Environment Act 1995 s 78, Sch 10 para 32(13); the Greater London Authority Act 1999 ss 325, 423, Sch 27 para 66, Sch 34 Pt VII; the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004 s 53(1), Sch 1 para 72).

In the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 90 (as amended) (see PARA 238 post), Pt VI Ch I (ss 137-148 (as amended): see PARA 966 et seq post) and s 330 (as amended) (see PARA 53 post), 'local authority', in relation to land in the Broads, includes the Broads Authority: s 336(10) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 32, Sch 7 paras 8, 52(4)). Except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'the Broads' has the same meaning as in the Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988 (see WATER AND WATERWAYS vol 101 (2009) PARA 735): Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1). As to the service of notices see PARA 54 post.

4 As to National Park authorities see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 526 et seq. A National Park authority is not by virtue of the Environment Act 1995 s 71 (National Park authorities to be levying bodies: see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 652) a local authority within the meaning of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990: Environment Act 1995 s 71(7).

5 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 333(1). For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'minister' means any Minister of the Crown or other government department (s 336(1)); and 'government department' includes any Minister of the Crown (s 336(1)).

4. The Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004.

The Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 received royal assent on 13 May 2004. With specified exceptions¹, the provisions of the Act come into force on such day as the Secretary of State² may by order appoint³; but he must not make an order relating to certain specified provisions⁴ unless he first consults the National Assembly for Wales⁵. Part 6 of the Act⁶ comes into force in accordance with provision made by the Assembly by order⁷. Several commencement orders were made in 2004 and 2005 but the Act was still not fully in force at the date at which this title states the law⁸. The 2004 Act does not replace, but rather amends and supplements, the planning Acts⁹.

The provisions of the 2004 Act introduce powers which allow for the reform and speeding up of the plans system¹⁰ and an increase in the predictability of planning decisions¹¹, the speeding up of the handling of major infrastructure projects¹² and the need for simplified planning zones to be identified in the strategic plan for a region or in relation to Wales¹³. The Act also provides for a number of reforms to make the handling of planning applications by both central government and local authorities quicker and more efficient¹⁴. There are also provisions to make the planning Acts bind the Crown, fulfilling a long-standing policy commitment to end the Crown's immunity from the planning system¹⁵. The changes made by the Act to the compulsory purchase and compensation regime¹⁶ are largely dealt with elsewhere in this work¹⁷.

The 2004 Act lays emphasis on the need for sustainable development, as discussed in more detail below¹⁸.

1 The Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 115 (grants for research and education: see PARA 49 post); s 122 (regulations and orders: see PARA 5 post); s 123 (finance: see PARA 51 post); s 124 (extent: see note 3 infra); s 125 (short title); and the provisions specified in s 121(4), (5), (6). Schedule 7 para 10(7) (urban development corporations; delegation of functions: see PARA 1465 post) came into force on 13 July 2004 (subject to transitional provisions set out in Sch 7 para 10(6)): s 121(6). Certain provisions relating to Scotland come into force on such day as the Scottish Ministers may by order appoint: see s 121(4). As to provisions relating to Wales see the text and notes 6-7 infra.

2 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 post.

3 Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 121(1). Except as otherwise provided in s 124, the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 extends to England and Wales only: s 124(1). As to application to Scotland see s 124(2), (3). The extent of any amendment, repeal or revocation made by that Act is the same as that of the enactment amended, repealed or revoked: s 124(4).

The Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 applies to the Isles of Scilly subject to such exceptions, adaptations and modifications as the Secretary of State may by order direct: s 116(1). An order may in particular provide for (1) the Council of the Isles of Scilly to enter into arrangements in pursuance of s 4 (see PARA 73 post); (2) the exercise by the Council of the Isles of Scilly of any function exercisable by a local planning authority under Pt 2 (ss 13-37) (see PARA 89 et seq post); but an order must not be made under this provision unless the Secretary of State has consulted the Council of the Isles of Scilly: s 116(2), (3). As to the exercise of this power see the Town and Country Planning (Isles of Scilly) Order 2005, SI 2005/2085; and as to the Council of the Isles of Scilly see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 36.

4 The specified provisions are: (1) the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Pt 3 (ss 38, 39) (see PARAS 6, 91 post); (2) Pt 4 (ss 40-55) (development control: see PARA 213 et seq post), except s 44 (major infrastructure projects: see PARA 481 post) and s 55 (time in which the Secretary of State is to take decisions: see PARA 527 post); (3) Pt 5 (ss 56-59) (correction of errors: see PARA 56 post); (4) in Pt 7 (ss 79-98), Ch 1 (ss 79-89) (Crown application of planning Acts in England and Wales: see PARAS 13 et seq, 456, 555, 652, 723 et seq, 855, 877, 1123 post); (5) Pt 8 (ss 99-110) (compulsory purchase: see PARA 934 post; and COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND); (6) s 113 (see PARA 42 post), s 114 (see PARA 108 post), s 117 (interpretation: see PARA 2 ante; and generally in this title), s 118 (amendments: see PARA 20 post; and generally in this title); and s 120 (repeals); (7) Schs 3, 4 (Crown application), Sch 6 (amendments of the planning Acts), Sch 7 (amendments of other enactments) and Sch 9 (repeals): s 121(2).

5 Ibid s 121(2). As to the Assembly see PARA 20 post; and for an example of an order made under these powers after such consultation see the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 (Commencement No 6, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2005, SI 2005/2847. As to the Secretary of State's duty to consult the Scottish Ministers in certain cases see the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 121(3).

See further the Explanatory Notes to the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 (Crown Copyright) PARA 4. The stated aim of the Act is to give effect to the policy on the reform of the planning system, the principal features of which were set out in the policy statement Sustainable Communities--Delivering through Planning which was published in July 2002. That paper took forward proposals that were outlined in the Green Paper Planning--Delivering a Fundamental Change published in December 2001. The policy on reform of the compulsory purchase system was set out in the Green Paper daughter document Compulsory Purchase and Compensation--delivering a fundamental change published in December 2001 and confirmed in the policy statement Compulsory Purchase Powers, Procedures and Compensation--the way forward published in July 2002. In relation to Wales, the Assembly Government published its own consultation paper: Planning Delivering for Wales in January 2002. INTRODUCTION/(1) LEGISLATIVE FRAMEWORK/(ii) Domestic Legislation/5. Regulations and orders under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004.

5. Regulations and orders under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004.

A power to prescribe under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 is, unless express provision is made to the contrary, a power to prescribe by regulations exercisable by the Secretary of State¹ in relation to England or by the National Assembly for Wales² in relation to Wales³.

Subordinate legislation⁴ under that Act:

- 9 (1) may make different provision for different purposes;
- 10 (2) may include such supplementary, incidental, consequential, saving or transitional provisions, including provision amending, repealing or revoking enactments⁵, as the person making the subordinate legislation thinks necessary or expedient⁶.

A power to make subordinate legislation must be exercised by statutory instrument⁷. Unless it contains:

- 11 (a) certain specified regulations or orders⁸;
- 12 (b) provision amending or repealing an enactment contained in an Act⁹;
- 13 (c) provision made by the National Assembly for Wales¹⁰, such a statutory instrument is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament¹¹.

2 As to the Assembly see PARA 20 ante.

3 Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 122(1).

4 References in ibid s 122 to subordinate legislation are to any order or regulations under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004: s 122(2).

5 For these purposes, 'enactment' includes an enactment comprised in, or in an instrument made under, an Act of the Scottish Parliament; and in ibid s 122(8), (9) (see note 8 infra), 'Act' includes such an Act and 'enactment' includes an enactment comprised in such an Act: s 122(10).

8 I.e. unless it contains (1) regulations made by the Secretary of State under ibid s 46 (planning contribution: see PARA 242 post); (2) an order under s 98 (subordinate legislation; Scotland), s 116(1) (Isles of Scilly: see PARA 4 note 3 ante) or s 119(2) (transitional provision relating to Scotland); (3) an order under s 110(2) (corresponding amendments of other enactments in relation to compulsory acquisition of land: see COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND); (4) an order under s 121(1) (commencement) to which s 122(8) applies; (5) an order under s 121(4) (commencement: orders made by Scottish Ministers): see s 122(5)(a)-(e). Section 122(8) applies to an order which does not contain provision amending or repealing an enactment contained in an Act: s 122(8).

A statutory instrument mentioned in s 122(5)(a), (c) (see heads (1), (3) supra) must not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before and approved by resolution of each House of Parliament: s 122(6). A statutory instrument containing an order under s 98 or s 119(2) is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of the Scottish Parliament: s 122(7). A statutory instrument containing an order under s 121(4), if it includes provision amending or repealing an enactment contained in an Act, must not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before and approved by resolution of the Scottish Parliament: s 122(9).

9 See ibid s 122(5)(f). A statutory instrument mentioned in ss 122(5)(f) must not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before and approved by resolution of each House of Parliament: s 122(6).

6. Statutory requirements relating to sustainable development.

Any person who, or body which, exercises any function:

- 14 (1) under Part 1 of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004¹ in relation to a regional spatial strategy²;
- 15 (2) under Part 2 of that Act³ in relation to local development documents⁴;
- 16 (3) under Part 6 of that Act⁵ in relation to the Wales Spatial Plan⁶ or a local development plan⁷, must exercise the function with the objective of contributing to the achievement of sustainable development⁸. For these purposes, the person or body must have regard to national policies and advice contained in guidance issued by:

- 17 (a) the Secretary of State⁹ for the purposes of heads (1) and (2) above¹⁰;
- 18 (b) the National Assembly for Wales¹¹ for the purposes of head (3) above¹².

'Sustainable development' is frequently defined as 'development that meets the needs of the present without comprising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs'¹³.

Under the Government of Wales Act 1998, the Assembly has a general duty to make a scheme setting out how it proposes, in the exercise of its functions¹⁴, to promote sustainable development¹⁵. The Assembly must keep the scheme under review and in the year following each ordinary election¹⁶ must consider whether it should be remade or revised¹⁷. After each financial year¹⁸ the Assembly must publish a report of how its proposals as set out in the scheme were implemented in that financial year¹⁹; and in the year following each ordinary election²⁰ the Assembly must publish a report containing an assessment of how effective its proposals, as set out in the scheme and implemented, have been in promoting sustainable development²¹.

6 Statutory requirements relating to sustainable development

TEXT AND NOTE 8--Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 39(1) amended: Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Act 2009 Sch 7.

NOTE 8--For the purposes of the 2004 Act s 39(2), the person or body must (in particular) have regard to the desirability of achieving good design: Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 39(2A) (added by the Planning Act 2008 s 183 (in force in relation to England)).

PARAS 1009-1508)/1. INTRODUCTION/(1) LEGISLATIVE FRAMEWORK/(ii) Domestic Legislation/7. The Human Rights Act 1998.

7. The Human Rights Act 1998.

Under the Human Rights Act 1998, it is unlawful for a public authority¹ to act² in a way which is incompatible with a Convention right³, unless:

- 19 (1) as the result of one or more provisions of primary legislation, the authority could not have acted differently; or
- 20 (2) in the case of one or more provisions of, or made under, primary legislation which cannot be read or given effect in a way which is compatible with the Convention rights, the authority was acting so as to give effect to or enforce those provisions⁴.

Neither House of Parliament is a public authority for these purposes⁵. However, the National Assembly for Wales⁶ has no power to make, confirm or approve any subordinate legislation, or to do any other act, so far as the subordinate legislation or act is incompatible with any of the Convention rights⁷; but this does not:

- 21 (a) apply to an act which is not unlawful⁸ by virtue of head (1) or head (2) above⁹; and
- 22 (b) enable a court or tribunal to award in respect of an act any damages which it could not award on finding the act unlawful¹⁰ under the Human Rights Act 1998¹¹.

So far as it is possible to do so, primary legislation and subordinate legislation must be read and given effect in a way which is compatible with the Convention rights¹².

The following Convention rights are particularly relevant in the context of town and country planning:

- 23 (i) in the determination of his civil rights and obligations or of any criminal charge against him, everyone is entitled to a fair and public hearing within a reasonable time by an independent and impartial tribunal established by law¹³;
- 24 (ii) everyone charged with a criminal offence must be presumed innocent until proved guilty according to law¹⁴ and has certain minimum rights¹⁵;
- 25 (iii) everyone has the right to respect for his private and family life, his home and his correspondence¹⁶; there must be no interference by a public authority with the exercise of this right except such as is in accordance with the law and is necessary in a democratic society for, inter alia, the protection of the rights and freedoms of others¹⁷;
- 26 (iv) every natural or legal person is entitled to the peaceful enjoyment of his possessions and no one must be deprived of his possessions except in the public interest and subject to the conditions provided for by law and by the general principles of international law¹⁸.

The Convention rights set out in head (i) above have been held not to be breached by the procedures whereby the Secretary of State or the Assembly calls in applications and appeals, or declines to call them in, since any procedural unfairness can be challenged by means of judicial review¹⁹. The lack of an oral hearing at a preliminary stage has been held to be compatible with those rights²⁰ as has the six-week time limit²¹ for questioning the validity of certain orders, decisions and directions²². Further, the mere fact that a claimant does not have sufficient funds to obtain legal representation at a public inquiry does not result in unfairness sufficient to breach those rights²³.

The Convention rights set out in heads (iii) and (iv) above, together in some cases with the rights set out in head (ii) above, have been considered in many cases involving the enforcement of planning controls against gypsies and other travelling people²⁴. While in the majority of such cases the courts have decided that Convention rights are engaged, the interference with those individual rights in the interests of the community as a whole is not necessarily disproportionate²⁵. It may, however, be otherwise if the enforcement action taken involves possession proceedings brought by the local council in respect of the land on which caravans are stationed²⁶.

The rights set out in heads (iii) and (iv) above have also been considered in other contexts involving, for example, planning permission²⁷; the making of a tree preservation order²⁸; refusal of a certificate of lawful use or development²⁹; and enforcement involving the demolition of a building³⁰.

1 For these purposes, 'public authority' includes (1) a court or tribunal; and (2) any person certain of whose functions are functions of a public nature, but does not include either House of Parliament or a person exercising functions in connection with proceedings in Parliament: Human Rights Act 1998 s 6(3). In s 6(3), however, 'Parliament' does not include the House of Lords in its judicial capacity: s 6(4). In relation to a particular act, a person is not a public authority by virtue only of s 6(3)(b) (see head (2) supra) if the nature of the act is private: s 6(5).

2 For these purposes, 'an act' includes a failure to act but does not include a failure to (1) introduce in, or lay before, Parliament a proposal for legislation; or (2) make any primary legislation or remedial order: ibid s 6(6).

3 See ibid s 6(1); and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. As to Convention rights see s 1(3), Sch 1. See also COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 316.

4 Ibid s 6(2).

5 See note 1 supra.

6 As to the Assembly see PARA 20 post.

7 Government of Wales Act 1998 s 107(1), (5). Section 107(1) does not, however, enable a person (1) to bring any proceedings in a court or tribunal; or (2) to rely on any of the Convention rights in any such proceedings, in respect of an act unless he would be a victim for the purposes of the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953) (Cmd 8969)) art 34 if proceedings were brought in the European Court of Human Rights in respect of that act: Government of Wales Act 1998 s 107(2). Section 107(2) does not apply to the Attorney General, the Assembly, the Advocate General for Scotland, the Advocate General for Northern Ireland or the Attorney General for Northern Ireland: s 107(3) (amended by the Justice (Northern Ireland) Act 2002 s 28(2), Sch 7 para 6, as from day to be appointed under s 87(1)).

9. Departmental circulars and policy guidance.

General advice on legislation and procedures is given, in England, by departmental circulars and in Wales by Welsh Office or National Assembly for Wales circulars. The introduction of new secondary legislation is usually accompanied, in England, by the publication of a circular by the Secretary of State¹ which is published on the relevant departmental website².

Planning policy guidance notes ('PPGs')³, minerals planning guidance notes ('MPGs')⁴, and marine mineral guidance notes⁵ in England, and technical advice notes ('TANs') in Wales⁶, were previously the main sources of policy guidance on planning matters. Regional planning guidance has, however, assumed increasing importance and is now prescribed as the regional spatial strategy ('RSS') for the English regions outside Greater London⁷. Planning policy guidance notes are gradually being replaced by planning policy statements ('PPSs') and minerals planning guidance notes are gradually being replaced by mineral policy statements ('MPSs')⁸.

The main source of policy guidance in relation to Wales is now the planning policy document published by the Assembly⁹ which forms the basis of the Wales Spatial Plan¹⁰. This continues to be supplemented by technical advice notes.

INTRODUCTION/(1) LEGISLATIVE FRAMEWORK/(iii) European Union Legislation/10. European directives with regard to the environment; in general.

(iii) European Union Legislation

10. European directives with regard to the environment; in general.

There are a number of European directives concerned with the environment which have an impact on town and country planning. In particular, the Environmental Impact Directive¹ introduced a system for prior assessment by the member states of the possible effects of public and private projects on the environment, which covers construction work and other installations or schemes, as well as other measures affecting the natural environment or landscape². This is now supplemented by the Directive on the Assessment of the Effects of Certain Plans and Programmes on the Environment ('the Strategic Environmental Assessment Directive')³ which introduces a system of prior environmental assessment at the planning stage⁴.

Directives such as the Habitats Directive⁵ and the Wild Birds Directive⁶ and the regulations which implement them⁷ ensure that consideration is given to the protection of the natural environment.

Under the directive on the control of major-accident hazards involving dangerous substances, known as the 'SEVESO II' Directive⁸, member states must ensure that the objectives of preventing major accidents⁹ and limiting the consequences of such accidents are taken into account in their land-use policies and/or other relevant policies¹⁰.

The Directive on Public Access to Environmental Information¹¹ has as its objectives:

- 37 (1) to guarantee the right of access to environmental information¹² held by or for public authorities and to set out the basic terms and conditions of, and practical arrangements for, its exercise; and
- 38 (2) to ensure that, as a matter of course, environmental information is progressively made available and disseminated to the public in order to achieve the widest possible systematic availability and dissemination to the public of environmental information¹³.

A further directive provides for public participation in respect of the drawing up of certain plans and programmes relating to the environment and amends earlier directives with regard to public participation and access to justice¹⁴. Member states must ensure that the public¹⁵ is given early and effective opportunities to participate in the preparation and modification or review of the plans or programmes required to be drawn up under specified provisions¹⁶ and must, to that, end, ensure that:

- 39 (a) the public is informed, whether by public notices or other appropriate means such as electronic media where available, about any proposals for such plans or programmes or for their modification or review and that relevant information about such proposals is made available to the public including inter alia information about the right to participate in decision-making and about the competent authority to which comments or questions may be submitted;
- 40 (b) the public is entitled to express comments and opinions when all options are open before decisions on the plans and programmes are made;
- 41 (c) in making those decisions, due account is to be taken of the results of the public participation;
- 42 (d) having examined the comments and opinions expressed by the public, the competent authority makes reasonable efforts to inform the public about the decisions taken and the reasons and considerations upon which those decisions are based, including information about the public participation process¹⁷.

Heads (a) to (d) above do not, however, apply to plans and programmes designed for the sole purpose of serving national defence or taken in case of civil emergencies¹⁸. Nor do they apply to specified plans and programmes¹⁹ set out in Annex I for which a public participation procedure is carried out²⁰ under the Directive on the Assessment of the Effects of Certain Plans and Programmes on the Environment²¹.

Member states are not prevented²² from maintaining or introducing more stringent protective measures than those adopted²³ under the Community policy on the environment²⁴. Such measures must be compatible with the EC Treaty and must be notified to the European Commission²⁵.

2 The EIA Directive is implemented in domestic law with regard to town and country planning by the Town and Country Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) (England and Wales) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/293 (as amended) (see PARA 488 et seq post) which do not, however, specifically implement the amendments made by EC Council Directive 2003/35 (OJ L156, 25.06.2003, p 17).

INTRODUCTION/ (2) APPLICATION OF PLANNING LEGISLATION TO THE CROWN/(i) The Position before Amendment by the 2004 Act/11. Crown land under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990.

(2) APPLICATION OF PLANNING LEGISLATION TO THE CROWN

(i) The Position before Amendment by the 2004 Act

11. Crown land under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990.

At the date at which this title states the law, special statutory provisions apply to Crown land¹ in respect of:

- 43 (1) the control of development on Crown land²;
- 44 (2) agreements for securing the use of Crown land³;
- 45 (3) an application for planning permission in anticipation of the disposal of Crown land⁴;
- 46 (4) tree preservation orders in anticipation of the disposal of Crown land⁵;
- 47 (5) the requirement of planning permission for the continuance of a use instituted by the Crown⁶;
- 48 (6) enforcement in respect of war-time breaches of planning control by the Crown⁷; and
- 49 (7) Crown planning obligations⁸.

Notwithstanding any interest of the Crown in Crown land, but subject to the following provisions:

- 50 (a) a specified document, plan or strategy⁹ may include proposals relating to the use of Crown land¹⁰;
- 51 (b) any power to acquire land compulsorily under Part IX of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹¹ may be exercised in relation to any interest in Crown land which is for the time being held otherwise than by or on behalf of the Crown¹²;
- 52 (c) any restrictions or powers imposed or conferred by Part III of that Act¹³, by Part VII¹⁴ (subject to certain exceptions relating to rights of entry¹⁵) or Part VIII¹⁶, by the provisions of Part VI of that Act relating to purchase notices¹⁷, or by any of the specified provisions relating to statutory undertakers¹⁸, apply and are exercisable in relation to Crown land, to the extent of any interest in it for the time being held otherwise than by or on behalf of the Crown¹⁹.

Except with the consent of the appropriate authority²⁰:

- 53 (i) in relation to land which for the time being is Crown land, a planning obligation²¹ may not be enforced by injunction and the power to enter land if there is a breach of a planning obligation²² may not be exercised²³;
- 54 (ii) no order or notice may be made, issued or served under specified provisions²⁴ in relation to land which for the time being is Crown land²⁵;
- 55 (iii) no interest in land which for the time being is Crown land may be acquired²⁶ compulsorily²⁷.

As from a day to be appointed, however²⁸, the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 effectively removes Crown immunity in respect of town and country planning legislation²⁹. The provisions set out in heads (a) to (c) and (i) to (iii) above are repealed, together with the majority of those referred to in heads (1) to (5) and head (7) above³⁰, and other related changes are made. These changes are discussed below³¹.

1 For these purposes, 'Crown land' means land in which there is a Crown interest or a Duchy interest: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 293(1). Section 293(1) (as originally enacted) defines 'Crown interest' as meaning an interest belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown, or belonging to a government department or held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department; and 'Duchy interest' as an interest belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Duchy of Lancaster or belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall. That definition of 'Crown interest' is, however, substituted by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 79(4), Sch 3 para 6(1), (2), partly as from a day to be appointed under s 121. For the new definition see PARA 14 post. For the meaning of 'land' see PARA 2 note 10 ante; and for the meaning of 'government department' see PARA 3 note 5 ante. The 1990 Act applies to land in which an interest is held by or on behalf of a visiting force or headquarters and which is used for the purposes of that force or headquarters to the extent that it applies to Crown land, and in its application to such land, the Act has effect as if any reference in the Act to: (1) 'Crown land' included a reference to such land; (2) 'the Crown' included a reference to the visiting force or headquarters; and (3) 'the appropriate authority' was a reference to the Ministry of Defence: Visiting Forces and International Headquarters (Application of Law) Order 1999, SI 1999/1736, art 11(1), (2). As to the application of Northern Ireland planning legislation see art 11(4).

9 The following are the specified documents, plans and strategies: (1) the regional spatial strategy (or a revision of it) within the meaning of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Pt 1 (ss 1-12) (see PARAS 24-25, 72 et seq post); (2) a local development document (or a revision of it) adopted or approved under Pt 2 (ss 13-37) (see PARA 89 et seq post); (3) a local development plan (or a revision of it) adopted or approved under Pt 6 (ss 60-78) (see PARA 133 et seq post); (4) the Mayor of London's spatial development strategy (or any alteration or replacement of it) published in pursuance of the Greater London Authority Act 1999 s 337 (as amended) (see PARA 86 post; and LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 189 et seq); Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 296(1A) (added by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 118(1), Sch 6 paras 1, 10(1), (3)). The Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 296 (as amended) is prospectively repealed by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 ss 84(1), 120, Sch 9, as from a day to be appointed under s 121; at the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed.

10 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 296(1)(a) (substituted by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Sch 6 paras 1, 10(1), (2) (at the date at which this title states the law, that substitution was not in force for certain transitional purposes in relation to Wales (see PARAS 148 note 11, 979 note 8 post) and the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 296(1)(a) instead referred for those purposes to a plan approved, adopted or made under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt II (ss 10-54A) (as amended and prospectively repealed: see PARA 149 et seq post) or under the Town and Country Planning Act 1971 Pt II (ss 6-21) (repealed)). 19 Ibid s 296(1)(c) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 32, Sch 7 paras 8, 45(1); prospectively repealed (see note 9 supra)). A person who is entitled to occupy Crown land by virtue of a licence in writing is treated for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 296(1)(c) (as so amended) so far as applicable to Pt III (ss 55-106B) (as amended) (see PARA 217 et seq post), Pt VII (ss 171A-196C) (as amended) (see PARA 551 et seq post) and Pt VIII (ss 197-225) (as amended) (see PARA 769 et seq post), and s 294(2)-(7) (as prospectively repealed) (see PARA 572 post), s 295 (as prospectively repealed) (see PARAS 572, 612 post), s 299 (as amended and prospectively repealed) (see PARA 454 post) and s 300 (as prospectively repealed) (see PARA 854 post) as having an interest in land; and references in s 299 (as amended and prospectively repealed) to the disposal of an interest in Crown land, and in s 294(2) (as prospectively repealed), s 299 (as amended and prospectively repealed) and s 300 (as prospectively repealed) to a private interest, are to be construed accordingly: s 293(4) (prospectively repealed by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 ss 79(4), 120, Sch 3 para 22, Sch 9 as from a day to be appointed under s 121; at the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed). For these purposes, 'private interest' means an interest which is neither a Crown interest nor a Duchy interest: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 293(1).

20 For these purposes, 'the appropriate authority', in relation to any land (1) in the case of land belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown and forming part of the Crown Estate, means the Crown Estate Commissioners; (2) in relation to any other land belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown, means the government department having the management of the land; (3) in relation to land belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Duchy of Lancaster, means the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster; (4) in relation to land belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall, means such person as the Duke of Cornwall, or the possessor for the time being of the Duchy of Cornwall, appoints; and (5) in the case of land belonging to a government department or held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department, means that department: ibid s 293(2) (as originally enacted). If any question arises as to what authority is the appropriate authority in relation to that land, that question must be referred to the Treasury, whose decision is final: s 293(3) (as originally enacted). As to the Crown Estate see CROWN PROPERTY vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 278 et seq; and as to the Crown Estate Commissioners see CROWN PROPERTY vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 280.

For the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 ('the Planning Act'): (a) the interest of a Corporate Officer or the Corporate Officers in any land is regarded as a Crown interest, within the meaning of Pt XIII (ss 293-302) (as amended); and (b) any development carried out by or on behalf of a Corporate Officer or the Corporate Officers is regarded as development carried out by or on behalf of the Crown and accordingly the use of the land for the purposes of the House of Lords, the House of Commons or both those Houses is regarded as use by or on behalf of the Crown; and, in relation to land which is Crown land, within the meaning of Pt XIII (ss 293-302) (as amended) by virtue only of head (a) supra, 'the appropriate authority' for the purposes of Pt XIII (ss 293-302) (as amended) is the Corporate Officer or, as the case may be, the Corporate Officers in whom is vested the interest in the land: Parliamentary Corporate Bodies (Crown Immunities etc) Order 1992, SI 1992/1732, art 2(1). If a Corporate Officer or the Corporate Officers is or are entitled to occupy Crown land, within the meaning of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt XIII (ss 292A-302) (as amended), by virtue of a licence in writing, that licence is regarded as a Crown interest, rather than a private interest, for the purposes of Pt XIII (ss 292A-302) (as amended): Parliamentary Corporate Bodies (Crown Immunities etc) Order 1992, SI 1992/1732, art 2(2).

Article 2(1), (2) applies in relation to the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 as if (i) references in the Parliamentary Corporate Bodies (Crown Immunities etc) Order 1992, SI 1992/1732, art 2(1), (2) to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 or Pt XIII (ss 292A-302) (as amended) were references to the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 (see PARA 1072 et seq post) or, as the case may be, Pt III (ss 81-90) (as amended); and (ii) the references in the Parliamentary Corporate Bodies (Crown Immunities etc) Order 1992, SI 1992/1732, art 2(1)(b) (see head (b) supra) to development included references to works affecting a listed building and the demolition of a building in a conservation area: art 2(3).

To the extent that a Corporate Officer or the Corporate Officers has or have responsibility for the management of any land in which he or they has or have no interest but which forms part of the Palace of Westminster, the Corporate Officer or Corporate Officers is or are regarded as having the status of a government department for the purposes of the following enactments which define 'the appropriate authority' in relation to certain land belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown, namely the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 293(2)(b) (as originally enacted) (see head (2) supra) and the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 s 83(7)(b) (as prospectively repealed) (see PARA 1075 post): Parliamentary Corporate Bodies (Crown Immunities etc) Order 1992, SI 1992/1732, art 2(4).

For these purposes, 'Corporate Officer' means either the Corporate Officer of the House of Lords or the Corporate Officer of the House of Commons and 'the Corporate Officers' means those two Corporate Officers acting jointly (art 1(2)); 'development' and 'land' have the same meaning as in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 (see PARA 2 note 10 ante, PARA 217 post) (Parliamentary Corporate Bodies (Crown Immunities etc) Order 1992, SI 1992/1732, art 2(5)); and a licence is not to be regarded as an interest in land (art 1(3)). As to the Corporate Officers of the House of Lords and the House of Commons respectively see PARLIAMENT vol 78 (2010) PARA 990 et seq.

21 For the meaning of 'planning obligation' see PARA 244 post.

Crown application of the planning Acts under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004; in general.

(ii) The Prospective Ending of General Crown Immunity

13. Crown application of the planning Acts under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004; in general.

The relevant provisions of Part 7 of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004¹ end Crown immunity in the planning system and make special provision:

- 60 (1) in relation to certain planning applications by or on behalf of the Crown²; and 61 (2) in respect of enforcement of planning control in relation to the Crown in England and Wales³.

Schedule 3 to that Act makes consequential amendments to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990⁴, the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990⁵ and the Planning (Hazardous Substances) Act 1990⁶; and Schedule 4 to the 2004 Act makes transitional provision⁷. At the date at which this title states the law, those changes were in force for limited purposes only⁸.

The Secretary of State⁹ may by order provide that relevant subordinate legislation¹⁰ applies to the Crown¹¹. The order may modify such subordinate legislation to the extent that the Secretary of State thinks appropriate for the purposes of its application to the Crown¹².

With the exception of Part 8¹³, and as from a day to be appointed¹⁴, the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 binds the Crown¹⁵. As from such a day, the planning Acts¹⁶ and that 2004 Act have effect despite any rule of law relating to Parliament or the law and practice of Parliament¹⁷.

8 So much of ibid ss 79-83, 88, Sch 3 paras 6-8, 10-12 as confers on the Secretary of State, the Lord Chancellor or the National Assembly for Wales a power or imposes a duty to make or to make provision by rules, regulations, development order or other order or to give directions, or make provision with respect to the exercise of any such power or performance of such duty came into force on 6 August 2004: see the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 (Commencement No 1) Order 2004, SI 2004/2097, art 2. 9 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 post.

10 For these purposes, 'relevant subordinate legislation' is an instrument which (1) is made under or (wholly or in part) for the purposes of any of the planning Acts; (2) is made before the commencement of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 79; and (3) is specified in the order: s 88(3). INTRODUCTION/ (2) APPLICATION OF PLANNING LEGISLATION TO THE CROWN/(ii) The Prospective Ending of General Crown Immunity/14. Crown land etc; the new position under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990.

14. Crown land etc; the new position under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990.

As from a day to be appointed¹, and subject to any express provision made by Part XIII² of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, that Act binds the Crown³.

Express provision is made by that Part with regard to:

- 62 (1) urgent Crown development⁴;
- 63 (2) enforcement in relation to the Crown⁵;
- 64 (3) references to an interest in land⁶;
- 65 (4) compensation⁷;
- 66 (5) applications for planning permission by the Crown⁸;
- 67 (6) enforcement in respect of war-time breaches of planning control by the Crown⁹.

For the purposes of that Part, 'Crown land' means land in which there is a Crown interest or a Duchy interest¹⁰; and 'Crown interest' means any of the following:

- 68 (a) an interest belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown or in right of Her private estates¹¹;
- 69 (b) an interest belonging to a government department¹² or held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department;
- 70 (c) such other interest as the Secretary of State¹³ specifies by order¹⁴.

If any question arises as to what authority is the appropriate authority¹⁵ in relation to any land, that question must be referred to the Treasury, whose decision is final¹⁶. For the purposes of an application for planning permission¹⁷ made by or on behalf of the Crown¹⁸ in respect of land which does not belong to the Crown or in respect of which it has no interest, a reference to the appropriate authority must be construed as a reference to the person who makes the application¹⁹.

Transitional provision is made by Part 1 of Schedule 4 to the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004²⁰. Additionally, provision is made with regard to rights of entry on Crown land²¹.

14 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 293(1) (definition substituted by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Sch 3 para 6(1), (2), partly as from a day to be appointed: see note 11 supra). An order made for the purposes of head (c) in the text must be made by statutory instrument, but no such order may be made unless a draft of it has been laid before and approved by resolution of each House of Parliament: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 293(5), (6) (as added: see note 11 supra). In relation to Wales, however, it is apprehended that the function of making an order under s 293(1) is transferred to the National Assembly for Wales and that therefore s 293(5), (6) does not apply: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1 (as amended); and PARA 20 ante.

15 For these purposes, 'the appropriate authority' in relation to any land: (1) in the case of land belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown and forming part of the Crown Estate, means the Crown Estate Commissioners; (2) in relation to any other land belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown, means the government department having the management of that land; (3) in relation to land belonging to Her Majesty in right of Her private estates means a person appointed by Her Majesty in writing under the Royal Sign Manual or, if no such appointment is made, the Secretary of State; (4) in relation to land belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Duchy of Lancaster, means the Chancellor of the Duchy; (5) in relation to land belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall, means such person as the Duke of Cornwall, or the possessor for the time being of the Duchy of Cornwall, appoints; (6) in the case of land belonging to a government department or held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department, means that department; (7) in relation to Westminster Hall and the Chapel of St Mary Undercroft, means the Lord Great Chamberlain and the Speakers of the House of Lords and the House of Commons acting jointly; (8) in relation to Her Majesty's Robing Room in the Palace of Westminster, the adjoining staircase and ante-room and the Royal Gallery, means the Lord Great Chamberlain: ibid s 293(2) (as amended: see note 11 supra). 17 For the meaning of 'planning permission' see PARA 43 note 6 post.

TEXT AND NOTE 1--Day now appointed for remaining purposes: SI 2006/1281.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/1. INTRODUCTION/(3) OTHER SPECIAL CASES/16. Power to modify statutory provisions in relation to minerals.

(3) OTHER SPECIAL CASES

16. Power to modify statutory provisions in relation to minerals.

In relation to development¹ consisting of the winning and working of minerals² or involving the depositing of mineral waste³, specified provisions⁴ of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 have effect subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be prescribed⁵. Any regulations so made do not apply to the winning and working, on land held or occupied with land used for the purposes of agriculture⁶, of any minerals reasonably required for the purposes of that use, including the fertilisation of the land so used and the maintenance, improvement or alteration of buildings⁷ or works on it which are occupied or used for those purposes⁸.

In relation to interests in land consisting of or comprising minerals, being either the fee simple or tenancies⁹ of such land, other specified provisions¹⁰ of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 also have effect subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be prescribed¹¹.

Regulations made for these purposes may, if made by the Secretary of State¹², only be so made with the consent of the Treasury and are of no effect unless they are approved by resolution of each House of Parliament¹³.

1 For the meaning of 'development' see PARA 217 post.

2 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'the winning and working of minerals' includes the extraction of minerals from a mineral working deposit; 'minerals' includes all substances of a kind ordinarily worked for removal by underground or surface working, except that it does not include peat cut for purposes other than sale; and 'mineral-working deposit' means any deposit of material remaining after minerals have been extracted from land or otherwise deriving from the carrying out of operations for the winning and working of minerals in, on or under land: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1) (amended for these purposes by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 21, Sch 1 paras 1, 12(c), (e)). For the meaning of 'land' see PARA 2 note 10 ante.

3 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires 'depositing of mineral waste' means any process whereby a mineral-working deposit is created or enlarged: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1) (definition added by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 1 paras 1, 12(a)).

5 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 315(1) (amended by Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 21, Sch 1 paras 1, 11). For these purposes, 'prescribed', except in relation to matters expressly required or authorised by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 to be prescribed in some other way, means prescribed by regulations under that Act: s 336(1). As to the making of regulations generally see PARA 3 ante.

As to the exercise of the power to make regulations under s 315(1) (as amended) see the Town and Country Planning (Minerals) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/2863. Regulation 2 modifies the definition of 'use' for the purposes of the provisions set out in note 4 supra (see PARA 221 note 4 post); and reg 3, Schedule makes specific modifications to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 56 (as amended) (see PARA 221 post) and s 107 (as amended) (see PARA 914 post).

6 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'agriculture' includes horticulture, fruit growing, seed growing, dairy farming, the breeding and keeping of livestock (including any creature kept for the production of food, wool, skins or fur, or for the purpose of its use in the farming of land), the use of land as grazing land, meadow land, osier land, market gardens and nursery grounds, and the use of land for woodlands where that use is ancillary to the farming of land for other agricultural purposes; and 'agricultural' is to be construed accordingly: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1). The breeding and keeping of livestock does not extend to the breeding and keeping of horses except for their use in the farming of land: Belmont Farm Ltd v Minister of Housing and Local Government (1962) 60 LGR 319, DC. 'Grazing land' includes land used for grazing racehorses and ponies and point-to-point horses (Sykes v Secretary of State for the Environment (1980) 42 P & CR 19, DC) and for fox farming (North Warwickshire Borough Council v Secretary of State for the Environment and Gill [1984] JPL 434). 'Agriculture' includes the use of land as allotments (Crowborough Parish Council v Secretary of State for the Environment and Wealden District Council (1980) 43 P & CR 229, DC) but not for the installation of an egg-vending machine (Hidderley v Warwickshire County Council (1963) 14 P & CR 134, DC) or as lairage (Warnock v Secretary of State for the Environment and Dover District Council [1980] JPL 590, DC). See also Wealden District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment and Colin Day [1988] JPL 268, CA (cited in PARA 222 note 5 post). As to the factors to be taken into account when determining whether land is being used for the purposes of agriculture see Millington v Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1999) Times, 29 June, [1999] All ER (D) 675, CA.

7 For the meaning of 'building' para 2 note 10 ante.

8 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 315(4) (amended by the Coal Industry Act 1994 s 67(1), (8), Sch 9 para 39(2), Sch 11 Pt III). Nothing in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 315(1)-(4) (as amended) is to be construed as affecting the prerogative right of Her Majesty, whether in right of the Crown or of the Duchy of Lancaster, or of the Duke of Cornwall to any gold or silver mine: s 315(5).

9 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'tenancy' has the same meaning as in the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1).

10 le the provisions specified in ibid Sch 16 Pt III (as amended). The provisions so specified are ss 109-112 (as amended) (see PARA 916 et seq post), s 298 (as amended) (see PARA 922 post), ss 308-310 (as amended) (see PARA 933 post); (2) the following miscellaneous provisions, ie s 318(4), (5) (as amended) (see PARA 17 post), s 328 (as amended) (see PARA 918 post) and any other provisions of the planning Acts in so far as they apply, or have effect for the purposes of, any of the provisions so specified: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 16 Pt III (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 ss 32, 84(6), Sch 7 paras 8, 57(1), (4), Sch 19 Pts 1, II).

11 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 315(2) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 6 paras 8, 32, Sch 19 Pt II). At the date at which this title states the law, no regulations had been made for these purposes and none had effect as if so made.

12 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 post.

13 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 315(3). As to the transfer of functions under s 315 (as amended), so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, to the Assembly see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1 (as amended); and as to the Assembly see PARA 20 post. As to Parliamentary procedure in connection with regulations made by the Assembly see PARA 20 post; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS; PARLIAMENT VOL 34 (Reissue) PARA 912 et seq.

Where, under any of the provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, a notice or copy of a notice is required to be served on an owner¹ of land, and the land is ecclesiastical property², a similar notice or copy must be served³ on the Church Commissioners⁴.

Where the fee simple of any ecclesiastical property is in abeyance:

- 71 (1) if the property is situated elsewhere than in Wales, the fee simple is treated for the purposes of specified provisions of the 1990 Act⁵ as being vested in the Church Commissioners;
- 72 (2) in any case, the fee simple is treated, for the purposes of a compulsory acquisition⁶, as being vested in the Church Commissioners, and any notice to treat must be served, or is deemed to have been served, accordingly⁷.

Any compensation payable⁸ in respect of land which is ecclesiastical property:

- 73 (a) must, in the case of land which is not diocesan glebe land, be paid to the Church Commissioners; and
- 74 (b) must, in the case of diocesan glebe land, be paid to the Diocesan Board of Finance⁹ in which the land is vested,

1 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'owner', in relation to any land, means a person, other than a mortgagee not in possession, who, whether in his own right or as trustee for any other person, is entitled to receive the rack rent of the land or, where the land is not let at a rack rent, would be so entitled if it were so let: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1) (definition amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 ss 32, 84(6), Sch 7 paras 8, 52(1), (2)(e), Sch 19 Pt I). For the meaning of 'land' para 2 note 10 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'ecclesiastical property' means land belonging to an ecclesiastical benefice, or being or forming part of a church subject to the jurisdiction of a bishop of any diocese or the site of such a church, or being or forming part of a burial ground subject to such jurisdiction or being diocesan glebe land: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 318(6) (s 318(3), (4), (6) amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 70, Sch 15 para 30(1)-(3)). 'Diocesan glebe land' has the same meaning as in the Endowments and Glebe Measure 1976 (see ECCLESIASTICAL LAW): Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 318(6) (as so amended).

Subject to certain specific conditions¹, planning permission² is deemed to be granted under Part III of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990³ for the carrying out of development⁴ authorised by Part I⁵ of the Channel Tunnel Rail Link Act 1996⁶. That deemed permission is, however, subject to conditions set out in Schedule 6 to the Act⁷ and requests for approval under that Schedule must be made to the local planning authority⁸. The Channel Tunnel Rail Link (Assessment of Environmental Effects) Regulations 1999⁹, which apply to development consisting of the carrying out of certain work authorised by the 1996 Act¹⁰, disapply this deemed permission where the 1994 environmental statement for the rail link¹¹ does not contain all the required information¹² and other specified circumstances apply¹³. The Channel Tunnel Rail Link (Planning Appeals) Regulations 1997¹⁴ make provision with regard to appeals by the nominated undertaker against a decision on a request for approval made under Schedule 6 to the 1996 Act¹⁵ which is to be dealt with by written representations¹⁶.

Planning permission is, similarly, deemed to have been granted under Part III of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 for any development of land consisting in the carrying out of any works or other operations authorised by the Cardiff Bay Barrage Act 1993 or the making of any change in the use of land by the carrying out of any such operations¹⁷.

(4) ADMINISTRATION

(i) Central Administration

19. The Secretary of State.

The central authority for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 and related legislation is, in England, the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State is a general term comprising all the Secretaries of State each of whom may perform the duties of all or any of them except where a statute specifically allocates a function to a particular Secretary of State¹. At the date at which this title states the law, most functions of the Secretary of State under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 and related legislation were performed² in England³ by the Deputy Prime Minister⁴. Certain matters relating to the historic environment and listed buildings were, however, the responsibility of the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport⁵.

The functions of the Secretary of State in the regions outside London are carried out on a day to day basis by officials based in regional government offices. These regional offices are distinct from the regional planning bodies discussed below⁶.

In relation to Wales⁷, most of the Secretary of State's town and country planning functions have been transferred to the National Assembly for Wales⁸. Functions not transferred are exercisable⁹ by the Secretary of State for Wales¹⁰.

Any sums received by the Secretary of State under any provision of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 must¹¹ be paid into the Consolidated Fund¹².

1 See the Interpretation Act 1978 ss 5, 22(1), Sch 1, Sch 2 para 4(1)(b); and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 355. For current titles and responsibilities see the most recent edition of the Civil Service Yearbook.

2 Certain functions may, however, be exercised by 'the appropriate minister': see PARA 1012 post.

3 In any Act passed on or after 1 April 1974, or any subordinate legislation, unless the contrary intention appears, 'England' means, subject to any alteration of boundaries under the Local Government Act 1972 Pt IV (ss 53-78) (as amended) or the Local Government Act 1992 Pt II (ss 12-27) (as amended) (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 56 et seq), the area consisting of the counties established by the Local Government Act 1972 s 1 (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARAS 5, 24, 27), Greater London and the Isles of Scilly, unless the contrary intention appears: Interpretation Act 1978 ss 5, 17, 23, Sch 1, Sch 2 para 6. As to the Isles of Scilly see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 36; and as to the application of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 to those Isles see PARA 2 note 1 ante; and as to the application of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 to those Isles see PARA 4 note 3 ante. 5 As to the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. The Department for Culture, Media and Sport ('DCMS') maintains an internet site on the World Wide Web; at the date at which this title states the law, that site was accessible at www.culture.gov.uk and set out that department's responsibilities as covering the identification, conservation and enhancement of the historic built environment in England, including listing and scheduling of historic buildings and ancient monuments, protection of conservation areas and management of the DCMS historic buildings estate together with state ceremonial duties; also carrying out European and International work on the historic environment including the selection and arrangements for care of World Heritage Sites under the World Heritage Convention.

6 As to regional planning bodies see PARA 24 post.

7 In any Act passed on or after 1 April 1974, or any subordinate legislation, unless the contrary intention appears, 'Wales' means the combined area of the counties which were created by the Local Government Act 1972 s 20 (as substituted) (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARAS 5, 37), but subject to any alteration made under s 73 (as amended) (consequential alteration of boundary following alteration of watercourse) (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 90): Interpretation Act 1978 ss 5, 23, Sch 1 (definition substituted by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 s 1(3), Sch 2 para 9).

20. The National Assembly for Wales.

Under the arrangements for devolved government in Wales¹, ministerial functions relating to town and country planning are transferred, subject to prescribed exceptions and qualifications, to the National Assembly for Wales². In certain cases, such functions are exercisable by the Assembly concurrently with the Secretary of State³.

Certain functions are exercisable by the Secretary of State only after consultation with the Assembly⁴.

Where a function to make subordinate legislation⁵ has been transferred to, or made exercisable by, the Assembly⁶, then, subject to certain exceptions⁷, any relevant Parliamentary procedural provision⁸ relating to the function does not have effect in relation to the exercise of the function by the Assembly⁹.

The Assembly's duty to promote sustainable development has already been discussed¹⁰.

1 For these purposes, 'Wales' includes the sea adjacent to Wales out as far as the seaward boundary of the territorial sea: Government of Wales Act 1998 s 155(1). The Secretary of State may by order determine, or make provision for determining, for the purposes of the definition of 'Wales' any boundary between (1) the parts of the sea which are to be treated as adjacent to Wales; and (2) those which are not, and may make different determinations or provision for different purposes; and an Order in Council under s 22 (transfer of functions) may include any provision that may be included in such an order: s 155(2). For the purposes of the definition of 'Wales' in the 1998 Act the boundary between those parts of the sea within the Severn and Dee Estuaries which are to be treated as adjacent to Wales and those which are not is to be, in each case, a line drawn between the co-ordinates set out in the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 6, Sch 3: see art 6.

2 See ibid art 2, Sch 1 (as amended). As to the establishment, constitution and functions of the National Assembly for Wales see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. The Assembly maintains an internet site on the World Wide Web where details of its policies and functions may be found; at the date at which this title states the law, that site was accessible at www.wales.gov.uk.

The 1999 Order has been extensively amended; relevant amendments to Sch 1 for the purposes of town and country planning have been made by SI 2000/253. An indication as to whether or not a function has been so transferred, and any qualification to which any such transfer is subject, is given in the text and notes to the paragraph of this title discussing the function in question.

A reference in the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, Sch 1 (as amended) to an enactment amended by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 must be taken to be a reference to the enactment as so amended; but this does not affect such an enactment to the extent that the amendment makes express provision in connection with the exercise of a function in relation to Wales: s 118(3), (4).

As to restrictions on the Assembly's powers see eg the Government of Wales Act 1998 s 106 (Community obligations); and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS; s 107 (Assembly must act in accordance with Convention rights under the Human Rights Act 1998); and PARA 7 ante; the Government of Wales Act 1998 s 108 (international obligations); and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. In general, sums received by the Assembly are to be paid into the Consolidated Fund (see s 84(1)); but for the exceptions to this see s 84(2)-(6); and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

3 Eg the functions under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 321 (as amended): see PARA 652 post. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

4 Eg the functions under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 121(2) (making of certain commencement orders): see PARA 4 ante.

5 Ie including a function conferred or imposed by, or after the passing of, the Government of Wales Act 1998: s 44(1). For these purposes, 'make' includes confirm or approve and related expressions (except 'made exercisable') are to be construed accordingly; but an instrument (or draft) does not fall within s 44(4)(a) (see note 7 head (1) infra) just because it contains subordinate legislation made (or to be made) by the Assembly with the agreement of a Minister of the Crown or government department: s 44(6).

6 Ie by an Order in Council under ibid s 22.

7 Ie subject to ibid s 44(4), (5). Section 44(2) (see the text and notes 8-9 infra) does not apply in the case of any instrument made in the exercise of the function, or a draft of any such instrument, if it (1) contains subordinate legislation made or to be made by a Minister of the Crown or government department (whether or not jointly with the Assembly); (2) contains (or confirms or approves) subordinate legislation relating to an English border area; or (3) contains (or confirms or approves) subordinate legislation relating to a cross-border body (and not relating only to the exercise of functions, or the carrying on of activities, by the body in or with respect to Wales or a part of Wales): s 44(4). Where a function transferred to, or made exercisable by, the Assembly by an Order in Council under s 22 is subject to a provision of the description specified in s 44(3)(e) (see note 8 head (5) infra, the Order in Council may provide that (a) any order made by the Assembly in the exercise of the function; or (b) any order so made in circumstances specified in the Order in Council, is to be subject to special parliamentary procedure: s 44(5).

8 For these purposes, 'relevant Parliamentary procedural provision' means provision (1) requiring any instrument made in the exercise of the function, or a draft of any such instrument, to be laid before Parliament or either House of Parliament; (2) for the annulment or approval of any such instrument or draft by or in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament or of both Houses; (3) prohibiting the making of any such instrument without that approval; (4) for any such instrument to be a provisional order (that is, an order which requires to be confirmed by Act of Parliament); or (5) requiring any order (within the meaning of the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act 1945) to be subject to special parliamentary procedure: Government of Wales Act 1998 s 44(3).

21. The Planning Inspectorate and the Planning Portal.

The Planning Inspectorate is a government executive agency¹ based in Bristol and Cardiff². The main work of the inspectorate is the processing of planning and enforcement appeals³ and holding inquiries into local development plans⁴. The inspectorate also deals with a wide variety of other planning related casework including listed building consent appeals⁵, advertisement appeals⁶ and reporting on planning applications called in for decision by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, or, in Wales, by the Welsh Assembly Government⁷. Performance targets for the inspectorate are set by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister or, in Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales⁸.

The Planning Portal, an information site on the World Wide Web, was originally developed by the Planning Inspectorate and launched in 2002⁹. That site now incorporates an electronic planning casework service¹⁰.

1 Executive agencies are more or less autonomous units, operating within a framework document and business plan. Key performance targets are set annually by the appropriate minister and are announced to Parliament. See further CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

2 The postal addresses of the Planning Inspectorate are (1) in England, Temple Quay House, 2 The Square, Temple Quay, Bristol, BS1 6PN; (2) in Wales, Crown Buildings, Cathays Park, Cardiff, CF10 3NQ. The Planning Inspectorate maintains in internet site on the World Wide Web; at the date at which this title states the law, that site was accessible at www.planning-inspectorate.gov.uk.

9 Responsibility for the operation of the Planning Portal was subsequently passed to the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister. At the date at which this title states the law, the Planning Portal was accessible at www.planningportal.gov.uk.

10 The Planning Casework Service ('PCS') was launched in England in November 2004 to enable certain enforcement appeals to be lodged electronically and was extended during 2005 to other casework in England and also to casework in Wales.

The Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration¹ may investigate, on reference being duly made to him, any actions² taken by or on behalf of specified government departments, corporations or unincorporated bodies³, being actions taken in the exercise of administrative functions⁴ of that department or authority, other than those actions he is expressly precluded from investigating⁵.

At the date at which this title states the law, the Welsh Administration Ombudsman⁶ has similar powers with regard to actions taken in the exercise of administrative functions of the National Assembly for Wales⁷ and certain other bodies⁸. As from a day to be appointed⁹, however, the office of Welsh Administration Ombudsman is abolished and replaced by the office of Public Services Ombudsman for Wales¹⁰.

The respective ombudsmen may also investigate the refusal of access to information under the relevant codes of practice adopted by the departments or bodies in question, or by the Assembly¹¹.

The ombudsmen publish annual reports with details of the investigations undertaken¹².

(ii) Regional Planning Bodies

24. Recognition of bodies as regional planning bodies.

The Secretary of State¹ may give a direction recognising a body², whether or not incorporated, which satisfies such criteria as are prescribed³, as the regional planning body for a region⁴. Such a body is referred to⁵ as the 'RPB'⁶. The Secretary of State must not, however, give such a direction in relation to a body unless not less than 60% of the persons who are members of the body fall within the relevant statutory provision⁷. A person falls within that provision if he is a member of any of the following councils or authorities and any part of the area of the council or authority, as the case may be, falls within the region to which the direction, if given, will relate:

- 83 (1) a district council;
- 84 (2) a county council;
- 85 (3) a metropolitan district council;
- 86 (4) a National Park authority;
- 87 (5) the Broads Authority⁸.

A change in the membership of a body which is not incorporated does not, by itself, affect the validity of the recognition of the body⁹.

Regional planning bodies have functions relating to the regional spatial strategy for their regions¹⁰.

1 For the purposes of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Pt I (ss 1-12) (see the text and notes 1-13 infra; para 25 post; and PARA 72 et seq post), the Secretary of State is the Secretary of State for the time being having general responsibility for policy in relation to the development and use of land: s 12(4). See further PARA 19 ante. For the meaning of 'use' see PARA 221 note 4 post (definition applied by virtue of s 117(1), (5)).

2 I.e a body to which ibid s 2(2) applies: see the text to note 3 infra.

3 I.e by regulations made by the Secretary of State: see ibid s 122; and PARA 5 ante. The criteria prescribed for these purposes are that (1) at least 30% of the members of the RPB (as to which see the text and notes 5-6 infra) are not also members of a relevant authority; (2) all the members of the RPB are entitled to vote when any decision relating to the exercise by the RPB of its functions under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 is taken by the RPB; and (3) the membership of the RPB includes at least one member from each type of relevant authority, if such an authority exists within the region concerned: Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, reg 4(1). In heads (1) and (3) supra, 'relevant authority' means (a) a district council; (b) a county council; (c) a metropolitan district council; (d) a National Park authority; (e) the Broads Authority; (f) the Council of the Isles of Scilly: reg 4(2). As to county, metropolitan district and district councils see PARA 28 post; as to the Council of the Isles of Scilly see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 36; as to National Park authorities see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 526 et seq; and as to the Broads Authority see WATER AND WATERWAYS vol 101 (2009) PARA 734.

4 Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 2(1), (2). A region is a region (except London) specified in the Regional Development Agencies Act 1998 s 1, Sch 1 (ie East Midlands, Eastern, North East, North West, South East, South West, West Midlands and Yorkshire and the Humber: see PARA 27 note 1 post; and TRADE AND INDUSTRY vol 97 (2010) PARA 988); Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 12(1). The Secretary of State may, however, by order direct that if the area of a National Park falls within more than one region it is treated as falling wholly within such region as is specified in the order: s 12(2). In the exercise of this power the Secretary of State has made the Town and Country Planning (Regions) (National Parks) (England) Order 2004, SI 2004/2207, directing that: (i) the area of the North York Moors National Park (which falls within Yorkshire and Humber region and North East region) and the area of the Yorkshire Dales National Park (which falls within Yorkshire and Humber region and North West region) are treated as falling wholly within Yorkshire and Humber region; and (ii) the area of the Peak District National Park (which falls within East Midlands region, West Midlands region, North West region and Yorkshire and Humber region) is treated as falling wholly within East Midlands region: see art 2.

The Barker Review Report (Delivering stability--securing our future housing needs (HM Treasury, 2004)) proposes the merger of Regional Planning Bodies and Regional Housing Bodies and the issuing of government guidance as to the composition of the proposed merged bodies (see Ch 2, recommendations 6, 8).

The Secretary of State¹ may give a direction withdrawing recognition of a body as a regional planning body (an 'RPB')².

If the Secretary of State:

- 88 (1) does not give a direction³ recognising a body as the RPB for a region⁴; or
- 89 (2) gives a direction⁵ withdrawing recognition of a body and does not give a direction⁶ recognising any other body, then in such a case the Secretary of State may exercise such of the functions of the RPB as he thinks appropriate⁷.

26. Arrangements in Greater London and in Wales.

In Greater London¹, the Mayor of London² is responsible for preparing and keeping under review the spatial development strategy³. He must keep under review the matters which may be expected to affect the development of Greater London or the planning of its development or which are otherwise relevant to the content of the spatial development strategy⁴.

The Mayor must inform:

- 90 (1) the local planning authorities⁵ for areas in the vicinity of Greater London;
- 91 (2) any body on which those authorities are represented; or
- 92 (3) any other body which the Mayor considers should be informed, of his views concerning any matters of common interest, whether general or specific, relating to the planning or development of Greater London or those areas⁶. He may also inform those authorities, or any such body, of his views concerning any other matters, whether general or specific, relating to the planning or development of those areas⁷.

The town and country planning functions of the Mayor of London are discussed in detail elsewhere in this work⁸.

In Wales, there are no separate regional planning bodies and the National Assembly for Wales⁹ prepares and reviews the Wales Spatial Plan¹⁰.

27. Regional development agencies.

The Regional Development Agencies Act 1998 established regional development agencies for each of nine regions in England¹. The functions and powers of these agencies are discussed in detail elsewhere in this work².

The regional development agencies are distinct from the regional planning bodies established under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004³ but the areas of responsibility of those bodies are defined with reference to the regions specified in the 1998 Act⁴.

1 See the Regional Development Agencies Act 1998 s 1(1); and TRADE AND INDUSTRY vol 97 (2010) PARA 988. The nine regions are the East Midlands, Eastern, London, North East, North West, South East, South West, West Midlands and Yorkshire and the Humber: Sch 1, which also specifies all the counties, metropolitan and non-metropolitan districts comprised in each region. References in Sch 1 to a local government or administrative area are to that area as it is for the time being: s 1(3). Subject to conditions, and in accordance with the specified procedure, the Secretary of State may by order make alterations in the extent of the regions in Sch 1: see further s 25 (amended by the Greater London Authority Act 1999 s 309, Sch 25 para 14).

(iii) Local Planning Authorities

28. Local planning authorities; in general.

In England, in a non-metropolitan county¹:

- 93 (1) the council of the county is the county planning authority for the county; and
- 94 (2) the council of a district² is the district planning authority for the district; and references in the planning Acts³ to a local planning authority⁴ in relation to a non-metropolitan county are to be construed, subject to any express provision to the contrary, as references to both the county planning authority and the district planning authorities⁵.

The council of a metropolitan district⁶ is the local planning authority for the district; and the council of a London borough⁷ is the local planning authority for the borough⁸. In England, exclusive of the metropolitan counties, Greater London⁹ and the Isles of Scilly¹⁰, all functions¹¹ conferred on local planning authorities by or under the planning Acts are exercisable both by county planning authorities and district planning authorities¹².

In Wales:

- 95 (a) the local planning authority for a county is the county council; and
- 96 (b) the local planning authority for a county borough is the county borough council¹³.

The above provisions, however, have effect subject to any express provision to the contrary in the planning Acts¹⁴. Furthermore, regulations under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 may make such provision consequential upon or supplementary to the above provisions as appears to the Secretary of State¹⁵ or, in relation to Wales, to the National Assembly for Wales¹⁶ to be necessary or expedient¹⁷.

When determining planning applications the elected members of a local planning authority must take into account planning considerations only¹⁸. There is no general principle that if there is a real issue as to the meaning or application of a planning policy then the exercise of delegated powers is rendered unlawful¹⁹.

1 'Non-metropolitan county' means any county other than a metropolitan county: Local Government Act 1972 s 270(2). As to the non-metropolitan counties in England and the counties and county boroughs in Wales (none of which is metropolitan) see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARAS 24 et seq, 37 et seq. The metropolitan county councils ceased to exist on 1 April 1986 and their functions were transferred mainly to the metropolitan district councils: see the Local Government Act 1985 s 1(1)(b), (2), Pt II (ss 2-17) (as amended); and LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 17. The metropolitan counties themselves did not, however, cease to exist.

2 'Non-metropolitan district' means any district other than a metropolitan district: Local Government Act 1972 s 270(2). As to non-metropolitan districts in England and their councils see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 24.

3 For the meaning of 'the planning Acts' see PARA 2 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'local planning authority' see PARA 2 note 1 ante.

5 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 1(1), (1A) (s 1(1A), (1B), (6) added, and s 1(3), (5) amended, by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 ss 18, 66(8), Sch 18). The exercise, in relation to Wales, of functions conferred on local planning authorities is subject to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 1A (as added: see PARA 39 post): s 1(6) (as so added; amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(3), Sch 24).

6 As to the metropolitan districts and their councils see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 24.

7 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'London borough' includes the City of London, references to the council of a London borough or the clerk to such a council being construed, in relation to the City, as references to the Common Council of the City and the town clerk of the City respectively: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1). As to London boroughs and the City of London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 31 et seq.

8 Ibid s 1(2).

9 As to Greater London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 29.

10 As to the Isles of Scilly see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 36. Subject to the following provision, the Council of the Isles of Scilly exercises for those Isles all functions under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 and the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Pt 2 (ss 13-37) (see PARA 89 et seq post) exercisable by a local planning authority or a mineral planning authority for their respective areas in England: Town and Country Planning (Isles of Scilly) Order 2005, SI 2005/2085, art 3. The following exceptions from, and adaptations and modifications of, those Acts have effect: (1) any reference to a local planning authority, except in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 1 para 7(1) (as substituted) (see PARA 477 post), or to a mineral planning authority, includes a reference to the Council of the Isles of Scilly; (2) any reference to the council of a county includes a reference to that Council; (3) any reference to a district includes a reference to the Isles of Scilly, and any reference to the council of a district includes a reference to that Council; (4) any requirement as to (a) consultation between a local planning authority or a mineral planning authority or the council of a county, and the council of a district; (b) consultation between the council of a county, and a local planning authority; or (c) the giving of notice by any body mentioned in head (a) or head (b) supra to any other such body, does not apply: Town and Country Planning (Isles of Scilly) Order 2005, SI 2005/2085, art 4(1). See also art 4(2), cited in PARA 73 post. For the meaning of 'mineral planning authority' see PARA 29 post.

29. Mineral planning authorities.

For the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, 'mineral planning authority' means, in England:

- 97 (1) in respect of a site in a non-metropolitan county¹, the county planning authority²; and
- 98 (2) in respect of a site in a metropolitan district³ or London borough⁴, the local planning authority⁵.

For those purposes, as to any site in Wales the local planning authority is also the mineral planning authority⁶.

The above provisions have effect subject to any express provision to the contrary in the planning Acts⁷.

6 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 1(4B) (as added: see note 5 supra). The exercise, in relation to Wales, of functions conferred on local planning authorities is subject to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 1A (as added: see PARA 39 post): s 1(6) (as so added; amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(3), Sch 24). 30. Joint planning boards.

If it appears to the Secretary of State¹ that it is expedient that a joint board should be established as the county planning authority² for the areas or parts of the areas of any two or more county councils³ in England or as the district planning authority⁴ for the areas or parts of the areas of any two or more district councils⁵, he may by order⁶:

- 99 (1) constitute those areas or parts as a united district⁷ for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990; and
- 100 (2) constitute a joint board (a 'joint planning board') as the county planning authority or, as the case may be, the district planning authority for that united district⁸.

Similarly, if it appears to the National Assembly for Wales⁹ that it is expedient that a joint board should be established as the local planning authority for two or more areas, each of which is the whole or part of a Welsh county or county borough¹⁰, it may by order¹¹:

- 101 (a) constitute those areas or parts as a united district¹² for the purposes of the 1990 Act; and
- 102 (b) constitute a joint board (a 'joint planning board') as the local planning authority¹³ for that united district¹⁴.

The Secretary of State or the Assembly may not, however, make such an order except after holding a local inquiry¹⁵ unless all the councils concerned have consented to the making of the order¹⁶.

A joint planning board constituted by such an order must consist of such number of members as may be determined by the order, to be appointed by the constituent councils¹⁷; and a joint planning board so constituted is a body corporate, with perpetual succession and a common seal¹⁸.

Where a joint planning board is constituted for a united district, references in the planning Acts¹⁹ to the area of a local planning authority:

- 103 (i) in relation to the board, are to be construed as references to that district;
- 104 (ii) in relation to any local planning authority being the council of a county or county borough or district of which part, but not the whole, is included in the united district, are to be construed as references to so much of the county or county borough or district as is not so included²⁰.

6 An order constituting a joint planning board and any order amending or revoking an order constituting a joint planning board (1) may, without prejudice to the provisions of the Local Government Act 1972 s 241 (which authorises the application of the provisions of that Act to joint boards: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 99), provide for regulating the appointment, tenure of office and vacation of office of members of the board, for regulating the meetings and proceedings of the board, and for the payment of the expenses of

The Local Government Act 1972 s 241 is to be taken to authorise the application to a joint planning board, by such an order as is mentioned in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 2(6), of any provisions mentioned in s 2(6B) (as prospectively substituted), as well as any provisions of the Local Government Act 1972, subject to any necessary modifications: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 2(6A) (s 2(6A), (6B) substituted by the Public Audit (Wales) Act 2004 s 66, Sch 2 para 13). In the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'joint planning board' has the meaning given in s 2 (as amended): s 336(1).

Where the united district for which, by an order under s 2 (as amended), a joint planning board is constituted comprises a licensing planning area, or the whole or part of such a united district is included in a licensing planning area, the Secretary of State may by order revoke or vary any order in force under the Licensing Act 1964 Pt VII (ss 118-130) (as amended and prospectively repealed) so far as may be necessary or expedient in consequence of the order under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 2 (as amended): s 334(1) (prospectively repealed by the Licensing Act 2003 ss 198(1), 199, Sch 6 para 109, Sch 7, as from a day to be appointed under s 201(2): at the date at which this title states the law, those repeals were not in force). Subject to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 334(1) (as so repealed), nothing in any order made under s 2 (as amended) affects the validity of any order in force under the Licensing Act 1964 Pt VII (as amended and prospectively repealed) if made before the date of the order under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 2 (as amended): s 334(2) (as so repealed).

32. National Parks with National Park authorities.

Where a National Park authority¹ has been established for any area, the following provisions apply, as from such time as may be specified for these purposes in the order establishing that authority, in relation to the Park for which it is the authority². Subject to certain exceptions³, the National Park authority for the Park is to be the sole local planning authority⁴ for the area of the Park and, accordingly:

- 105 (1) functions⁵ conferred by or under the planning Acts⁶ on a planning authority of any description, including the functions of a mineral planning authority⁷ under those Acts and under the Planning and Compensation Act 1991⁸ are, in relation to the Park, to be functions of the National Park authority, and not of any other authority; and
- 106 (2) so much of the area of any other authority as is included in the Park is to be treated as excluded from any area for which that other authority is a planning authority of any description⁹.

For the purposes of heads (1) and (2) above, functions under the planning Acts which otherwise are conferred:

- 107 (a) in relation to some areas on the county or district planning authorities¹⁰ for those areas; and
- 108 (b) in relation to other areas on the councils for those areas, are to be treated, in relation to those other areas, as conferred on each of those councils as the local planning authority for its area¹¹.

Certain functions of a local planning authority¹² so far as they are functions of a National Park authority by virtue of the above provisions are, however, to be exercisable as respects any area which is or is included in an area for which there is a district council¹³, concurrently with the National Park authority, by that council¹⁴.

1 As to National Park authorities see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 526 et seq. A new National Park authority for the New Forest was established with effect from 1 April 2005: see the New Forest National Park Authority (Establishment) Order 2005, SI 2005/421, arts 2, 3. That authority becomes the sole local planning authority for the New Forest National Park with effect from 1 April 2006: see art 15.

INTRODUCTION/(4) ADMINISTRATION/(iii) Local Planning Authorities/39. Distribution of functions between local planning authorities.

39. Distribution of functions between local planning authorities.

The Town and Country Planning Act 1990 makes provision¹ with regard to the distribution between local planning authorities² of certain functions³ and also with regard to the exercise of planning functions in Wales⁴.

The functions⁵ of a local planning authority of determining applications for planning permission⁶ and applications for a certificate of lawfulness of an existing or proposed use or development⁷ must, unless the application relates to a county matter⁸, be exercised by the district planning authority in England⁹. Where, however, the application relates to land¹⁰ in a National Park¹¹, that does not apply¹². Instead, where any such application, as well as any application for consent to the display of advertisements¹³, relating in each case to land in a National Park, or an application so relating for approval of a matter reserved under an outline planning permission¹⁴ falls to be determined by a National Park authority¹⁵, that authority must, before determining it, consult with any authority which would otherwise¹⁶ be the district planning authority for the area in which the land to which the application relates is situated¹⁷.

The Secretary of State¹⁸ or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales¹⁹, may include provision in a development order²⁰:

- 124 (1) enabling a local highway authority²¹ to impose restrictions on the grant by the local planning authority of planning permission for certain kinds of development²²;
- 125 (2) enabling a local highway authority to impose similar restrictions on the grant of planning permission by an urban development corporation²³;
- 126 (3) requiring liaison between county planning authorities and district planning authorities in England²⁴ or between local planning authorities and parish councils²⁵, or, in Wales, between local planning authorities and community councils²⁶, about specified matters²⁷.

A local planning authority which has the function of determining applications for planning permission must, if requested to do so by the council of any parish (or, in Wales, the council of any community or group of communities), notify the council of any relevant planning application²⁸ and of any alteration to that application accepted by the authority²⁹.

As from 24 August 2005³⁰, a local planning authority in England must not determine certain applications for planning permission³¹ unless it has complied with the statutory requirement to consult either the regional planning body (the 'RPB')³² or the county planning authority, as appropriate³³.

Further provision is made with regard to:

- 127 (a) the exercise of specific planning and special control functions by the appropriate planning authorities³⁴;
- 128 (b) claims for payment of compensation to, and payment of compensation by, the appropriate authorities³⁵; and
- 129 (c) the exercise of miscellaneous functions³⁶.

The Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 makes further provision as to the exercise of functions under that Act by different authorities³⁷.

TEXT AND NOTES 5-9--Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 1 para 3(1) further amended: Planning Act 2008 s 190(1), (6).

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/1. INTRODUCTION/(4) ADMINISTRATION/(iii) Local Planning Authorities/40. Restrictions on the exercise of functions by local authority executives.

40. Restrictions on the exercise of functions by local authority executives.

Local authorities may arrange for the discharge of their functions, including those as local planning authority¹, by committees and sub-committees, officers, joint committees and executives². Where a local authority in England has an executive, however, the functions of the authority under certain provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990³, the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990⁴ and the Planning (Hazardous Substances) Act 1990⁵ and under certain other relevant statutory provisions⁶, are not the responsibility of the executive⁷. It is not the responsibility of an executive of the authority:

- 130 (1) to impose any condition, limitation or other restriction on an approval, consent, licence, permission or registration granted in the exercise of the functions mentioned above⁸, or to determine any other terms to which any such approval, consent, licence, permission or registration is subject⁹;
- 131 (2) to determine whether, and in what manner, to enforce:
- 9
10. (a) any failure to comply with any such approval, consent, licence, permission or registration;
11. (b) any failure to comply with a condition, limitation or term to which any such approval, consent, licence, permission or registration is subject; or
12. (c) any other contravention relating thereto¹⁰;
- 10
- 132 (3) to amend, modify or vary any such approval, consent, licence, permission or registration, or any condition, limitation or term to which it is subject, or to revoke any such approval, consent, licence, permission or registration¹¹;
- 133 (4) to determine whether a charge should be made for any approval, consent, licence, permit or registration the issue of which is not the responsibility of an executive of the authority, or to determine, where a charge is made for any such approval, consent, licence, permit or registration, the amount of the charge¹².

The obtaining of information under the specified provision of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹³ as to interests in land may, but need not, be a function of the executive¹⁴.

Responsibility for other specified functions relating to the development plan¹⁵ is to be shared between the full authority and the executive, as follows:

- 134 (i) in connection with the discharge of the function of formulating or preparing plans and alterations which together comprise the development plan under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, so far as continuing in force¹⁶, certain designated actions¹⁷ are not to be the responsibility of an executive of the authority¹⁸; and except to the extent of those designated actions, any such function is to be the responsibility of such an executive¹⁹;
- 135 (ii) the function of amending, modifying, revising, varying, withdrawing or revoking any such plan, whenever approved or adopted, is to be the responsibility of an executive of the authority to the extent that the making of the amendment, modification, revision, variation, withdrawal or revocation is:
- 11
13. (A) required for giving effect to requirements of the Secretary of State²⁰ or a Minister of the Crown in relation to a plan submitted for his approval, or to any part so submitted; or
14. (B) is recommended by the person carrying out²¹ an independent examination of a development plan document; or
15. (C) is authorised by a determination made by the authority when approving or adopting the plan, as the case may be;
- 12
- 136 and is not be the responsibility of such an executive to any other extent²²;
- 137 (iii) in connection with the discharge of specified functions under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 relating to joint local development documents and joint committees²³, certain designated actions²⁴ are not to be the responsibility of an executive of the authority²⁵; and except to the extent of those designated actions, any such function is to be the responsibility of such an executive²⁶.

Separate provisions apply to Wales²⁷.

41. Investigation by Local Government Commissions.

The Local Government Act 1974 established the Commissions for Local Administration in England and in Wales¹. At the date at which this title states the law, the following provisions apply. The Welsh Administration Ombudsman² may be appointed as a local commissioner in Wales³. If not so appointed, he is a member of the Commission for Local Administration in Wales by virtue of his office⁴, and the Parliamentary Commissioner is a member of each of the Commissions⁵; but neither of them is a local commissioner by virtue of such membership⁶. A local commissioner may investigate, on complaint being made to him, administrative actions⁷ taken by or on behalf of local authorities or certain similar bodies⁸, other than those actions he is expressly precluded from investigating⁹. Details of the investigations undertaken, the findings as to whether or not there has been maladministration, and any recommendations for compensation to be paid, or remedial action taken, by the body in question are set out in the commissioners' annual reports¹⁰. Examples of matters investigated where maladministration has been found are:

- 138 (1) inconsistency in dealing with applications for planning permission from neighbours¹¹;
- 139 (2) failure to take adequately into account the risk of flooding to the complainants' land when granting planning permission for a new development¹²;
- 140 (3) failures of communication between the local council and the Environment Agency over development in a flood plain¹³;
- 141 (4) failure to deal with an application for prior approval to site a mobile telephone mast close to the complainants' homes within the correct time scales, leading to the granting of permission by default with a loss of amenity to the complainants¹⁴;
- 142 (5) failure to implement the settlement to which the local council had agreed following initial complaints about the siting of a telephone mast¹⁵;
- 143 (6) failure by the local planning authority, when considering an application for a new residential development on heavily contaminated former industrial land, to have appropriate regard to the difference in levels between the development site and existing properties¹⁶;
- 144 (7) failure to define an acceptable noise level in the specification for a skate park¹⁷ or to seek expert advice on potential noise nuisance before opening such a park¹⁸;
- 145 (8) a decision to grant planning permission taken in ignorance of the fact that the council had proposed, or would inevitably be proposing, to make up and adopt the street at issue, because of an absence of proper communication within the highways department¹⁹;

- 146 (9) failure by the council to notify the complainant of a planning application submitted by her neighbour for consent to build an extension to the neighbour's house²⁰;
- 147 (10) failure by one of the council's planning enforcement officers to deal with allegations of breaches of planning control and also the making of false claims about the actions that he had taken²¹;
- 148 (11) failure to observe the statutory duty to consult English Heritage when handling a planning application for a residential development which affected listed buildings and a conservation area at the rear of the complainant's property²²;
- 149 (12) failure to consider or investigate traffic generation issues properly when determining a planning application for a large extension to the community, sports and youth centre almost opposite the complainant's house; and failure to enforce one of the planning conditions attached to the permission²³;
- 150 (13) failure to give proper consideration to the complainant's objections before imposing a tree preservation order on all the trees in her garden²⁴;
- 151 (14) failure to investigate adequately the disturbance from an agricultural machinery company next door to the complainants' home to see if this amounted to a change of use of the premises²⁵; and
- 152 (15) failure to publicise properly an application for a new house adjacent to a conservation area²⁶.

Heads (1) to (15) are by way of illustration only and do not purport to be an exhaustive list.

As from a day to be appointed²⁷, however, the office of Welsh Administration Ombudsman is abolished and replaced by the office of Public Services Ombudsman for Wales²⁸.

179 whether it is a decision on appeal or a decision on an application referred to the Secretary of State or the Assembly for determination in the first instance;

180 (viii) any decision on an application for planning permission²⁵ for urgent Crown development²⁶.

Nothing in the above provisions, however, affects the exercise of any jurisdiction of any court in respect of any refusal or failure on the part of the Secretary of State or the Assembly to take any such action as is mentioned in heads (i) to (viii) above²⁷.

1 Ie by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt XII (ss 284-292) (as amended): see the text and notes 2-26 infra; and PARAS 44 et seq, 648 post.

2 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'simplified planning zone scheme' is to be construed in accordance with the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 83 (as prospectively repealed) (see PARA 428 post): s 336(1). As to simplified planning zones see PARA 426 et seq post.

3 Ie the provisions of ibid Pt X (ss 247-261) (as amended) except s 251(1): see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 791 et seq.

4 Ie an order under ibid s 277: see PARA 1025 post.

5 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 284(1)(b)-(d). Section 284(1)(a) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 ss 27, 84(6), Sch 4 Pt III para 30, Sch 19 Pt I) provided that the validity of a structure plan, local plan, minerals local plan, waste local plan or unitary development plan or any alteration or replacement of any such plan, whether before or after the plan, had been approved or adopted, was similarly not to be questioned; that provision is repealed by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 ss 118(1),

As to structure plans see PARA 176 et seq post; as to local plans under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt II (ss 13-54A) (repealed with savings) see PARAS 176 et seq, 195 et seq post; as to minerals local plans see PARA 196 post; as to waste local plans see PARA 197 post; and as to unitary development plans see PARA 155 et seq post.

6 Ie any order under ibid s 97 (as amended) (see PARA 541 post) or under the provisions of s 97 (as amended) as applied by or under any other provision of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990. For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'planning permission' means permission under Pt III (ss 55-106B) (as amended) (see PARA 217 et seq post): s 336(1) (definition amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 ss 32, 84(6), Sch 7 paras 8, 52(1), (2)(g), Sch 19 Pt I).

7 Ie any order under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 102 (as amended): see PARA 546 et seq post.

8 For the meaning of 'use' see PARA 221 note 4 post.

9 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'buildings or works' includes waste materials, refuse and other matters deposited on land, and references to the erection or construction of buildings or works are to be construed accordingly; and references to the removal of buildings or works include demolition of buildings and filling in of trenches: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1) (definition amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 7 paras 8, 52(1), (2)(b)). For the meanings of 'erection' and 'building' see PARA 2 note 10 ante.

10 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'tree preservation order' has the meaning given in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 198 (as amended) (see PARA 850 post): 336(1).

11 Ie any order made in pursuance of ibid s 221(5): see PARA 771 post.

12 Ie any order under ibid s 102(8), Sch 9 paras 1, 3, 5, or 6 (as amended): see PARAS 757, 758, 762-763 post.

14 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

15 As to the transfer of the majority of town and country planning functions, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, to the Assembly see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1 (as amended); and as to the Assembly see PARA 20 ante.

16 Ie under ibid s 77 (as amended): see PARA 483 post.

17 Ie any decision on an appeal under ibid s 78 (as amended): see PARA 598 post. In Chalgray Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment (1976) 33 P & CR 10 it was held that a letter declining jurisdiction was a decision for these purposes, although this was considered doubtful in Co-operative Retail Services Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment [1980] 1 All ER 449 at 453, [1980] 1 WLR 271 at 277, CA, obiter per Brandon LJ. A decision by the Secretary of State refusing to adjourn the start of a local inquiry into an appeal is not a decision for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 284(3)(b), but it seems that a refusal might be the subject of an application for judicial review (see PARA 650 post): Co-operative Retail Services Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment supra. An order requiring one party to pay the party's costs is not such a decision: North Kesteven District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment [1989] JPL 445.

18 Ie under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 95: see PARA 539 post.

19 Ie under ibid s 177(1)(a) (as substituted): see PARA 610 post at head (1) in the text.

20 Ie under ibid s 177(1)(b): see PARA 610 post at head (2) in the text.

21 For the meaning of 'purchase notice' see PARA 966 post.

22 For the meaning of 'land' see PARA 2 note 10 ante.

23 Ie any decision on an appeal under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 195(1) (as amended): see PARA 613 post.

24 Ie an application for consent under any regulations made in accordance with ibid s 220 (as amended) (see PARA 769 post) or s 221 (as amended) (see PARA 771 post).

25 Ie under ibid s 293A (as added): see PARA 456 post.

26 Ibid s 284(1)(f), (3) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 ss 31, 32, 84(6), Sch 6 paras 8, 24, Sch 7 paras 8, 41, Sch 19 Pts I, II; and by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 82(2), partly as from a day to be appointed under s 121). It has been held that this may be the case even though bad faith on the part of the Secretary of State is alleged: see Smith v East Elloe RDC [1956] AC 736, [1956] 1 All ER 855, HL; applied in R v Cotswold District Council, ex p Barrington Parish Council (1997) 75 P & CR 515 and followed in Collins v Scottish Ministers 2004 SLT 228.

In relation to any action which: (1) apart from the provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt XI (ss 262-283) (as amended) (see PARA 1009 et seq post) would fall to be taken by the Secretary of State or the Assembly and, if so taken, would be action falling within s 284(3) (as so amended), but (2) by virtue of Pt XI (ss 262-283) (as amended), is required to be taken by the Secretary of State (or the Assembly) and the appropriate minister, the provisions of s 284 (as amended) and s 288 (as amended) (see PARA 47 post) have effect, subject to s 292 (see infra), as if any reference in those provisions to the Secretary of State or the Assembly were a reference to the Secretary of State (or the Assembly) and the appropriate minister: s 291. For the meaning of 'the appropriate minister' see PARA 1012 post; and for the meaning of references to the Secretary of State and the appropriate minister see PARA 1012 post.

Where an order under s 247 (as amended), s 248 (as amended) or s 249 (as amended) (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 791 et seq) or s 277 (see PARA 1025 post) is subject to special parliamentary procedure, then (a) if the order is confirmed by Act of Parliament under the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act 1945 s 6 (see PARLIAMENT vol 34 (Reissue) PARA 926) the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 284 (as amended) and s 287 (as amended) (see PARA 46 post) do not apply to the order; (b) in any other case, s 287 (as amended) has effect in relation to the order as if, in s 287(4), for the reference to the date there mentioned there were substituted a reference to the date on which the order becomes operative under the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act 1945 s 6 ('the operative date'): Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 292(1).

Where by virtue of Pt XI (ss 262-283) (as amended) (see PARA 1009 et seq post) any such action as is mentioned in s 291 is required to be embodied in an order, and that order is subject to special parliamentary procedure, then (i) if the order in which the action is embodied is confirmed by Act of Parliament under the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act 1945 s 6, the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 284 (as amended) and s 288 (as amended) (see PARA 47 post) do not apply; and (ii) in any other case, s 288 (as amended) applies with the substitution for any reference to the date on which the action is taken of a reference to the operative date: s 292(2).

27 Ibid s 284(4). As to the application of ss 284, 288 (as amended): (1) to decisions of the Secretary of State or the Assembly on an appeal under the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 22, Sch 2 para 5 (old mining permissions) see PARA 725 note 8 post; (2) to a decision on an application referred to him or to it under Sch 2 para 7 see PARA 719 note 6 post; (3) to such decisions on an appeal under the Environment Act 1995 Sch 13 para 6 or Sch 13 para 11 (old mineral planning permissions) see PARA 740 note 11 post; (4) to a decision on an application referred to him or to it under Sch 13 para 13 see PARA 737 note 10 post; (5) to such decisions on an appeal under Sch 14 para 9(1) see PARA 740 note 11 post; (6) to a decision on an application referred to him or to it under Sch 14 para 8 see PARA 828 note 10 post; and (7) to the determination of a ROMP application by the Secretary of State or the Assembly without an environmental impact assessment see PARA 742 note 14 post.

43 Validity of certain orders, decisions, directions etc

TEXT AND NOTES 14-26--Head (i), words 'for planning permission' omitted: Town and Country Planning Act s 284(3) (amended by the Planning Act 2008 s 191(1), (3) (in force in relation to England)). Also, head (ix) any decision on an application referred to the Secretary of State under the 1990 Act s 76A: Town and Country Planning Act s 284(3) (amended by the Planning Act 2008 s 191(1), (2)).

NOTE 26--Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 82(2) in force for remaining purposes: SI 2006/1281.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/1. INTRODUCTION/(4) ADMINISTRATION/(iv) Validity of Strategies, Plans, Orders, Notices etc/44. Validity of enforcement notices and similar notices.

44. Validity of enforcement notices and similar notices.

The validity of an enforcement notice¹ may not, except by way of an appeal², be questioned in any proceedings whatsoever on any of the grounds on which such an appeal may be brought³; but this provision does not apply to criminal proceedings for breach of an enforcement notice brought⁴ against a person who:

- 181 (1) has held an interest in the land⁵ since before the enforcement notice was issued⁶;
 - 182 (2) did not have a copy of the enforcement notice served⁷ on him;
 - 183 (3) satisfies the court:
- 17
- 21. (a) that he did not know and could not reasonably have been expected to know that the enforcement notice had been issued; and
 - 22. (b) that his interests have been substantially prejudiced by the failure to serve him with a copy of it⁸.

Proceedings which have already been begun in anticipation of an enforcement notice being issued may be stayed in so far as they relate to issues covered by the statutory grounds of appeal⁹. A challenge to the validity of an enforcement notice on other grounds, such as that the notice is a nullity, is not, however, precluded by the above provisions¹⁰.

The validity of a notice which has been served¹¹ on the owner¹² and occupier of the land by a local planning authority under its statutory power to require proper maintenance of land may not, except by way of an appeal¹³, be questioned in any proceedings whatsoever on either of the specified¹⁴ grounds¹⁵; but this provision does not prevent the validity of such a notice being questioned on either of those grounds in proceedings brought¹⁶ against a person on whom the notice was not served, but who has held an interest in the land since before the notice was served on the owner and occupier of the land, if he did not appeal¹⁷ against the notice¹⁸.

1 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'enforcement notice' means a notice served under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 172 (as substituted) (see PARA 561 post): s 336(1). As to the service of notices see PARA 54 post.

2 Ie under ibid Pt VII (ss 171A-196C) (as amended): see PARA 551 et seq post.

3 Ibid s 285(1) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 ss 32, 84(6), Sch 7 paras 8, 42(a), Sch 19 Pt I). The Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 285(1) (as amended) does not prevent the validity of a stop notice being questioned: see B v Hertfordshire County Council [2002] EWCA Crim 1941, [2002] All ER (D) 461 (Jul). As to challenging the validity of stop notices see PARA 45 post.

In relation to special enforcement notices the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 285(1) (as so amended) has effect as if the references therein to an enforcement notice were references to a special enforcement notice, and with the substitution for the words 'Part VII' of the words 'section 295(3)': Town and Country Planning (Special Enforcement Notices) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/1562, reg 2, Schedule. As to special enforcement notices see PARA 572 post.

In relation to hazardous substances contravention notices the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 285(1) (as amended) has effect with the substitution for 'an enforcement notice' of 'a hazardous substances contravention notice': Planning (Hazardous Substances) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/656, reg 22(1), Sch 4 para 10(a). As to hazardous substances contravention notices see PARA 1270 et seq post.

8 Ibid s 285(2) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 7 paras 8, 42(b), Sch 19 Pt I). It is clear from the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 285(2) (as so amended) that the statutory provisions are intended to encourage those who own, occupy or otherwise have interests in land to take all necessary steps to advise themselves of the planning status of the land: R v Collet, R v Furminger, R v Nazari, R v Pope, R v Bandar [1994] 2 All ER 372, [1994] 1 WLR 475, CA.

For transitional provisions see the Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990 s 5(1), Sch 3 para 10(1)-(5).

In relation to special enforcement notices the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 285(2) (as so amended) has effect as if the references therein to an enforcement notice were references to a special enforcement notice, and with the following modifications: (1) for s 285(2)(a) there is to be substituted '(a) has occupied the land since before the special enforcement notice was issued under section 294(3)'; and (2) in s 285(2)(b), for the words 'that Part' there must be substituted the words 'section 295(1)': Town and Country Planning (Special Enforcement Notices) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/1562, reg 2, Schedule.

In relation to hazardous substances contravention notices the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 285(2) (as so amended) has effect with the substitution for 'enforcement notice' in each place where it occurs of 'hazardous substances contravention notice': Planning (Hazardous Substances) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/656, Sch 4 para 10(b).

10 Eg where the enforcement notice is alleged to be a nullity. An enforcement notice is a nullity and thus devoid of legal effect if it is defective upon its face: see Miller-Mead v Minister of Housing and Local Government [1963] 2 QB 196 at 226-227, [1963] 1 All ER 459 at 470, CA, per Upjohn LJ (an enforcement notice would be a nullity if it 'was hopelessly ambiguous and uncertain, so that the owner or occupier could not tell in what respect it was alleged that he had developed land without permission or ... failed to comply with a condition or ... that he could not tell with reasonable certainty what steps he had to take to remedy the alleged breaches'). A notice may, however, be valid notwithstanding minor discrepancies remediable on appeal under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 174(1) (see PARA 603 post) unless the totality of the notice amounts to an injustice: see Patel v Betts [1978] JPL 109, DC; Wiesenfeld v Secretary of State for the Environment [1992] 1 PLR 32.

45 Challenges to validity on grounds of authority's powers

TEXT AND NOTES 1-6--Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 286(1) further amended: Planning Act 2008 s 190(1), (5).

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/1. INTRODUCTION/(4) ADMINISTRATION/(iv) Validity of Strategies, Plans, Orders, Notices etc/46. Proceedings for questioning validity of simplified planning zone schemes etc.

46. Proceedings for questioning validity of simplified planning zone schemes etc.

A person aggrieved¹ by a relevant document may make an application to the High Court² on the ground that:

- 190 (1) it is not within the appropriate power³; or
- 191 (2) a procedural requirement⁴ has not been complied with⁵; and for these purposes a 'relevant document' is:

- 192 (a) a simplified planning zone scheme⁶ or an alteration of such a scheme;
- 193 (b) an order under specified provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 relating to highways⁷; or
- 194 (c) an order under the relevant provisions of that Act⁸ relieving statutory undertakers from obligations rendered impracticable⁹.

Such an application must be made within six weeks from the relevant date¹⁰.

The High Court may make an interim order suspending the operation of the relevant document either wholly or in part and either generally or as it affects the property of the applicant¹¹. An interim order has effect until the proceedings are finally determined¹².

If the High Court is satisfied:

- 195 (i) that a relevant document is to any extent outside the appropriate power;
- 196 (ii) that the interests of the applicant have been substantially prejudiced¹³ by a failure to comply with a procedural requirement, the High Court may quash the relevant document either wholly or in part and either generally or as it affects the property of the applicant¹⁴.

1 As to the meaning of 'person aggrieved' see JUDICIAL REVIEW vol 61 (2010) PARA 656.

2 As to the mode of application see CPR Sch 1 RSC Ord 94 rr 1-2; and PARA 42 note 11 ante.

3 For these purposes, the appropriate power is (1) in the case of a simplified planning zone scheme or an alteration of the scheme, the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt III (ss 55-106B) (as amended) (see PARA 213 et seq post); (2) in the case of an order under ss 247, 248, 249, 251, 257, 258 (as amended) (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 791 et seq) or s 277 (see PARA 1025 post), the section under which the order is made: s 287(3D) (s 287(1)-(3D) substituted by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 118(1), Sch 6 paras 1, 9(1), (2)). At the date at which this title states the law, that substitution was not in force in relation to Wales: see note 14 infra.

4 'Procedural requirement' is not defined for these purposes; cf para 42 note 10 ante. As to applications under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 287 (as originally enacted and as amended, but prior to the amendments made by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 cited in note 3 supra, notes 10, 14 infra) where there has been a procedural error, see First Corporate Shipping Ltd v North Somerset Council [2001] EWCA Civ 693, [2002] PLCR 106, CA (application under s 287 (as amended) not most obvious or appropriate remedy).

For these purposes, the 'relevant date' is: (1) in the case of an application in respect of a simplified planning zone scheme or an alteration of such a scheme, the date of the publication of the first notice of the approval or adoption of the scheme or alteration required by regulations under Sch 7 para 13 (as amended) (see PARA 429 post); (2) in the case of an application in respect of an order under ss 247, 248, 249 or 251 (as amended) (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 791 et seq), the date on which the notice required by s 252(10) (as amended) is first published; (3) in the case of an application in respect of an order under s 257 or s 258, the date on which the notice required by s 259(4), Sch 14 para 7 is first published in accordance therewith; (4) in the case of an application in respect of an order under s 277 (see PARA 1025 post), the date on which the notice required by s 277(6) is first published; but subject, in the case of those orders mentioned in heads (2), (4) supra to which s 292 (see PARA 43 note 26 ante) applies, to s 292: s 287(5) (amended by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 ss 118(1), 120, Sch 6 paras 1, 9(1), (3), Sch 9). 13 An applicant is substantially prejudiced if, by reason of a failure to serve statutory notices, he is deprived of an opportunity of being heard (Brown v Ministry of Housing and Local Government [1953] 2 All ER 1385, [1953] 1 WLR 1370; George v Secretary of State for the Environment (1979) 38 P & CR 609, CA) but not if, in spite of a failure to notify him of his rights of appeal, he took full advantage of those rights (Re Bowman, South Shields (Thames Street) Clearance Order 1931 [1932] 2 KB 621). An applicant is substantially prejudiced if refused an adequate adjournment to consider letters produced for the first time at a public inquiry (Performance Cars Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment (1977) 34 P & CR 92, CA) but not where, in spite of the failure of the local planning authority to serve a copy of a ministerial direction as to the issues to be considered at a public inquiry and also a failure to serve a statement of its own case as required by inquiry procedure rules, the applicant was aware of the issues considered by the Secretary of State to be relevant and dealt with those issues at the public inquiry (Davies v Secretary of State for Wales (1976) 33 P & CR 330). A breach of the rules of natural justice outside inquiry procedure rules can lead to substantial prejudice: Reading Borough Council v Secretary of State for the Environment and Commercial Union Properties (Investments) Ltd [1986] JPL 115. It is not necessary for the applicant to prove that the decision would have been different had the requirements been satisfied; it is sufficient that there is the risk that it might have been different: Hibernian Property Co Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment (1973) 27 P & CR 197 at 217-218 per Browne J; approved in Performance Cars Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment supra. An applicant is not, however, prejudiced by the failure of an inspector to record a legal submission if that submission was irrelevant or if in fact the Secretary of State correctly interpreted the law: AB Motor Co of Hull Ltd v Minister of Housing and Local Government (1969) 211 Estates Gazette 289; North Surrey Water Co v Secretary of State for the Environment (1976) 34 P & CR 140.

An applicant may be prejudiced by the failure of the Secretary of State to give intelligible reasons for his decision (Kent Messenger Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment [1976] JPL 372; French Kier Developments Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment [1977] 1 All ER 296); or where the reasons given are inadequate (Save Britain's Heritage v Secretary of State for the Environment [1991] 2 All ER 10 at 24; sub nom Save Britain's Heritage v Number 1 Poultry Ltd [1991] 1 WLR 153 at 167, HL per Lord Bridge). The inclusion of an invalid reason among good reasons will not necessarily invalidate the decision: Steele v Minister of Housing and Local Government and West Ham County Borough Council (1956) 6 P & CR 386, CA. As to the duty to give reasons see PARA 654 post. See also Linden Developments Ltd v Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions [2002] EWCA Civ 1737, (2002) Times, 12 December, [2002] All ER (D) 402 (Nov) (no prejudice suffered simply because applicant not informed by inspector exactly what form of development would meet his objections). As to the relevance of substantial prejudice when the document in question is outside the appropriate power see Bersted Parish Council v Arun District Council [2003] EWHC 3419 (Admin), [2004] 2 P & CR 184, [2003] All ER (D) 363 (Dec). All the cases cited in this note were decided before the amendments to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 made by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 which are cited in notes 3, 10 supra and in note 14 infra.

14 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 287(3A), (3B) (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

At the date at which this title states the law, s 287(1)-(3) (as originally enacted; amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 ss 27, 84(6), Sch 4 para 31, Sch 19 Pt I) applied for transitional purposes in Wales: see PARAS 148 note 11, 979 note 8 post. Those provisions read as follows: If any person aggrieved by a unitary development plan or a local plan, minerals local plan or waste local plan or by any alteration or replacement of any such plan or structure plan, desires to question the validity of the plan or, as the case may be, the alteration or replacement on the ground: (1) that it is not within the powers conferred by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt II (ss 110-54A) (as amended; repealed with savings); or (2) that any requirement of that Part or of any regulations made under it has not been complied with in relation to the approval or adoption of the plan or, as the case may be, its alteration or replacement, he may make an application to the High Court: s 287(1) (as so enacted and amended). On any such application the High Court: (a) may by interim order wholly or in part suspend the operation of the plan or, as the case may be, the alteration or replacement, either generally or in so far as it affects any property of the applicant, until the final determination of the proceedings; (b) if satisfied that the plan or, as the case may be, the alteration or replacement is wholly or to any extent outside the powers conferred by Pt II (as amended; repealed with savings), or that the interests of the applicant have been substantially prejudiced by the failure to comply with any requirement of that Part or of any regulations made under it, may wholly or in part quash the plan or, as the case may be, the alteration or replacement either generally or in so far as it affects any property of the applicant: s 287(2) (as so enacted and amended). The Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 287(1), (2) (as so enacted and amended) applies subject to any necessary modifications, to a simplified planning zone scheme or an alteration of such a scheme or to an order under ss 247, 248, 249, 251, 257, 258 (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES) or s 277 (see PARA 1025 post) as it applies to any plan or any alteration or replacement there mentioned: s 287(3) (as so enacted and amended). In its application to simplified planning zone schemes and their alteration, the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 287(1), (2) (as amended) has effect as if it referred to Pt III (ss 55-106B) (as amended) (see PARA 217 et seq post) instead of Pt II (ss 10-54A) (as amended; repealed with savings): s 287(6) (repealed by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 ss 118(1), 120, Sch 6 paras 9(1), (4), Sch 9 subject to the transitional provisions set out in PARAS 148 note 11, 979 note 8 post). Any such application must be made within six weeks from the relevant date: s 287(4). For these purposes, the relevant date is, in the case of an application in respect of such a plan as is mentioned in s 287(1) (as so enacted and amended), the date of the publication of the first notice of the approval or adoption of the plan, alteration or replacement required by regulations under s 26 (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 156 post) or, as the case may be, s 53 (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 177 post); (2) in the case of an application by virtue of s 287(3) (as so enacted and amended), the date set out in note 10 heads (1)-(4) supra (see s 287(5) (as originally enacted: amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 4 para 31(b), Sch 19 Pt I). As to unitary development plans see PARA 155 et seq post; as to local plans see PARAS 176 et seq, 195 et seq post; as to minerals local plans see PARA 196 post; as to waste local plans see PARA 197 post; and as to structure plans see PARA 176 et seq post.

A decision of the Secretary of State to approve called-in proposals for a local plan or for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan or local plan, or a decision of a local planning authority to adopt a structure plan or local plan, is a question of policy and the court cannot interfere with matters entrusted by Parliament to the discretion of the Secretary of State or local planning authority unless the decision is beyond the powers conferred by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 or is otherwise improperly reached: see Re City of Plymouth (City Centre) Declaratory Order 1946, Robinson v Minister of Town and Country Planning [1947] KB 702, [1947] 1 All ER 851, CA; Earl of Iveagh v Minister of Housing and Local Government [1964] 1 QB 395 at 409, [1963] 3 All ER 817 at 820, CA, per Lord Denning MR; Edwin H Bradley & Sons Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment [1983] JPL 43 (the decision of the Secretary of State to approve a policy included in a structure plan may be quashed on the grounds that (1) in reaching his conclusion he took into account some matter which he ought not to have taken into account or failed to take into account some matter which he ought to have taken into account; (2) he failed to give proper reasons; or (3) he came to a decision so unreasonable that no reasonable Secretary of State could ever have come to it). Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/1. INTRODUCTION/(4) ADMINISTRATION/(iv) Validity of Strategies, Plans, Orders, Notices etc/47. Proceedings for questioning validity of other orders, decisions and directions.

47. Proceedings for questioning validity of other orders, decisions and directions.

If any person:

197 (1) is aggrieved¹ by any specified order² and wishes to question the validity of that order on the grounds:

23. (a) that the order is not within the statutory powers³; or

24. (b) that any of the relevant requirements⁴ have not been complied with in relation to that order; or

198 (2) is aggrieved by any specified action⁵ on the part of the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales and wishes to question the validity of that action on the grounds:

21

25. (a) that the action is not within the statutory powers⁶; or

26. (b) that any of the relevant requirements have not been complied with in relation to that action, he may make an application to the High Court⁷.

Without prejudice to the above provisions, if the authority directly concerned⁸ with any such order or with any such action on the part of the Secretary of State or the Assembly wishes to question the validity of that order or action on any of the grounds mentioned in head (1) or head (2) above, the authority may make an application to the High Court⁹.

An application must be made within six weeks from:

199 (i) the date on which the order is confirmed¹⁰; or

200 (ii) in the case of certain orders revoking or modifying planning permission which take effect without confirmation¹¹, the date on which the order takes effect; or, as the case may be,

201 (iii) the date on which the action is taken¹².

On any such application the High Court:

202 (A) may by interim order suspend the operation of the order or action, the validity of which is questioned by the application, until the final determination of the proceedings¹³;

203 (B) if satisfied that the order or action in question is not within the statutory powers¹⁴, or that the interests of the applicant have been substantially prejudiced¹⁵ by a failure to comply with any of the relevant requirements in relation to it, may quash that order or action¹⁶.

The court is not, however, able to adjudicate on the merits of the claim; that is the function of the Secretary of State or his inspector and the court may act only where a claimant is able to demonstrate an error of law on the part of the decision-maker¹⁷.

1 As to the meaning of 'person aggrieved' see JUDICIAL REVIEW VOL 61 (2010) PARA 656. See also Morbaine Ltd v First Secretary of State [2004] EWHC 1708 (Admin), [2004] All ER (D) 313 (Jul) (commercial opportunism falls short of the interest which has to be shown to give a claimant standing to complain under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 288 (as amended)); Hill v First Secretary of State [2005] EWHC 1128 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 247 (May) (claimant was not a 'person aggrieved'). For a comparison of the 'sufficient interest' test for the purposes of judicial review, the 'person aggrieved' test under s 288 (as amended), the 'victim' test under the Human Rights Act 1998 s 7 and the 'direct and individual concern' test under the EU Treaty art 230 see Ligere 'Locus Standi and the Public Interest--A Hotchpotch of Legal Principles' [2005] JPL 292.

2 le any such order as is mentioned in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 284(2): see PARA 43 ante at heads (a)-(e) in the text.

3 le the powers of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990.

4 For these purposes, 'the relevant requirements', in relation to any order or action to which ibid s 288 (as amended) applies, means any requirements of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 or the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992, or of any order, regulations or rules made under either of those Acts which are applicable to that order or action: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 288(9) (amended by the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 s 18(1), Sch 3 para 25).

5 le any such action on the part of the Secretary of State or the Assembly as is mentioned in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 284(3) (as amended): see PARA 43 ante at heads (i)-(viii) in the text.

6 See note 3 supra. For the purposes of ibid Pt XII (ss 284-292) (as amended), the reference in s 288 (as amended) to action of the Secretary of State or the Assembly which is not within the powers of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 is to be taken to extend to a grant of planning permission by the Secretary of State or the Assembly in contravention of the Town and Country Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) (England and Wales) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/293, reg 3 (see PARA 491 post) or reg 25(1) (see PARA 512 post): reg 30. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante; as to the transfer of functions under those regulations and under the majority of the provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, to the Assembly see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1 (as amended); and as to the Assembly see PARA 20 ante.

As to the application of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 288 (as amended) to decisions of the Secretary of State or the Assembly on an appeal under the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 22, Sch 2 para 5 or an application referred to him or to it under Sch 2 para 7 (old mining permissions) see PARAS 725 note 8, 719 note 6 respectively post. See also Earthline Ltd v Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions [2002] EWCA Civ 1599, [2003] 1 P & CR 393, [2002] All ER (D) 64 (Nov).

An order or action will be beyond the powers so conferred if (1) the Secretary of State has acted on no evidence; or (2) he has come to a conclusion to which, on the evidence, he could not reasonably have come; or (3) he has given a wrong interpretation to the wording of the statute; or (4) he has taken into consideration matters which he ought not to have taken into account; or (5) he has failed to take into account matters which he ought to have considered; or (6) he has otherwise gone wrong in law: Ashbridge Investments Ltd v Minister of Housing and Local Government [1965] 3 All ER 371 at 374, [1965] 1 WLR 1320 at 1325, CA, per Lord Denning MR. See also North Surrey Water Co v Secretary of State for the Environment (1976) 34 P & CR 140; Seddon Properties Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment and Macclesfield Borough Council [1978] JPL 835. If the factor wrongly taken into account (or omitted) was insignificant, or the wrong taking into account (or omission) actually operated in favour of the person who later claimed to be aggrieved by the decision, the court, in the exercise of its discretion, may refuse to quash the order or action: Chichester District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment and Hall Aggregates (South Coast) Ltd [1981] JPL 591. Where the jurisdiction to make an order depends on particular facts, the order may be quashed if there is no evidence to support those facts: Re Ripon (Highfield) Housing Confirmation Order 1938, White and Collins v Minister of Health [1939] 2 KB 838, [1939] 3 All ER 548, CA; Coleen Properties Ltd v Minister of Housing and Local Government [1971] 1 All ER 1049, [1971] 1 WLR 433, CA. If the course which events followed has resulted in that degree of unfairness that is commonly referred to as a departure from the rules of natural justice, it may equally be said that the order is not within the powers of the Act and that a requirement of the Act has not been complied with: Fairmount Investments Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment [1976] 2 All ER 865 at 872, [1976] 1 WLR 1255 at 1263, HL, per Lord Russell of Killowen.

7 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 288(1), (4). See also ss 291, 292 (cited in PARA 43 note 26 ante). Section 288 (as amended) applies to a correction notice issued under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 57 (see PARA 56 post) as if it were an action on the part of the Secretary of State or the Assembly to which the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 288 (as amended) applies, if the decision document in respect of which the correction notice is given records a decision mentioned in (1) the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 59(4)(a) (see PARA 56 note 4 head (1) post); or (2) s 59(4)(b) (see PARA 56 note 4 head (2) post), if it is a decision mentioned in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 177 (as amended) (grant or modification of planning permission on appeal against enforcement notice: see PARA 610 post): Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 58(4).

There is no general rule that a party to a planning appeal decision is to be prevented from raising, in a challenge to that decision under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 288 (as amended), an argument that has not been advanced in representations made on the appeal: South Oxfordshire District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions [2000] 2 All ER 667, [2000] 02 LS Gaz R 32.

It is not for the court to go into matters again and fresh evidence should be admitted only in exceptional cases: Ashbridge Investments Ltd v Minister of Housing and Local Government [1965] 3 All ER 371, [1965] 1 WLR 1320, CA; and see Glover v Secretary of State for the Environment [1981] JPL 110. Nevertheless evidence may be admitted to show (1) what material was in the possession and thus within the knowledge of the Secretary of State (Chichester District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment and Hall Aggregates (South Coast) Ltd [1981] JPL 591; Hollis v Secretary of State for the Environment and Woking Borough Council and Martin Grant Homes Ltd [1983] JPL 164); (2) that a matter of real importance had been wholly omitted from the inspector's report or had been completely misunderstood or put in an entirely wrong or misleading way so that the Secretary of State was either unaware of the matter or never had the real picture (East Hampshire County Council v Secretary of State for the Environment and Josephi [1978] JPL 182 at 183; affd [1979] JPL 533, CA); or (3) that there was no evidence upon which the Secretary of State or his inspector could properly have come to the conclusion which he reached (H Sabey & Co Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment [1978] 1 All ER 586). See also Wychavon District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment (1994) 69 P & CR 394, [1994] 3 PLR 42, CA (costs to be awarded to Secretary of State on unsuccessful challenge); Thurrock Borough Council v Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions [2000] All ER (D) 2258, CA (court, in exercise of its discretion to amend a claim form, treated an application for permission to appeal under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 289(6) (as substituted) (see PARA 648 post) as an application under s 288 (as amended)).

8 For these purposes, any reference to the authority directly concerned with any order or action to which the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 288 (as amended) applies (1) in relation to any such decision as is mentioned in s 284(3)(f) (see PARA 43 ante at head (v) in the text), is a reference to the council on which the notice in question was served and, in a case where the Secretary of State or the Assembly has modified such a notice, wholly or in part, by substituting another local authority or statutory undertakers for that council, includes a reference to that local authority or those statutory undertakers; (2) in any other case, is a reference to the authority which made the order in question or made the decision or served the notice to which the proceedings in question relate, or which referred the matter to the Secretary of State or the Assembly, or, where the order or notice in question was made or served by him or by the Assembly, the authority named in the order or notice: s 288(10). The references in head (a) supra to a council and to a local authority are to be construed as if a National Park authority were a local authority for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 and the National Park for which it is the local planning authority were its area: see s 147A (added by the Environment Act 1995 s 67(5)); and PARA 966 note 20 post. As to National Park authorities see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 526 et seq. For the meaning of 'local authority' see PARA 3 note 3 ante; and for the meaning of 'statutory undertakers' see PARA 1009 post.

9 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 288(2).

10 For these purposes, references to the confirmation of an order include the confirmation of an order subject to modifications as well as the confirmation of an order in the form in which it was made: ibid s 288(8). The date refers to the date on which the decision letter of the Secretary of State is signed and date stamped: Griffiths v Secretary of State for the Environment [1983] 2 AC 51, [1983] 1 All ER 439, HL; followed in Stainer v Secretary of State for the Environment and Shepway District Council (1992) 65 P & CR 310 (where it was held that the six-week time limit for making the application includes in its calculation days such as Christmas Day and bank holidays). See also Low v Secretary of State for Wales [1993] COD 393, [1994] JPL 41, CA (where alleged administrative error at court offices resulted in application being made outside the six-week time limit, an inference was drawn in favour of the applicant; but as to the caution to be exercised in applying pre-CPR authorities see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 33). (vi) General Administrative Provisions

53. Power to require information as to interests in land.

For the purpose of enabling the Secretary of State¹ or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales² or a local authority³ to make an order or issue or serve any notice or other document⁴ which he or it is authorised or required under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 to make, issue or serve, the Secretary of State or the Assembly, or the local authority, may by notice in writing⁵ require the occupier of any premises and any person who, either directly or indirectly, receives rent in respect of any premises to give in writing such information as to the following matters as may be so specified⁶:

- 225 (1) the nature of the interest in the premises of the person on whom the notice is served;
- 226 (2) the name and postal address of any other person known to him as having an interest in the premises;
- 227 (3) the purpose for which the premises are being used;
- 228 (4) the time when that use⁷ began;
- 229 (5) the name and postal address of any person known to the person on whom the notice is served as having used the premises for that purpose;
- 230 (6) the time when any activities being carried out on the premises began⁸.

Any such notice may require information to be given within 21 days after the date on which it is served, or such longer time as may be specified in it, or as the Secretary of State or the Assembly or, as the case may be, the local authority may allow⁹.

Any person who without reasonable excuse fails to comply with a notice so served on him is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹⁰.

Any person who, having been required by such a notice to give any information, knowingly makes any misstatement in respect of it is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine, or to both, or on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum¹¹.

As from a day to be appointed¹², the above provisions do not apply to an interest in Crown land¹³ which is not a private interest¹⁴, but the following provisions apply¹⁵. For such a purpose as is described above¹⁶, the Secretary of State or the Assembly may request the appropriate authority¹⁷ to give him or it such information as to the matters mentioned in heads (1) to (6) above as he or it specifies in the request¹⁸; and the appropriate authority must comply with such a request except to the extent:

- 231 (a) that the matter is not within the knowledge of the authority; or
- 232 (b) that to do so will disclose information as to any of the specified matters¹⁹ relating to national security and to the measures taken or to be taken to ensure the security of any premises or property²⁰.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

2 As to the transfer of functions under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 330 (as amended), s 330A (as prospectively added), so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, to the Assembly see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1 (as amended); and as to the Assembly see PARA 20 ante.

As to National Park authorities see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 526 et seq.

If the Secretary of State or the Assembly so provides by order, the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 330 (as amended) has effect in relation to an urban development corporation specified in the order and to land in that corporation's area as if: (1) after the words 'local authority' in the first place where they occur in s 330(1) there were inserted the words 'or an urban development corporation'; and (2) after those words, in the second place where they occur in s 330(1) and in s 330(3) there were inserted the words 'or corporation': Local Government, Planning and Land Act 1980 s 149(3)(b), Sch 29 Pt II para 9 (respectively amended and substituted by the Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990 s 4, Sch 2 para 44(6), (13)). 53 Power to require information as to interests in land

TEXT AND NOTE 12--Day now appointed: SI 2006/1281.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/1. INTRODUCTION/(4) ADMINISTRATION/(vi) General Administrative Provisions/54. Service of notices.

54. Service of notices.

Any notice or other document required or authorised to be served or given under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 may be served or given either:

- 233 (1) by delivering it to the person on whom it is to be served or to whom it is to be given; or
- 234 (2) by leaving it at the usual or last known place of abode of that person or, in a case where an address for service has been given by that person, at that address; or
- 235 (3) by sending it in a prepaid registered letter, or by the recorded delivery service, addressed to that person at his usual or last known place of abode or, in a case where an address for service has been given by that person, at that address; or
- 236 (4) in a case where an address¹ for service using electronic communications² has been given by that person, by sending it using electronic communications, in accordance with the statutory condition as to accessibility, legibility and permanence³ and subject to specified exceptions where electronic communications may not be used⁴; or
- 237 (5) in the case of an incorporated company or body, by delivering it to the secretary or clerk of the company or body at its registered or principal office or sending it in a prepaid registered letter, or by the recorded delivery service, addressed to the secretary or clerk of the company or body at that office⁵.

Where the notice or document is required or authorised to be served on any person as having an interest in premises, and the name of that person cannot be ascertained after reasonable inquiry⁶, or where the notice or document is required or authorised to be served on any person as an occupier of premises, the notice or document is taken to be duly served if:

- 238 (a) it is addressed to him either by name or by the description of 'the owner' or, as the case may be, 'the occupier' of the premises, describing them, and is delivered or sent in the manner specified in head (1), head (2) or head (3) above; or
 - 239 (b) it is so addressed and is marked⁷ in such a manner as may be prescribed⁸ for securing that it is plainly identifiable as a communication of importance and:
- 23 27. (i) it is sent to the premises in a prepaid registered letter or by the recorded delivery service and is not returned to the authority sending it; or
 - 28. (ii) it is delivered to some person on those premises, or is affixed conspicuously to some object on those premises⁹.
- 24

Where the notice or other document is required to be served on or given to all persons who have interests in or are occupiers of premises comprised in any land¹⁰, and it appears to the authority required or authorised to give the notice or other document that any part of the land is unoccupied, the notice or document is taken to be duly served on all persons having interests in, and on any occupiers of, premises comprised in that part of the land, other than a person who has given to that authority an address for the service of the notice or document on him, if it is addressed to 'the owners and any occupiers' of that part of the land, describing it, and is affixed conspicuously to some object on the land¹¹.

As from a day to be appointed¹², any notice or other document required under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 to be served on the Crown must be served on the appropriate authority¹³; and the provisions set out above do not apply for the purposes of the service of such a notice or document¹⁴.

1 For these purposes, unless the context otherwise requires, 'address', in relation to electronic communications, means any number or address used for the purposes of such communications: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1) (definition added in relation to England by the Town and Country Planning (Electronic Communications) (England) Order 2003, SI 2003/956, art 6(1), (2) and in relation to Wales by the Town and Country Planning (Electronic Communications) (Wales) (No 1) Order 2004, SI 2004/3156, art 6(1), (2)).

2 For these purposes, 'electronic communication' has the same meaning as in the Electronic Communications Act 2000 (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 947; TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND BROADCASTING vol 45(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 616): Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1) (definition as added: see note 1 supra).

3 In accordance with the condition set out in ibid s 329(3A) (as added). That condition is that the notice or other document must be: (1) capable of being accessed by the person mentioned in head (4) in the text; (2) legible in all material respects; and (3) in a form sufficiently permanent to be used for subsequent reference; and for this purpose 'legible in all material respects' means that the information contained in the notice or document is available to that person to no lesser extent than it would be if served or given by means of a notice or document in printed form: s 329(3A) (s 329(1)(cc), (3A), (3B) (added in relation to England by the Town and Country Planning (Electronic Communications) (England) Order 2003, SI 2003/956, art 4(1)-(3) and in relation to Wales by the Town and Country Planning (Electronic Communications) (Wales) (No 1) Order 2004, SI 2004/3156, art 4(1)-(3)).

4 In subject to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 329(3B) (as added). Section 329(1)(cc) (as added) (see head (4) in the text) does not apply to (1) service of a planning contravention notice (see PARA 559 post); (2) service of a copy of an enforcement notice by a local planning authority (see PARA 561 post); (3) giving of notice under s 173A (as substituted) of the exercise of powers conferred by s 173A(1) (as substituted) (see PARA 566 post); (4) service under s 181(4) (as amended) of notice of a local planning authority's intention to take steps required by an enforcement notice (see PARA 571 post); (5) service of an enforcement notice issued by the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales (see PARA 562 post); (6) service of a stop notice, or of notice of withdrawal of a stop notice, by a local planning authority (see PARAS 577, 579 post); (7) service of a stop notice by the Secretary of State or the Assembly (see PARA 580 post); (8) service of a breach of condition notice or of notice of withdrawal of a breach of condition notice (see PARA 583 post); (9) giving of notice of the making of a tree preservation order, or service of a copy of such an order, in accordance with regulations under s 199 (see PARAS 856, 858 post); (10) service of a notice under s 215 requiring steps to be taken to remedy the condition of any land (see PARA 887 post); (11) service of a notice under s 330 (as amended) requiring information as to interests in land (see PARA 53 ante); s 329(3B) (as added: see note 3 supra).

Where an electronic communication is used for the purpose of serving or giving a notice or other document on or to any person for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 and the communication is received by that person outside that person's business hours, it is to be taken to have been received on the next working day; and for these purposes, 'working day' means a day which is not a Saturday, Sunday, bank holiday or other public holiday: s 336(4A) (added relation to England by the Town and Country Planning (Electronic Communications) (England) Order 2003, SI 2003/956, art 6(1), (3) and in relation to Wales by the Town and Country Planning (Electronic Communications) (Wales) (No 1) Order 2004, SI 2004/3156, art 6(1), (3)).

5 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 329(1) (as amended: see note 3 supra). Section 329 (as amended) is without prejudice to the Local Government Act 1972 s 233 (as amended) (service of notice by local authorities: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 576): Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 329(4) (added by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 32, Sch 7 paras 8, 51). As to service of a stop notice under the provisions of the Local Government Act 1972 s 233 (as amended) see Gloucestershire County Council v Keyway (Gloucester) Ltd [2003] EWHC 3012 (Admin), [2003] All ER (D) 202 (Nov) (not necessary to prove delivery into the hands of a director or company secretary for effective service on a body corporate under that provision).

As to the additional requirements for service in the case of ecclesiastical property see PARA 17 ante.

6 As to the power to require information as to interests in land see PARA 53 ante.

7 The manner in which any such notice or document must be marked in order that it is taken to be duly served is by inscribing clearly and legibly upon the notice or document, and upon the envelope containing it, the words 'Important--This Communication affects your Property': Town and Country Planning General Regulations 1992, SI 1992/1492, reg 13.

55. Offences by corporations.

Where an offence under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 which has been committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of:

- 240 (1) a director¹, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate; or
- 241 (2) any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, he as well as the body corporate is guilty of that offence and is liable to be proceeded against accordingly².

1 For these purposes, 'director', in relation to any body corporate (1) which was established by or under an enactment for the purpose of carrying on under national ownership an industry or part of an industry or undertaking; and (2) whose affairs are managed by its members, means a member of that body corporate: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 331(2). PARAS 1009-1508)/1. INTRODUCTION/(4) ADMINISTRATION/(vi) General Administrative Provisions/56. Correction of errors in certain decisions.

56. Correction of errors in certain decisions.

If the Secretary of State¹ or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales², or an inspector³ issues a decision document⁴ which contains a correctable error⁵, the following provisions apply⁶. The Secretary of State or the Assembly or, as the case may be, the inspector may correct the error:

- 242 (1) if he or it is requested to do so in writing by any person;
- 243 (2) if he or it sends a statement in writing to the applicant⁷ which explains the error and states that he or it is considering making the correction⁸.

The Secretary of State, the Assembly or the inspector must not, however, correct the error unless:

- 244 (a) not later than the end of the relevant period⁹ he or it receives a request mentioned in head (1) above or sends a statement mentioned in head (2) above;
- 245 (b) he or it informs the local planning authority¹⁰ of that fact; and
- 246 (c) he or it obtains the appropriate consent¹¹.

If head (1) or head (2) above applies the Secretary of State, the Assembly or the inspector must as soon as practicable after making any correction or deciding not to make any correction issue a notice in writing (a 'correction notice') which either specifies the correction of the error or gives notice of his or its decision not to correct such an error¹². The Secretary of State, the Assembly or the inspector, as the case may be, must give the correction notice to:

- 247 (i) the applicant;
- 248 (ii) if the applicant is not the owner of the land in respect of which the original decision was made, the owner;
- 249 (iii) the local planning authority for the area in which the land in respect of which the decision was made is situated;
- 250 (iv) if the correction was requested by any other person, that person¹³.

The Secretary of State or the Assembly may by order specify any other person or description of persons to whom the correction notice must be given¹⁴.

If a correction is made in pursuance of the above provisions, the original decision is taken not to have been made and the decision is taken for all purposes to have been made on the date the correction notice is issued¹⁵. If, however, a correction is not made, the original decision continues to have full force and effect and nothing in the relevant statutory provisions¹⁶ affects anything done in pursuance of or in respect of the decision¹⁷.

The validity of certain correction notices¹⁸ may be questioned on an application to the High Court¹⁹ and an appeal may be made to the High Court²⁰ against certain other correction notices²¹. Further, where the Secretary of State or the Assembly has exercised the power to make an order specifying a description of decision as one that may be recorded in a decision document²², he or it must by order make provision for questioning the validity of a correction notice given in respect of a decision document recording a decision of such a description²³. Except to the extent so provided for, however, a correction notice must not be questioned in any legal proceedings²⁴.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

2 For the purposes of the exercise of any function under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Pt 5 (ss 56-59) (see the text and notes 3-24 infra) in relation to Wales, references to the Secretary of State are to be construed as references to the National Assembly for Wales: s 59(9). As to the Assembly see PARA 20 ante.

3 For the purposes of ibid Pt 5, an inspector is a person appointed under any of the planning Acts to determine appeals instead of the Secretary of State or the Assembly: s 59(1), (2). In the case of a decision document issued by an inspector any other inspector may act under Pt 5: s 59(3). For the meaning of 'decision document' see note 4 infra. As to the Planning Inspectorate see PARA 21 ante; and as to appeals determined by inspectors see PARAS 621 et seq, 1199 et seq, 1297 et seq post. For the meaning of 'the planning Acts' see PARA 2 ante.

4 For these purposes, a decision document is a document which records any of the following decisions: (1) a decision of any description which constitutes action on the part of the Secretary of State or the Assembly under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 284(3) (as amended) (decisions which are not to be questioned in legal proceedings: see PARA 43 ante); (2) a decision in proceedings on an appeal under Pt VII (ss 171A-196C) (as amended) (enforcement notices: see PARAS 551 et seq, 603 et seq post); (3) a decision in proceedings on an appeal under s 208 (as amended) (appeals against enforcement notices relating to trees: see PARAS 885-886 post); (4) a decision mentioned in the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 s 62(2) (as amended) (decisions which are not to be questioned in legal proceedings: see PARA 1088 post); (5) a decision on an appeal under s 39 (as amended) (appeals against listed building enforcement notices: see PARA 1191 post); (6) a decision relating to conservation area consent within the meaning of s 74(1) (consent required for demolition of certain buildings: see PARA 1190 post); (7) a decision under the Planning (Hazardous Substances) Act 1990 s 20 (as amended) or s 21 (certain applications referred to and appeals determined by the Secretary of State or the Assembly: see PARA 1287 et seq post); (8) a decision under any of the planning Acts which is of a description specified by the Secretary of State or the Assembly by order: Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 ss 59(1), (4), 117(5)-(7). As to the making of orders see PARA 5 ante. At the date at which this title states the law, no such order had been made.

5 For these purposes, a correctable error is an error (1) which is contained in any part of the decision document which records the decision; but (2) which is not part of any reasons given for the decision: ibid s 59(1), (5). 'Error' includes omission: s 59(8).

6 Ibid s 56(1).

7 For these purposes, the applicant is (1) in the case of a decision made on an application under any of the planning Acts, the person who made the application; (2) in the case of a decision made on an appeal under any of those Acts, the appellant: ibid s 59(1), (6).

8 Ibid s 56(2).

9 The relevant period (1) is the period within which an application or appeal may be made to the High Court in respect of the decision recorded in the decision document; (2) does not include any time by which such a period may be extended by the High Court: ibid s 56(4). It is immaterial whether any such application or appeal is made: s 56(5).

10 As to local planning authorities see PARA 28 et seq ante.

11 Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 56(3). The appropriate consent is (1) the consent in writing of the applicant; (2) if the applicant is not the owner of the land in respect of which the decision was made, the consent in writing of both the applicant and the owner: s 56(6). But consent is not appropriate consent if it is given subject to a condition: s 56(7). For these purposes, the owner in relation to land is a person who (1) is the estate owner in respect of the fee simple; (2) is entitled to a tenancy granted or extended for a term of years simple of which not less than seven years remain unexpired; (3) is entitled to an interest in any mineral prescribed by a development order, in the case of such applications under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 as are so prescribed: Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 59(1), (7). For the meaning of 'development order' see PARA 252 post.

17 Ibid s 58(2).

18 Ie the validity of a correction notice may be so questioned if the decision document in respect of which it is given records a decision mentioned in: (1) ibid s 59(4)(a) (see note 4 head (1) supra); (2) s 59(4)(b) (see note 4 head (2) supra, if it is a decision mentioned in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 177 (as amended) (grant or modification of planning permission on appeal against enforcement notice: see PARA 610 post); (3) any of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 59(4)(d)-(f) (see note 4 heads (4)-(6) supra); (4) s 59(4)(g) (see note 4 head (7) supra): see s 58(3), (5), (6).

PARAS 1009-1508)/1. INTRODUCTION/(5) ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT/(i) Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes/60. Application of the 2004 Regulations; consultation bodies.

(5) ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT

(i) Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes

60. Application of the 2004 Regulations; consultation bodies.

With prescribed exceptions relating to transboundary consultations and the plans and programmes of other member states¹, the Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes Regulations 2004² apply to a plan or programme³ relating:

- 269 (1) solely to the whole or any part of England⁴ or to England, whether as to the whole or part, and any other part of the United Kingdom⁵;
- 270 (2) to a plan or programme relating, whether wholly or in part, to the Isles of Scilly as if the Isles were a county in England⁶;

but do not apply to a plan or programme relating solely to the whole or any part of Northern Ireland⁷, to the whole or any part of Scotland⁸ or to the whole or any part of Wales⁹.

The Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes (Wales) Regulations 2004¹⁰ apply to a plan or programme¹¹ relating solely to the whole or any part of Wales¹².

For these purposes, 'plans and programmes' means plans and programmes, including those co-financed by the European Community, as well as any modifications to them, which:

- 271 (a) are subject to preparation or adoption by an authority at national, regional or local level; or
- 272 (b) are prepared by an authority for adoption, through a legislative procedure by Parliament or government; and, in either case,
- 273 (c) are required by legislative, regulatory or administrative provisions¹³.

The 'responsible authority', in relation to a plan or programme, means the authority by which or on whose behalf it is prepared and where, at any particular time, that authority ceases to be responsible, or solely responsible, for taking steps in relation to the plan or programme, the person who, at that time, is responsible, solely or jointly with the authority, for taking those steps¹⁴.

In relation to every plan or programme which is described in head (1) or head (2) above¹⁵, and subject to prescribed exceptions¹⁶, each of the following bodies is a consultation body:

- 274 (i) the Countryside Agency¹⁷;
- 275 (ii) the Historic Buildings and Monuments Commission for England ('English Heritage')¹⁸;
- 276 (iii) English Nature¹⁹; and
- 277 (iv) the Environment Agency²⁰.

Where a body mentioned in heads (i) to (iv) above is at any time the responsible authority as regards a plan or programme, it must not at that time exercise the functions²¹ of a consultation body in relation to that plan or programme²².

In relation to every plan or programme relating solely to the whole or any part of Wales²³, each of the following bodies is a consultation body:

- 278 (A) the Countryside Council for Wales²⁴;
- 279 (B) the Environment Agency; and
- 280 (C) Cadw²⁵,

but where such a body is at any time the responsible authority as regards a plan or programme, it must not at that time exercise the functions²⁶ of a consultation body in relation to that plan or programme²⁷.

INTRODUCTION/(5) ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT/(i) Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes/61. Plans or programmes for which the carrying out of an environmental assessment is required.

61. Plans or programmes for which the carrying out of an environmental assessment is required.

Where the first formal preparatory act of a plan or programme¹ is on or after 21 July 2004 and the plan or programme is of one of the following descriptions², that is a plan or programme:

- 281 (1) which is prepared for agriculture, forestry, fisheries, energy, industry, transport, waste management, water management, telecommunications, tourism, town and country planning or land use and sets the framework for future development consent of certain projects³; or
- 282 (2) which, in view of the likely effect on sites, has been determined to require an assessment pursuant to the Habitats Directive⁴; then the responsible authority⁵ must⁶ carry out, or secure the carrying out of, an environmental assessment⁷ during the preparation of that plan or programme and before its adoption or submission to the legislative procedure⁸.

Similarly, where:

- 283 (a) the first formal preparatory act of a plan or programme, other than a plan or programme of the description set out in head (1) or head (2) above, is on or after 21 July 2004;
- 284 (b) the plan or programme sets the framework for future development consent of projects; and
- 285 (c) the plan or programme is the subject of a determination⁹ or a direction¹⁰ that it is likely to have significant environmental effects, the responsible authority must¹¹ carry out, or secure the carrying out of, an environmental assessment¹² during the preparation of that plan or programme and before its adoption or submission to the legislative procedure¹³.

Nothing in the above provisions, however, requires the carrying out of an environmental assessment for:

- 286 (i) a plan or programme the sole purpose of which is to serve national defence or civil emergency;
- 287 (ii) a financial or budget plan or programme; or
- 288 (iii) a plan or programme co-financed¹⁴ under certain European Council Regulations¹⁵.

Nor need an environmental assessment be carried out for a plan or programme of the description set out in head (1) or head (2) above which determines the use of a small area at local level, or for a minor modification to a plan or programme of the description set out in either of those heads, unless it has been determined¹⁶ that the plan, programme or modification, as the case may be, is likely to have significant environmental effects, or it is the subject of a direction¹⁷ that it is likely to have such effects¹⁸.

Where a plan or programme of which the first formal preparatory act was before 21 July 2004 has not been adopted or submitted to the legislative procedure for adoption before 22 July 2006, and either

- 289 (A) the plan or programme is such that, had the first act in its preparation occurred on 21 July 2004, the plan or programme would have required¹⁹ an environmental assessment by virtue of falling within head (1) or head (2) above; or
- 290 (B) the responsible authority is of the opinion that, if a determination²⁰ in respect of the plan or programme had been made on 21 July 2004, it would have determined that the plan or programme was likely to have significant environmental effects, the responsible authority must²¹ carry out, or secure the carrying out of, an environmental assessment²² during the preparation of that plan or programme and before its adoption or submission to the legislative procedure²³; but nothing in the above provision requires the environmental assessment of a particular plan or programme if the responsible authority decides that such assessment is not feasible and informs the public²⁴ of its decision²⁵.

The environmental assessment required²⁶ for a plan or programme co-financed by the European Community must be carried out by the responsible authority in conformity with the specific provisions in relevant Community legislation²⁷.

1 For the meaning of 'plan or programme' see PARA 60 ante.

2 It is of the description set out in either the Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes Regulations 2004, SI 2004/1633, reg 5(2) or (3) (or, if relating solely to Wales, the Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes (Wales) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/1656, reg 5(2) or (3)): see heads (1)-(2) in the text.

INTRODUCTION/(5) ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT/(i) Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes/63. Making or giving of determinations and directions.

63. Making or giving of determinations and directions.

The responsible authority¹ must determine whether or not a plan, programme² or modification of a prescribed description³ is likely to have significant environmental effects⁴. Before making such a determination the responsible authority must take into account the following criteria⁵:

- 299 (1) the characteristics of plans and programmes, having regard, in particular, to:
- 25
29. (a) the degree to which the plan or programme sets a framework for projects and other activities, either with regard to the location, nature, size and operating conditions or by allocating resources;
30. (b) the degree to which the plan or programme influences other plans and programmes including those in a hierarchy;
31. (c) the relevance of the plan or programme for the integration of environmental considerations in particular with a view to promoting sustainable development⁶;
32. (d) environmental problems relevant to the plan or programme; and
33. (e) the relevance of the plan or programme for the implementation of Community legislation on the environment⁷;

300 (2) characteristics of the effects and of the area likely to be affected, having regard, in particular, to the:

27

- 34. (a) probability, duration, frequency and reversibility of the effects;
- 35. (b) cumulative nature of the effects;
- 36. (c) transboundary nature of the effects;
- 37. (d) risks to human health or the environment;
- 38. (e) magnitude and spatial extent of the effects (geographical area and size of the population likely to be affected);
- 39. (f) value and vulnerability of the area likely to be affected due to special natural characteristics or cultural heritage, exceeded environmental quality standards or limit values or intensive land-use; and
- 40. (g) effects on areas or landscapes which have a recognised national, Community or international protection status⁸.

The responsible authority must also consult the consultation bodies⁹.

Where the responsible authority determines that the plan, programme or modification is unlikely to have significant environmental effects and, accordingly, does not require an environmental assessment, it must prepare a statement of its reasons for the determination¹⁰.

The Secretary of State¹¹ or, if the plan, programme or modification relates solely to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales¹² may at any time¹³ require¹⁴ the responsible authority to send to him or to the Assembly a copy of:

- 301 (i) any determination under the above provisions with respect to the plan, programme or modification;
- 302 (ii) the plan, programme or modification to which the determination relates; and
- 303 (iii) where a determination has been made that the plan, programme or modification is unlikely to have significant environmental effects¹⁵, the statement of reasons¹⁶ prepared accordingly¹⁷.

The responsible authority must comply with such a requirement within seven days¹⁸.

The Secretary of State or the Assembly may direct that a plan, programme or modification is likely to have significant environmental effects, whether or not a copy of it has been sent to him or to it in response to a requirement under heads (i) to (iii) above¹⁹. Before giving such a direction the Secretary of State or the Assembly must take into account the criteria set out in heads (1) and (2) above and must consult the consultation bodies²⁰. He or it must, as soon as reasonably practicable after the giving of the direction, send to the responsible authority and to each consultation body a copy of the direction and a statement of his or the Assembly's reasons for giving the direction²¹. In relation to a plan, programme or modification in respect of which such a direction has been given, any determination²² with respect to the plan, programme or modification ceases to have effect on the giving of the direction²³. If, however, no such determination has been made with respect to that plan, programme or modification, the responsible authority ceases to be under any duty²⁴ to make one²⁵.

Within 28 days of making a determination¹, the responsible authority² must send a copy of it to each consultation body³. Where the responsible authority has determined that the plan or programme⁴ does not require an environmental assessment⁵, it must also send within that time limit, to each consultation body, a statement of its reasons for the determination⁶. The responsible authority must:

- 304 (1) keep a copy of the determination, and any accompanying statement of reasons, available at its principal office for inspection by the public⁷ at all reasonable times and free of charge; and

- 29
 - 41. (a) the title of the plan, programme or modification to which the determination relates;
 - 42. (b) that the responsible authority has determined that the plan, programme or modification is or is not likely to have significant environmental effects, as the case may be, and, accordingly, that an environmental assessment is or is not required in respect of the plan, programme or modification; and
 - 43. (c) the address (which may include a website) at which a copy of the determination and any accompanying statement of reasons may be inspected or from which a copy may be obtained⁹.

Where the responsible authority receives a direction that the plan, programme or modification is likely to have significant environmental effects¹⁰, it must:

- 306 (i) keep a copy of the direction and of the Secretary of State's¹¹ statement of his reasons, or of the statement of reasons of the National Assembly for Wales¹², for giving it available at its principal office for inspection by the public at all reasonable times and free of charge; and

- 31
 - 44. (A) the title of the plan, programme or modification to which the direction relates;
 - 45. (B) that the Secretary of State or the Assembly has directed that the plan, programme or modification is likely to have significant environmental effects and, accordingly, that an environmental assessment is required in respect of the plan, programme or modification; and

46. (c) the address (which may include a website) at which a copy of the direction and of the Secretary of State's or the Assembly's statement of his or its reasons for giving it may be inspected or from which a copy may be obtained¹⁴.

PARAS 1009-1508)/1. INTRODUCTION/(5) ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT/(i) Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes/65. Preparation of environmental report.

65. Preparation of environmental report.

Where an environmental assessment¹ is required², the responsible authority³ must prepare, or secure the preparation of, an environmental report⁴ in accordance with the following provisions⁵.

The report must identify, describe and evaluate the likely significant effects on the environment of:

- 308 (1) implementing the plan or programme⁶; and
- 309 (2) reasonable alternatives taking into account the objectives and the geographical scope of the plan or programme⁷.

It must include such of the specified information⁸ as may reasonably be required, taking account of:

- 310 (a) current knowledge and methods of assessment;
- 311 (b) the contents and level of detail in the plan or programme;
- 312 (c) the stage of the plan or programme in the decision-making process; and
- 313 (d) the extent to which certain matters are more appropriately assessed at different levels in that process in order to avoid duplication of the assessment⁹.

When deciding on the scope and level of detail of the information that must be included in the report, the responsible authority must consult the consultation bodies¹⁰. Where a consultation body wishes to respond to such a consultation, it must do so within the period of five weeks beginning with the date on which it receives the responsible authority's invitation to engage in the consultation or, solely in relation to Wales, the date on which the consultation begins¹¹.

INTRODUCTION/(5) ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT/(i) Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes/66. Consultation procedures and transboundary consultations.

66. Consultation procedures and transboundary consultations.

Every draft plan or programme¹ for which an environmental report² has been prepared³ and its accompanying environmental report ('the relevant documents') must be made available for the purposes of consultation in accordance with the following provisions⁴. As soon as reasonably practicable after the preparation of the relevant documents, the responsible authority⁵ must:

- 314 (1) send a copy of those documents to each consultation body⁶;
- 315 (2) take such steps as it considers appropriate to bring the preparation of the relevant documents to the attention of the public consultees⁷;
- 316 (3) inform the public consultees of the address (which may include a website) at which a copy of the relevant documents may be viewed, or from which a copy may be obtained⁸; and
- 317 (4) invite the consultation bodies and the public consultees to express their opinion on the relevant documents, specifying the address to which, and the period within which, opinions must be sent⁹; and the period referred to in head (4) above must be of such length as will ensure that the consultation bodies and the public consultees are given an effective opportunity to express their opinion on the relevant documents¹⁰.

The responsible authority must keep a copy of the relevant documents available at its principal office for inspection by the public at all reasonable times and free of charge¹¹.

Where a responsible authority, other than the Secretary of State¹² or, in relation solely to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales¹³, is of the opinion that a plan or programme for which it is the responsible authority is likely to have significant effects on the environment of another member state, it must, as soon as reasonably practicable after forming that opinion:

- 318 (a) notify the Secretary of State or the Assembly of its opinion and of the reasons for it; and
- 319 (b) supply the Secretary of State or the Assembly with a copy of the plan or programme concerned, and of the accompanying environmental report¹⁴.

Where the Secretary of State or the Assembly has been so notified under head (a) above, the responsible authority must, within such period as the Secretary of State or the Assembly may specify¹⁵ by notice in writing to the authority, provide him or it with such other information about the plan or programme or its accompanying environmental report as he or the Assembly may reasonably require¹⁶.

Where either:

- 320 (i) the Secretary of State, whether in consequence of a notice under head (a) or otherwise, considers that the implementation of a plan or programme in any part of the United Kingdom¹⁷ is likely to have significant effects on the environment of another member state; or
- 321 (ii) a member state that is likely to be significantly affected by the implementation of a plan or programme so requests, the Secretary of State must, before the adoption of the plan or programme or its submission to the legislative procedure for adoption, forward a copy of it and of its accompanying environmental report to the member state concerned¹⁸. Where the Secretary of State receives from a member state an indication that it wishes to enter into consultations before the adoption, or submission to the legislative procedure for adoption, of a plan or programme so forwarded to it, he must agree with the member state detailed arrangements to ensure that the specified authorities¹⁹ and the public²⁰ in the member state likely to be significantly affected are informed and given an opportunity to forward their opinion within a reasonable time²¹. He must agree a reasonable time for the duration of the consultations²². He must also enter into consultations with the member state concerning the likely transboundary environmental effects of implementing the plan or programme and the measures envisaged to reduce or eliminate such effects²³. Where he is not the responsible authority, he must direct the responsible authority that it is not to adopt the plan or programme, or submit it to the legislative procedure for adoption, until the consultations with the member state have been concluded²⁴. Where consultations take place pursuant to these provisions, the Secretary of State must, as soon as reasonably practicable after those consultations begin, notify the consultation bodies of that fact²⁵. He must also notify the consultation bodies and, where he is not the responsible authority, the responsible authority, of the outcome of the consultations²⁶.

Solely in relation to Wales, where either:

- 322 (A) the Assembly, whether in consequence of a notice under head (a) above or otherwise, considers that the implementation of a plan or programme is likely to have significant effects on the environment of another member state; or
- 323 (B) a member state that is likely to be significantly affected by the implementation of such a plan or programme requests the specified documents²⁷, the Assembly must forward a copy of the plan or programme, and of its accompanying environmental report, to the Secretary of State²⁸. It must notify the responsible authority that head (A) or head (B) applies, as the case may be²⁹ and must direct the responsible authority that it must not adopt, or submit to the legislative procedure for adoption, the plan or programme until the consultation exercise has been concluded³⁰.

INTRODUCTION/(5) ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT/(i) Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes/67. Plans and programmes of other member states.

67. Plans and programmes of other member states.

Where the Secretary of State¹ receives from a member state, whether or not in response to a request made by the United Kingdom² in that behalf³, a copy of a draft plan or programme⁴:

- 324 (1) that is being prepared in relation to any part of that member state; and
- 325 (2) whose implementation is likely to have significant effects on the environment of any part of the United Kingdom, the following provisions apply⁵. The Secretary of State must indicate to the member state whether, before the adoption of the plan or programme or its submission to the legislative procedure for adoption, the United Kingdom wishes to enter into consultations in respect of that plan or programme concerning the likely transboundary environmental effects of implementing the plan or programme and the measures envisaged to reduce or eliminate such effects⁶. Where the Secretary of State so indicates, he must agree with the member state concerned:

- 326 (a) detailed arrangements to ensure that the consultation bodies⁷ and the public⁸ in the United Kingdom or, as the case may be, the part of the United Kingdom that is likely to be significantly affected by the implementation of the plan or programme, are informed and given an opportunity to forward their opinion within a reasonable time; and
- 327 (b) a reasonable time for the duration of the consultations⁹.

Where such consultations take place under these provisions, the Secretary of State must:

- 328 (i) inform the consultation bodies of the receipt of the draft plan or programme;
- 329 (ii) provide them with a copy of the draft plan or programme and the relevant environmental report provided¹⁰ or specify the address (which may include a website) at which those documents may be inspected;
- 330 (iii) take such steps as he considers appropriate to bring the receipt of the draft plan or programme to the attention of the transboundary consultees¹¹;
- 331 (iv) inform the transboundary consultees of the address (which may include a website) at which a copy of the draft plan or programme and the relevant environmental report provided¹² may be inspected, or from which a copy may be obtained¹³; and
- 332 (v) invite the consultation bodies and the transboundary consultees to forward to him their opinions within such period as he may specify¹⁴.

Where the National Assembly for Wales¹⁵ receives from a member state, whether or not in response to a request made by the United Kingdom in that behalf¹⁶, a copy of a draft plan or programme that is being prepared in relation to any part of that member state, and whose implementation is likely to have significant effects on the environment of any part of the United Kingdom, the Assembly must forward any information it receives to the Secretary of State¹⁷.

68. Post-adoption procedures.

As soon as reasonably practicable after the adoption of a plan or programme¹ for which an environmental assessment² has been carried out³, the responsible authority⁴ must make a copy of the plan or programme and its accompanying environmental report⁵ available at its principal office for inspection by the public⁶ at all reasonable times and free of charge⁷. It must take such steps as it considers appropriate to bring to the attention of the public:

- 333 (1) the title of the plan or programme;
- 334 (2) the date on which it was adopted;

- 335 (3) the address (which may include a website) at which a copy of it and of its accompanying environmental report, and of a statement containing the specified particulars⁸, may be viewed or from which a copy may be obtained;
- 336 (4) the times at which inspection may be made; and
- 337 (5) that inspection may be made free of charge⁹.

As soon as reasonably practicable after the adoption of a plan or programme, the responsible authority must inform:

- 338 (a) the consultation bodies¹⁰;
- 339 (b) the persons who, in relation to the plan or programme, were public consultees¹¹; and
- 340 (c) where the responsible authority is not the Secretary of State¹² or the National Assembly for Wales¹³, the Secretary of State or the Assembly, of the following matters:

- 341 (i) that the plan or programme has been adopted;
- 342 (ii) the date on which it was adopted; and
- 343 (iii) the address (which may include a website) at which a copy of the plan or programme, as adopted, its accompanying environmental report, and a statement containing the specified particulars¹⁴ may be viewed, or from which a copy may be obtained¹⁵.

The Secretary of State must inform the member state with which consultations in relation to the plan or programme have taken place¹⁶ of the matters referred to in heads (i) to (iii) above¹⁷; and, in relation solely to Wales, the Assembly must inform the Secretary of State¹⁸ of those matters¹⁹.

The responsible authority must monitor the significant environmental effects of the implementation of each plan or programme with the purpose of identifying unforeseen adverse effects at an early stage and being able to undertake appropriate remedial action²⁰. Its monitoring arrangements may, however, comprise or include arrangements established otherwise than for the express purpose of complying with this requirement²¹.

69. Assessment of environmental impact; in general.

Planning permission¹ may not be granted for certain types of development known as 'EIA development'² unless the environmental information³ has been taken into account in accordance with the requirements of the Town and Country Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) (England and Wales) Regulations 1999⁴. The relevant requirements are discussed in a later part of this title⁵.

Assessment of the environmental impact of certain projects is required for other statutory purposes under legislation relating to:

- 344 (1) the decommissioning of nuclear reactors⁶;
- 345 (2) electricity works⁷;
- 346 (3) fish farming in marine waters⁸;
- 347 (4) forestry⁹;

- 353 (10) transport and works¹⁵;
- 354 (11) uncultivated land and semi-natural land¹⁶;
- 355 (12) water resources¹⁷.

(6) STATUTORY CONSULTEES AND NON-STATUTORY PROFESSIONAL BODIES

70. Statutory consultees.

Many statutory provisions concerned with town and country planning require the decision maker to consult¹ either with specified bodies² or with such other persons or bodies as the local planning authority³ or other decision maker thinks appropriate⁴. Consultation is often required between different planning authorities⁵. Additionally, the following bodies have key responsibilities in terms of the natural and built environment and are frequently specified as such statutory consultees:

- 356 (1) the Environment Agency⁶;
- 357 (2) the Countryside Agency⁷;
- 358 (3) the Historic Buildings and Monuments Commission for England ('English Heritage')⁸ or, in relation to Wales, Cadw⁹;
- 359 (4) English Nature¹⁰;
- 360 (5) the Countryside Council for Wales¹¹;
- 361 (6) the Highways Agency¹².

Failure by a local planning authority to consult the appropriate bodies may amount to maladministration¹³.

The Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 has introduced a statutory duty to respond to consultation which is discussed in a later part of this title¹⁴.

1 For the meaning of 'consult' see PARA 2 note 1 ante.

2 See eg (1) the Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes Regulations 2004, SI 2004/1633, reg 9(2)(b) and the Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes (Wales) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/1656, reg 9(2)(b) (requirement to consult the 'consultation bodies' specified in PARA 60 ante); and PARA 63 ante; (2) the Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, reg 11(1) (requirement to consult both specified bodies and also bodies representative of specific groups); and PARA 76 post; (3) the Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2204, reg 25(1) (consultation requirement similar to that set out in head (2) supra); and PARA 110 post; (4) the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 5 para 4(1) (requirement to consult the Forestry Commission); and PARA 714 post.

3 As to local planning authorities see PARA 28 et seq ante.

4 See eg the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 60(5) (requirement that National Assembly for Wales consults such persons or bodies as it thinks appropriate in preparing or revising the Wales Spatial Plan); and PARAS 87-88 post.

5 See eg the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 7 para 5(2) (as substituted) (district planning authority in England to consult county planning authority before making or altering a simplified planning zone scheme); and PARA 433 post.

6 The establishment, constitution and general powers, functions and duties of the Environment Agency are discussed in detail elsewhere in this work: see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 68 et seq. In Wales, the Agency is known as Environment Agency Wales (Asiantaeth yr Amgylchedd Cymru) and is an Assembly sponsored public body while also being part of the corporate Environment Agency for England and Wales. Of particular significance in the context of town and country planning is the Agency's role in giving advice about the risks of flooding and the steps that need to be taken to minimise the risks of development on flood plains. As to flood prevention generally see WATER AND WATERWAYS vol 101 (2009) PARA 556 et seq. The Agency maintains an internet site on the World Wide Web; at the date at which this title states the law, that site was accessible at www.environment-agency.gov.uk.

7 As to the constitution and functions of the Countryside Agency (formerly known as the 'Countryside Commission') see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 523 et seq et seq. The agency's name was changed in 1999: see the Development Commission (Transfer of Functions and Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1999, SI 1999/416, art 3, Sch 1. The agency is funded by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs ('Defra') and a change in its functions was envisaged in the Defra rural strategy published in July 2004. At the date at which this title states the law, proposals for the creation of a new integrated agency to be known as Natural England and for the dissolution of the Countryside Agency and English Nature (as to which see note 10 infra) were before Parliament in the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Bill (HC Bill 3, HL Bill 23 (2005-2006)). See also Defra News Release 61/05.

8 The constitution and functions of English Heritage are discussed in PARA 1058 post. It plays a significant role in the system of listing buildings and advises on planning controls relating to such buildings and to conservation areas. As to its functions with regard to ancient monuments see NATIONAL CULTURAL HERITAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 1009 et seq.

9 Cadw is an executive agency operating within the Welsh Assembly Government with responsibility for protecting, conserving and promoting an appreciation of the historic environment of Wales (this includes historic buildings, ancient monuments, historic parks and gardens, landscapes and underwater archaeology). Cadw maintains an internet site on the World Wide Web where details of its constitution and functions may be found; at the date at which this title states the law, that site was accessible at www.cadw.wales.gov.uk.

There is also an independent advisory body known as the Historic Buildings Council for Wales whose members are appointed by the National Assembly for Wales to provide advice on grants and other means of protecting historic buildings and townscapes. The secretariat of the Council is provided by Cadw. As to the council see PARA 1059 post.

10 As to the creation, constitution and functions of English Nature see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 523 et seq; and as to proposed changes to its current constitution see note 7 supra. The role of English Nature is particularly significant in terms of protecting natural habitats; as to the protection of habitats see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 728 et seq.

11 As to the creation, constitution and functions of the Countryside Council for Wales see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 523 et seq. The Council combines, in relation to Wales, many of the roles of the Countryside Agency and English Nature in relation to England. The Council maintains an internet site on the World Wide Web; at the date at which this title states the law, that site was accessible at www.ccw.gov.uk.

12 As to the Highways Agency see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (Reissue) PARA 52. That agency maintains an internet site on the World Wide Web; at the date at which this title states the law, that site was accessible at www.highways.gov.uk.

71. Non-statutory professional bodies.

Non-statutory professional bodies whose members are involved in town and country planning, whether as academics, local planning officers, members of government departments or other agencies or employees of private developers, include the Royal Town Planning Institute ('RTPI')¹ and the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors ('RICS')².

1 The RTPI is a membership organisation and a registered charity whose postal address is 41 Botolph Lane, London, EC3R 8DL. The RTPI maintains an internet site on the World Wide Web where full details of its constitution, aims and activities may be found; at the date at which this title states the law, that site was accessible at www.rtpi.org.uk. The three main strands of RTPI activity are stated to be:

- 104 (1) shaping opinion and policy (eg by putting forward proposals, and responding to government proposals in all the United Kingdom administrations, for new legislation and policy);
- 105 (2) maintaining standards and increasing knowledge (eg by setting standards of professional education and accrediting university courses which meet those standards; and by upholding a Code of Practice Conduct (including an obligatory Continuing Professional Development scheme) with power to discipline members); and

- 106 (3) involving people (providing direct help for members of the public through (a) a nationwide Planning Aid network offering free planning advice and support to disadvantaged groups and individuals; (b) an environmental education programme, working with teachers, schoolchildren and local community groups; (c) publications explaining how the planning system works and how to use it; and (d) award schemes to identify and promote the best of town planning, including the annual RTPI Awards for Planning Achievement).

2 The Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors ('RICS') is a global 'standards and membership' organisation for professionals involved in land, property, construction and environmental issues. The RICS maintains an internet site on the World Wide Web where full details of its constitution, aims and activities may be found; at the date at which this title states the law, that site was accessible at www.rics.org.

72. Regional spatial strategy.

For each region¹ there is to be a regional spatial strategy (referred to as the 'RSS')² which must set out the Secretary of State's³ policies, however expressed, in relation to the development⁴ and use⁵ of land⁶ within the region⁷. If to any extent a policy set out in the RSS conflicts with any other statement or information in the RSS the conflict must be resolved in favour of the policy⁸.

With effect from 28 September 2004⁹, the RSS for a region is so much of the regional planning guidance¹⁰ relating to the region as the Secretary of State prescribes¹¹. The initial RSS has been prescribed¹² for:

- 362 (1) the North East¹³;
- 363 (2) the East of England¹⁴;
- 364 (3) the East Midlands, for which there is now a revised strategy¹⁵;
- 365 (4) the South East¹⁶;
- 366 (5) the South West¹⁷;
- 367 (6) the West Midlands¹⁸;
- 368 (7) Yorkshire and the Humber¹⁹; and
- 369 (8) the North West²⁰.

A regional planning body (an 'RPB') must make a copy of the RSS for its region available for inspection²¹ at its principal office during office hours and must publish the RSS on its website²².

The Secretary of State must exercise this function with the objective of contributing to the achievement of sustainable development and he must have regard to national policies and advice issued by him: see s 39(1)(a), (2), (3)(a); and PARA 6 ante.

12 See the Town and Country Planning (Initial Regional Spatial Strategy) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2206, arts 1, 2, Schedule.

13 The RSS so prescribed is the Regional Planning Guidance for the North East to 2016 (RPG 1, November 2002).

14 The RSS so prescribed is the Regional Planning Guidance for East Anglia to 2016 (RPG 6, November 2000) and such part of the Regional Planning Guidance for the South East (RPG 9, March 2001) as relates to Hertfordshire, Bedfordshire and Essex.

15 The RSS so prescribed was the Regional Planning Guidance for the East Midlands to 2021 (RPG 8, January 2002). That RSS is now replaced with the Revised RSS for the East Midlands (17 March 2005, ODPM) which (1) outlines a broad strategy for the region until 2021 and provides the framework for meeting the region's development needs in a way that promotes a more sustainable pattern of development; (2) includes the policies and proposals for Northamptonshire included in the Milton Keynes and South Midlands Sub-Regional Strategy: see ODPM News Release 2005/0068. The area of the Peak District National Park is treated as falling wholly within East Midlands region: see the Town and Country Planning (Regions) (National Parks) (England) Order 2004, SI 2004/2207, art 2(b); and PARA 24 note 4 ante.

16 The RSS so prescribed is the Regional Planning Guidance for the South East (RPG 9, March 2001) as revised in July 2004 by the Regional Transport Strategy (Ch 9) and the Ashford Growth Area (Ch 12) and excluding such part as relates to Greater London, Hertfordshire, Bedfordshire and Essex.

17 The RSS so prescribed is the Regional Planning Guidance for the South West (RPG 10, September 2001).

18 The RSS so prescribed is the Regional Planning Guidance for the West Midlands (RPG 11, June 2004).

19 The RSS so prescribed is the Regional Planning Guidance for Yorkshire and the Humber to 2016 (RPG 12, October 2001). The areas of the North York Moors National Park and the Yorkshire Dales National Park are treated as falling wholly within Yorkshire and the Humber region: see the Town and Country Planning (Regions) (National Parks) (England) Order 2004, SI 2004/2207, art 2(a); and PARA 24 note 4 ante.

20 The RSS so prescribed is the Regional Planning Guidance for the North West (RPG 13, March 2003).

72-85 Regional Planning in England

Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 ss 1-12 repealed: Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Act 2009 Sch 7.

72 Regional spatial strategy

TEXT AND NOTES--The participating authorities in each region other than London must for the purposes of the Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Act 2009 Pt 5 (ss 70-87) make a scheme for the establishment and operation of a body (whether or not incorporated) for the region: Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Act 2009 s 71(1). For the purposes of s 71, 'participating authority,' in relation to a region, means any of the following authorities whose area falls wholly or partly within the region (1) a district council; (2) a county council; (3) a National Park authority; (4) the Broads Authority: s 71(3). A body under s 71(1) is to be known as a 'Leaders' Board': s 71(2). Before making a scheme under s 71(1) the participating authorities in a region must consult such persons (if any) as they consider appropriate: s 71(4). After making a scheme under s 71(1) the participating authorities in a region must submit it to the Secretary of State for approval: s 71(5). If the Secretary of State approves a scheme under s 71(1), the participating authorities are to establish the body in accordance with the scheme: s 71(6). The Secretary of State may give such sums as the Secretary of State considers appropriate (a) to a Leaders' Board, or (b) to a participating authority in a region in respect of the Leaders' Board for the region: s 71(7). If the Secretary of State considers that a Leaders' Board established for a region is not operating effectively, the Secretary of State may by direction withdraw approval for the scheme under which it is established (and s 71(6) accordingly ceases to apply in relation to that scheme): s 71(8). The Secretary of State must by regulations make provision for the Local Government Act 1972 Pt 5A (public admission to meetings of principal councils, public access to documents, etc: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 1 et seq) to apply in relation to Leaders' Boards as it applies in relation to principal councils (within the meaning of Pt 5A): Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Act 2009 s 71(9). The application referred to in s 71(9) may be with such modifications as the Secretary of State considers necessary or expedient: s 71(10).

The Secretary of State may give to any person exercising functions under the Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Act 2009 Pt 5 (i) guidance, or (ii) directions in relation to the exercise of those functions: see Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Act 2009 s 84.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/2. REGIONAL AND WELSH NATIONAL PLANNING/(1) REGIONAL PLANNING IN ENGLAND/(ii) Functions of Planning Bodies/73. General functions of regional planning bodies.

(ii) Functions of Planning Bodies

73. General functions of regional planning bodies.

The regional planning body ('RPB')¹ must keep under review the regional spatial strategy ('RSS')². The RPB must also keep under review the matters which may be expected to affect:

- 370 (1) development³ in its region⁴ or any part of the region;
- 371 (2) the planning of that development⁵.

The RPB must monitor the implementation of the RSS throughout the region⁶ and consider whether the implementation is achieving the purposes of the RSS⁷; and must for each year prepare a report on the implementation of the RSS in the region⁸. The report:

- 372 (a) must be in respect of such period of 12 months as is prescribed⁹;
- 373 (b) must be in such form and contain such information as is prescribed¹⁰; and
- 374 (c) must be submitted to the Secretary of State on such date as is prescribed¹¹.

At the time an RPB so submits a report to the Secretary of State it must publish the report on its website¹².

The RPB must give advice to any other body or person if it thinks that to do so will help to achieve implementation of the RSS¹³.

For the purpose of the exercise of certain of its functions¹⁴ the RPB must seek the advice of each authority in its region¹⁵ which is a county council¹⁶, a metropolitan district council¹⁷, a district council¹⁸ for an area for which there is no county council or a National Park authority¹⁹ whose area, or any part of whose area, is in the RPB's region²⁰. The authority must give the RPB advice as to the exercise of the function to the extent that the exercise of the function is capable of affecting, directly or indirectly, the exercise by the authority of any function it has²¹. Such advice includes advice relating to the inclusion in the RSS of specific policies relating to any part of the region²². Furthermore, and subject to certain exceptions²³, the RPB may make arrangements with such an authority or with any district council the whole or part of whose area is in the region for the discharge by the authority or council of a function of the RPB²⁴. The RPB may reimburse an authority or council which exercises functions by virtue of such arrangements for any expenditure incurred by the authority or council in doing so²⁵. Nothing in these provisions²⁶, however, affects any power which a body which is recognised as an RPB has apart from them²⁷.

The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision in connection with the exercise by any person of functions under Pt 1 (ss 1-12): s 11(1). The regulations may in particular make provision as to (1) the procedure to be followed for the purposes of s 5 (see PARA 74 post); (2) the procedure to be followed by the RPB in connection with its functions under s 6 (see PARA 74 post); (3) requirements about the giving of notice and publicity; (4) requirements about inspection by the public of a draft revision or any other document; (5) the nature and extent of consultation with and participation by the public in anything done under Pt 1; (6) the making of representations about any matter to be included in an RSS; (7) consideration of any such representations; (8) the remuneration and allowances payable to a person appointed to carry out an examination in public under s 8 (see PARAS 79-80 post); (9) the determination of the time at which anything must be done for the purposes of Pt 1; (10) the manner of publication of any draft, report or other document published under Pt 1; (11) monitoring the exercise by RPBs of their functions under Pt 1; (12) the making of reasonable charges for the provision of copies of documents required by or under Pt 1: s 11(2). In the exercise of these powers the Secretary of State has made the Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, which came into force on 28 September 2004 and apply in relation to England only: reg 1. 10 Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 3(5)(b). A report under s 3(4) must contain the following information: (1) a statement identifying any policy in the RSS which in the opinion of the RPB is not being implemented; (2) where a policy is identified as mentioned in head (1) supra, a statement of (a) the reasons why the RPB is of the opinion that the policy is not being implemented; and (b) the measures that the RPB intends to take to secure that the policy is implemented including, in particular, whether the RPB intends to prepare a draft revision of the RSS which will amend the policy; (3) in a case to which the Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, reg 5(4) applies, a statement as to the number of dwellings built in the part of the region in question (a) during the period of the report; and (b) since the policy concerned was first published by the Secretary of State: reg 5(3). Regulation 5(4) applies where the RSS contains a policy which specifies, whether by reference to a year or any other period, the number of dwellings to be built in any part of the region: reg 5(4).

UPDATE

72-85 Regional Planning in England

Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 ss 1-12 repealed: Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Act 2009 Sch 7.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/2. REGIONAL AND WELSH NATIONAL PLANNING/(1) REGIONAL PLANNING IN ENGLAND/ (iii) Revision of Regional Spatial Strategy/A. REVISION PREPARED BY REGIONAL PLANNING BODY/74. Duty to prepare draft revision of the regional spatial strategy.

(iii) Revision of Regional Spatial Strategy

A. REVISION PREPARED BY REGIONAL PLANNING BODY

74. Duty to prepare draft revision of the regional spatial strategy.

The regional planning body (the 'RPB')¹ must prepare a draft revision² of the regional spatial strategy (the 'RSS')³:

- 375 (1) when it appears to it necessary or expedient to do so;
- 376 (2) at such time as is prescribed⁴;
- 377 (3) if it is directed⁵ to do so⁶.

The RPB must, however, give notice to the Secretary of State⁷ of its intention to prepare a draft revision under head (1) above⁸.

If the Secretary of State thinks it is necessary or expedient to do so he may direct an RPB to prepare a draft revision of the RSS⁹; and such a direction may require the RPB to prepare the draft revision:

- 378 (a) in relation to such aspects of the RSS as are specified;
- 379 (b) in accordance with such timetable as is specified¹⁰.

In preparing a draft revision the RPB must have regard to:

- 380 (i) national policies and advice contained in guidance issued by the Secretary of State¹¹;
- 381 (ii) the RSS for each adjoining region¹²;
- 382 (iii) the spatial development strategy if any part of its region adjoins Greater London¹³;
- 383 (iv) the Wales Spatial Plan if any part of its region adjoins Wales¹⁴;
- 384 (v) the resources likely to be available for implementation of the RSS¹⁵;
- 385 (vi) the desirability of making different provision in relation to different parts of the region¹⁶;

386 (vii) such other matters as are prescribed¹⁷.

In preparing a draft revision the RPB must also carry out an appraisal of the sustainability of the proposals in the draft, and prepare a report of the findings of the appraisal¹⁸.

For the purposes of the exercise of its functions under the above provisions¹⁹, the RPB must prepare and publish a statement of its policies as to the involvement of persons who appear to the RPB to have an interest in the exercise of those functions²⁰. The RPB must keep the policies under review and from time to time must revise the statement and publish the revised statement²¹. The RPB must comply with the statement or revised statement, as the case may be, in the exercise of its functions under the above provisions²².

1 For the meaning of 'regional planning body' see PARA 24 ante.

2 For these purposes, references to a revision or draft revision of an RSS include references to a revision or draft revision (1) of any part of an RSS; (2) of the RSS as it relates to any part of a region: Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 12(6). For the meaning of 'region' see PARA 24 note 4 ante.

3 As to the RSS see PARA 72 ante.

4 'Prescribed' means prescribed by regulations made by the Secretary of State: see the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 122; and PARA 5 ante. As to the power to make regulations for these purposes see s 11; and PARA 73 note 9 ante. At the date at which this title states the law, no time had been prescribed for these purposes.

5 Ibid under ibid s 10(1): see the text and notes 9-10 infra.

6 Ibid s 5(1). The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision as to (1) the subject matter of a draft revision prepared in pursuance of s 5(1)(b) (see head (2) in the text); (2) any further documents which must be prepared by the RPB in connection with the preparation of a draft revision; (3) the form and content of any draft, report or other document prepared under s 5: s 5(7). The documents mentioned in s 5(7)(b), (c) (see heads (2)-(3) supra) include the statement and revised statement under s 6 (see the text and notes 19-22 infra): s 6(4).

7 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

8 Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 5(2).

9 Ibid s 10(1). Where the Secretary of State issues a direction under s 10(1), the RPB to which the direction is issued must (1) make that direction available for public inspection at its principal office during office hours; and (2) publish that direction on its website: Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, reg 19.

Copies, documents, directions, matters, or statements which under the Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, are (a) made available for inspection; or (b) published on a website, may be removed at the end of the period of six weeks referred to in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 113(4) (period for challenging the validity of certain strategies, plans and documents: see PARA 42 ante) that applies as regards the strategy, plan or document concerned; but this does not apply if a challenge is made as mentioned in s 113(4) and is not to apply until any challenge proceedings are finally determined: Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, reg 20(2), (3). Regulation 20 does not, however, apply to a document made available or published under reg 21 (see PARA 72 ante): reg 20(1).

Where (i) a person makes a document available for inspection under the 2004 regulations; (ii) that document is not published as required by or under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Pt 1 (ss 1-12); and (iii) the person is asked by another person for a copy of that document, the person first mentioned must provide a copy of the document to that other person as soon as reasonably practicable after receipt of that other person's request: Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, reg 22(1). A person who so provides a copy, or who provides a copy of a document published as required by or under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Pt 1, may make a reasonable charge for the copy: Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, reg 22(2).

10 Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 10(2).

11 Ibid s 5(3)(a). As to such policies and guidance see generally para 9 ante. Section 12(4) (the Secretary of State for the purposes of Pt 1 (ss 1-12): see PARA 24 note 1 ante) does not apply for these purposes: s 12(5). See also the Countryside Agency, Environment Agency, English Heritage and English Nature guidance Environmental Quality in Spatial Planning (June 2005) which is intended to supplement guidance issued by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister.

12 Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 5(3)(b).

13 Ibid s 5(3)(c). As to the spatial development strategy for Greater London see PARA 86 post; and LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 188 et seq.

14 Ibid s 5(3)(d). As to the Wales Spatial Plan see PARA 87 post.

15 Ibid s 5(3)(e).

16 Ibid s 5(3)(f). If the RPB decides to make different provision for different parts of the region the detailed proposals for such different provision must first be made by an authority which falls within s 4(4) (see PARA 73 the text and notes 16-19 ante): s 5(5). But if the RPB and the authority agree, the detailed proposals may first be made (1) by a district council which is not such an authority; or (2) by the RPB: s 5(6).

Where the RPB decides to make different provision for different parts of the region under s 5(5), it must notify the authorities referred to in s 4(4) of its decision and it may give to those authorities information about how the detailed proposals for that different provision are to be made: Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, reg 8(1). The information referred to in reg 8(1) may indicate: (a) the geographical area to be covered by the detailed proposals; (b) the broad subject matter of the detailed proposals; (c) other bodies that the RPB considers should work with the authorities in making the detailed proposals; and (d) which of the authorities the RPB considers should lead in making the detailed proposals: reg 8(2). The authorities referred to in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 4(4) must make the detailed proposals for the different provision within 12 weeks of being notified by the RPB under the Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, reg 8(1); reg 8(3).

Where any provision of the Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, requires a person: (i) to send a notice, any other document or a copy of a document to another person, or notify another person of any matter; and (ii) that other person has an address for the purposes of electronic communications, the notice, document, copy or notification may be sent or made by way of electronic communications: reg 3(1). Where an electronic communication is used as mentioned in reg 3(1) and the communication is received by the recipient outside his office hours, it is to be taken to have been received on the next working day; and for these purposes 'working day' means a day which is not a Saturday, Sunday, bank holiday or other public holiday: reg 3(3). 'Electronic communication' has the same meaning as in the Electronic Communications Act 2000 s 15(1) (as amended) (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 947; TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND BROADCASTING vol 45(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 616): Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, reg 2(1).

17 Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 5(3)(g). Matters prescribed for these purposes, in addition to those specified in s 5(3)(a)-(f) (see heads (i)-(vi) in the text) are: (1) the strategy prepared for the region under the Regional Development Agencies Act 1998 s 7 (as amended) (see TRADE AND INDUSTRY vol 97 (2010) PARA 989); (2) the objectives of preventing major accidents and limiting the consequences of such accidents; (3) the need, in the long term, to maintain appropriate distances between establishments and residential areas, buildings and areas of public use, major transport routes as far as possible, recreational areas and areas of particular natural sensitivity or interest; (4) where the region or part of the region for which the draft revision is being prepared adjoins Scotland, the National Planning Framework for Scotland, published by the Scottish Executive in April 2004; and expressions appearing both in heads (1)-(4) supra and in EC Council Directive 96/82 (OJ L10, 14.01.97, p 13) on the control of major accident hazards involving dangerous substances (as amended by EC Council Directive 2003/105) (OJ L345, 31.12.2003, p 97) (see PARA 1211 post) have the same meanings as in that Directive: Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, reg 10(1), (2).

18 Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 5(4). As to sustainable development generally see s 39; and PARA 6 ante.

19 Ie under ibid s 5: see the text and notes 1-18 supra; and PARAS 76-77 post.

20 Ibid s 6(1). In complying with the duty imposed by s 6(1) (preparation and publication of statement of policies as to involvement of persons interested in exercise of RPB's functions under s 5), an RPB must (1) include in that statement policies in particular about: (a) how and when persons who appear to the RPB to have an interest in the revision of the RSS will be involved in its revision; and (b) the identification and involvement of other persons to work with the RPB in the revision of the RSS; (2) make the statement available for inspection during office hours at its principal office and at such other places within the region as the RPB considers appropriate; and (3) publish on its website (a) the statement; (b) confirmation that the statement is available for inspection; and (c) details of the times and places at which the statement may be inspected: Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, reg 6.

REGIONAL AND WELSH NATIONAL PLANNING/(1) REGIONAL PLANNING IN ENGLAND/ (iii) Revision of Regional Spatial Strategy/A. REVISION PREPARED BY REGIONAL PLANNING BODY/75. Form and content of draft revision of regional spatial strategy.

75. Form and content of draft revision of regional spatial strategy.

A draft revision¹ must contain new or amended policies to the regional spatial strategy (the 'RSS') and amendments to the specified diagrams² as the regional planning body (the 'RPB') is of the opinion are appropriate³. A draft revision must also contain a reasoned justification of the policies contained in it⁴. Those parts of a draft revision which comprise the policies of the revision and those parts which comprise the reasoned justification so required must be clearly identified⁵.

A draft revision must contain a diagram, called a key diagram, illustrating the policies contained in the draft revision⁶. A draft revision may also contain a diagram, called an inset diagram, which is drawn to a larger scale than the key diagram and illustrates the application of the policies to part of the area covered by the revision⁷. Where a draft revision contains an inset diagram, the area covered by the inset diagram must be identified on the key diagram and the application of the policies to that area must be illustrated on the inset diagram only⁸. Key diagrams and inset diagrams must:

- 387 (1) set out the title of the draft revision; and
- 388 (2) include an explanation of any symbol or other notation that appears on them;
- and
- 389 (3) be prepared otherwise than on a map base⁹.

1 For these purposes, 'draft revision' means a draft revision of the regional spatial strategy (the 'RSS') prepared by a regional planning body ('RPB') or the Secretary of State (as the case may be) in accordance with the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Pt 1 (ss 1-12): Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2203, reg 2(1). REGIONAL AND WELSH NATIONAL PLANNING/(1) REGIONAL PLANNING IN ENGLAND/ (iii) Revision of Regional Spatial Strategy/A. REVISION PREPARED BY REGIONAL PLANNING BODY/76. Procedure for the preparation of a revision of the regional spatial strategy.

76. Procedure for the preparation of a revision of the regional spatial strategy.

When the regional planning body (the 'RPB')¹ has prepared a draft revision², the sustainability appraisal report to be prepared³ and any other document to be prepared in connection with the preparation of the draft revision⁴ it must (1) publish the draft revision, report and other document; and (2) submit them to the Secretary of State⁵.

Before so submitting a draft revision to the Secretary of State, an RPB must consult:

- 390 (a) such of the specific consultation bodies⁶ as are, in the opinion of the RPB, likely to be affected by the draft revision;
- 391 (b) such of the general consultation bodies⁷ as the RPB considers appropriate⁸.

The RPB must prepare a statement setting out:

- 392 (i) which of the specific and general consultation bodies the RPB has consulted;
- 393 (ii) how those bodies, and any other persons whom the RPB has consulted, were consulted;
- 394 (iii) a summary of the main issues raised in those consultations; and
- 395 (iv) how those main issues have been addressed in the draft revision⁹.

When the RPB complies with head (1) above it must make copies of the draft revision documents¹⁰ and a statement of the draft revision matters¹¹ available for inspection¹² at its principal office during office hours and at such other places within the region as the RPB considers appropriate¹³. It must also publish on its website the draft revision documents, the draft revision matters, and a statement that the draft revision documents are available for inspection and particulars of the places and times at which they can be inspected¹⁴. The RPB must send to the pre-submission consultees¹⁵, and to such other persons who in the opinion of the RPB may wish to make representations¹⁶ on the draft revision:

- 396 (A) the draft revision;
- 397 (B) the sustainability appraisal report;
- 398 (C) the pre-submission consultation statement;
- 399 (D) such of the supporting documents as in the RPB's opinion are relevant to the person to whom the documents are being sent;
- 400 (E) notice of the draft revision matters; and
- 401 (F) the statement that the draft revision documents are available for inspection¹⁷ which is referred to above¹⁸.

When the RPB complies with head (1) above, each local planning authority within the region, and any county council within the region whose area includes an area for which there is a district council, must make copies of the draft revision documents and draft revision matters available for inspection at their principal offices during office hours¹⁹; but this does not apply to an authority or council unless the draft revision relates to any part of its area²⁰.

Representations on a draft revision must be made within the specified period²¹ and sent to the specified address²² and where appropriate the specified person²³; and the Secretary of State is not required to have regard to a representation on a draft revision unless that representation is made in accordance with these requirements²⁴.

REGIONAL AND WELSH NATIONAL PLANNING/(1) REGIONAL PLANNING IN ENGLAND/ (v) Spatial Development Strategy for Greater London/86. The Mayor of London's spatial development strategy.

(v) Spatial Development Strategy for Greater London

86. The Mayor of London's spatial development strategy.

The Mayor of London¹ must prepare and publish a document to be known as the 'spatial development strategy'² which must include a statement formulating the Mayor's strategy for spatial development in Greater London³. For these purposes⁴, the Mayor's strategy for spatial development includes his general policies in respect of the development and use of land in Greater London⁵. The spatial development strategy must, however, include statements dealing with the general spatial development aspects of:

- 436 (1) such of the other strategies prepared and published, or to be prepared and published, under the specified enactments⁶ as involve considerations of spatial development; and
- 437 (2) such of the Mayor's other policies or proposals as involve such considerations, whether or not the strategy, policy or proposal relates to the development or use of land⁷.

The spatial development strategy must deal only with matters which are of strategic importance to Greater London⁸. It may make different provision for different cases or for different parts of Greater London⁹.

In exercising his functions relating to the spatial development strategy for Greater London, the Mayor must have regard to the regional spatial strategy¹⁰ for a region which adjoins Greater London and to such other matters as the Secretary of State¹¹ may prescribe¹².

The preparation of the spatial development strategy¹³, its publication and operation¹⁴, the Mayor's duty to keep it under review¹⁵ and its alteration or replacement¹⁶ are all discussed in detail elsewhere in this work¹⁷.

In formulating the strategy for spatial development in Greater London the Mayor must, in addition to the matters specified in ss 41, 342(1)(a) (as amended), have regard to: (1) any statement which contains the Secretary of State's policies in relation to the recovery and disposal of waste in England and which is made under the Environmental Protection Act 1990 s 44A (as added) (National Waste Strategy, England and Wales: see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 46 (2010) PARA 627); (2) the objectives of preventing major accidents and limiting the consequences of such accidents; and (3) the need (a) in the long term, to maintain appropriate distances between establishments and residential areas, areas of public use and areas of particular natural sensitivity or interest; and (b) in the case of existing establishments, for additional technical measures in accordance with EC Council Directive 96/82 (OJ L10, 14.01.97, p 13), art 5 on the control of major-accident hazards involving dangerous substances so as not to increase the risks to people (see PARA 1211 post); and expressions appearing both in heads (1)-(3) supra and in EC Council Directive 96/82 (as amended) have the same meanings as in that Directive: see the Town and Country Planning (London Spatial Development Strategy) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1491, reg 6(1), (2).

(1) AREA SURVEY UNDER THE 2004 ACT

89. Survey of area by local planning authority.

The local planning authority¹ must keep under review the matters which may be expected to affect the development² of its area or the planning of that development³. These matters include:

- 438 (1) the principal physical, economic, social and environmental characteristics of the area of the authority;
- 439 (2) the principal purposes for which land⁴ is used in the area;
- 440 (3) the size, composition and distribution of the population of the area;
- 441 (4) the communications, transport system and traffic of the area;
- 442 (5) any other considerations which may be expected to affect those matters;
- 443 (6) such other matters as may be prescribed⁵ or as the Secretary of State⁶ or the National Assembly for Wales⁷ may, in a particular case, direct⁸.

These matters also include:

- 444 (a) any changes which the authority thinks may occur in relation to any other matter;
- 445 (b) the effect such changes are likely to have on the development of the authority's area or on the planning of such development⁹.

The local planning authority may also keep under review and examine the matters mentioned above¹⁰ in relation to any neighbouring area to the extent that those matters may be expected to affect the area of the authority¹¹. In exercising such a function a local planning authority must consult with the local planning authority¹² for the neighbouring area in question¹³.

1 For the purposes of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Pt 2 (ss 13-37) (local development in England: see the text and notes 2-13 infra; and PARA 90 et seq post), local planning authorities are: (1) district councils; (2) London borough councils; (3) metropolitan district councils; (4) county councils in relation to any area in England for which there is no district council; (5) the Broads Authority: s 37(4). A National Park authority is, however, the local planning authority for the whole of its area and s 37(4) must be construed subject to that: s 37(5). As to district, metropolitan district, London borough and county councils see PARA 28 ante; as to National Park authorities see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 526 et seq; and as to the Broads Authority see WATER AND WATERWAYS vol 101 (2009) PARA 734. The Secretary of State may direct that Pt 2 does not apply to the area of an urban development corporation: s 33. As to urban development corporations see PARA 1428 et seq post.

For the purposes of Pt 6 (ss 60-78) (development in Wales: see PARAS 87-88 ante; the text and notes 2-13 infra; and PARA 133 et seq post), local planning authorities are county councils in Wales and county borough councils: s 78(2). A National Park authority is, however, the local planning authority for the whole of its area and s 78(2) must be construed subject to that: s 78(3).

90. Survey of area by county council in England.

In relation to England, a county council¹ in respect of so much of its area for which there is a district council² must keep under review the matters which may be expected to affect development³ of that area or the planning of its development in so far as the development relates to a county matter⁴.

The Secretary of State⁵ may by regulations require or, in a particular case, may direct a county council to keep under review in relation to so much of its area as is mentioned above such of the specified matters⁶ as he prescribes⁷ or directs, as the case may be⁸. For these purposes, it is immaterial whether any development relates to a county matter⁹. If a matter which is prescribed or in respect of which the Secretary of State gives a direction relates to any neighbouring area¹⁰ the county council must consult the local planning authority¹¹ for the area in question¹². Each county council must keep under review, in relation to that part of its area for which there is a district council, the following matters:

- 446 (1) the principal physical, economic, social and environmental characteristics of the authority;
- 447 (2) the size, composition and distribution of the population of the area;
- 448 (3) the communications, transport system and traffic of the area;
- 449 (4) any other considerations which may be expected to affect those matters¹³.

The county council must make available the results of its review of the required matters¹⁴ to such persons as the Secretary of State prescribes or directs, as the case may be¹⁵. The persons prescribed for these purposes are:

- 450 (a) any local planning authority any part of whose area lies within the area of the county council; and
- 451 (b) if the regional planning body¹⁶ within whose area the area of the county council lies requests a copy of the results of that review, that body¹⁷.

Section 13(2)-(6) (see PARA 89 ante) applies for the purposes of s 14(1) as it applies for the purposes of s 13; and references to the local planning authority must be construed as references to the county council: s 14(2).

PARAS 1009-1508)/3. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(2) DEVELOPMENT PLANS UNDER THE 2004 ACT/(i) In general/91. Meaning of 'development plan'.

(2) DEVELOPMENT PLANS UNDER THE 2004 ACT

(i) In general

91. Meaning of 'development plan'.

A reference to the development plan in any of the specified enactments¹ must be construed in accordance with the following provisions². For the purposes of:

- 452 (1) any area in Greater London³, the development plan is:
- 41
58. (a) the spatial development strategy⁴; and
59. (b) the development plan documents, taken as a whole, which have been adopted or approved in relation to that area⁵;
- 42
- 453 (2) any other area in England, the development plan is:
- 43
60. (a) the regional spatial strategy⁶ for the region in which the area is situated; and
61. (b) the development plan documents, taken as a whole, which have been adopted or approved in relation to that area⁷;
- 44
- 454 (3) any area in Wales, the development plan is the local development plan adopted or approved in relation to that area⁸.

If to any extent a policy contained in a development plan⁹ for an area conflicts with another policy in the development plan, the conflict must be resolved in favour of the policy which is contained in the last document to be adopted, approved or published, as the case may be¹⁰.

If regard is to be had to the development plan for the purpose of any determination to be made under the planning Acts, the determination must be made in accordance with the plan unless material considerations¹¹ indicate otherwise¹².

1 Ie any enactment mentioned in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 38(7): s 38(1). The enactments there mentioned are: (1) the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004; (2) the planning Acts; (3) any other enactment relating to town and country planning; (4) the Land Compensation Act 1961 (see COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND); (5) the Highways Act 1980 (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES): Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 38(7). 8 Ibid s 38(4). During the transitional period, however, a reference in an enactment mentioned in s 38(7) (see note 1 supra) to the development plan for an area in Wales is a reference to the development plan for that area for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 27A (as added: repealed with savings) (see PARA 150 post); and for these purposes the transitional period is the period starting on 15 October 2005 and ending for each area on the date that a local development plan is adopted or approved for that area: Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 (Commencement No 6, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2005, SI 2005/2847, art 3(1), (2).

UPDATE

91 Meaning of 'development plan'

TEXT AND NOTES--A development plan document must be construed in accordance with the 2004 Act s 37(3) (see PARA 96): Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 38(9) (added by the Planning Act 2008 s 180(1), (7)). Local authorities have powers to set requirements for energy use and energy efficiency in their development plans: see Planning and Energy Act 2008; and PARA 91A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/3. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(2) DEVELOPMENT PLANS UNDER THE 2004 ACT/(i) In general/91A. Requirements for energy use and efficiency in development plans.

91A. Requirements for energy use and efficiency in development plans.

A local planning authority in England may in its development plan documents, and a local planning authority in Wales may in its local development plan, include policies imposing reasonable requirements for (1) a proportion of energy used in development in their area to be energy from renewable sources in the locality of the development; (2) a proportion of energy used in development in their area to be low carbon energy from sources in the locality of the development; and (3) development in their area to comply with energy efficiency standards that exceed the energy requirements of building regulations: Planning and Energy Act 2008 s 1(1). 'Development plan document' has the same meaning as in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Pt 2 (ss 13-37) (see PARA 96 NOTE 4); and 'local planning authority' has the same meaning as in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 (see PARAS 28-36): Planning and Energy Act 2008 s 2. 'Energy efficiency standards' means standards for the purpose of furthering energy efficiency that are set out or referred to in regulations made by the appropriate national authority under or by virtue of any other enactment, or set out or indorsed in national policies or guidance issued by the appropriate national authority; and 'energy requirements', in relation to building regulations, means requirements of building regulations in respect of energy performance or conservation of fuel and power: Planning and Energy Act 2008 s 1(2). 'Appropriate national authority' means the Secretary of State, in the case of a local planning authority in England, or the Welsh Ministers, in the case of a local planning authority in Wales: Planning and Energy Act 2008 s 1(3).

Policies included in development plan documents under the powers so conferred must not be inconsistent with relevant national policies for England or Wales and those powers are subject to the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 ss 19 (in the case of a local planning authority in England) (see PARA 104) and 62 (in the case of a local planning authority in Wales) (see PARA 135): Planning and Energy Act 2008 s 1(4)-(6). 'Relevant national policies' are (a) national policies relating to energy from renewable sources, in the case of policies included by virtue of head (1) above; (b) national policies relating to low carbon energy, in the case of policies included by virtue of head (2); and (c) national policies relating to furthering energy efficiency, in the case of policies included by virtue of head (3).

94. Constitution of joint committees and additional functions.

If one or more local planning authorities¹ agree with one or more county councils² in relation to any area of such a council for which there is also a district council³ to establish a joint committee to be, for the purposes of Part 2 of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004⁴, the local planning authority:

- 473 (1) for the area specified in the agreement;
- 474 (2) in respect of such matters as are so specified, the following provisions apply⁵. The Secretary of State⁶ may by order constitute a joint committee to be the local planning authority:

- 475 (a) for the area;
- 476 (b) in respect of those matters⁷.

Such an order must specify the authority or authorities and county council or councils (the 'constituent authorities') which are to constitute the joint committee⁸ and may make provision as to such other matters as the Secretary of State thinks are necessary or expedient to facilitate the exercise by the joint committee of its functions⁹. Nothing in these provisions¹⁰, however, confers on a local planning authority constituted by virtue of such an order any function¹¹ in relation to survey¹².

The policies adopted by the joint committee in the exercise of its functions under Part 2 of the 2004 Act must be taken for the purposes of the planning Acts¹³ to be the policies of each of the constituent authorities which is a local planning authority¹⁴. If, however, an order constituting a joint committee under the above provisions is annulled in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament, then:

- 477 (i) with effect from the date of the resolution the joint committee ceases to be the local planning authority as mentioned in heads (a) and (b) above;
- 478 (ii) anything which the joint committee, as the local planning authority, was required to do for the purposes of Part 2 of the Act must be done for its area by each local planning authority which was a constituent authority of the joint committee;
- 479 (iii) each of those local planning authorities must revise its local development scheme accordingly¹⁵.

If the constituent authorities to a joint committee agree that the joint committee is to be, for the purposes of Part 2 of the Act, the local planning authority for any area or matter which is not the subject of an order under the above provisions, or an earlier such agreement¹⁶, then each of the constituent authorities and the joint committee must revise its local development scheme in accordance with the agreement¹⁷. With effect from the date when the last such revision takes effect the joint committee is, for the purposes of that Part, the local planning authority for that area or matter¹⁸.

If a constituent authority¹ requests the Secretary of State² to revoke an order constituting a joint committee³ as the local planning authority⁴ for any area or in respect of any matter, the following provisions apply⁵. The Secretary of State may revoke the order⁶; and any step taken by the joint committee in relation to a local development scheme⁷ or a local development document⁸ must be treated for the purposes of any corresponding scheme or document⁹ as a step taken by a successor authority¹⁰. If the revocation takes effect at any time when an independent examination is being carried out¹¹ in relation to a local development document the examination must be suspended¹²; but if before the end of the period prescribed¹³ for these purposes, a specified successor authority¹⁴ requests the Secretary of State to do so he may direct that:

- 480 (1) the examination is resumed in relation to the corresponding document;
- 481 (2) any step taken for the purposes of the suspended examination has effect for the purposes of the resumed examination¹⁵.

Subject to the Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2204, reg 47(5), for the purposes of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 31(3), (6) a corresponding document is a document which (1) does not relate to any part of the area of the constituent authority which requested the revocation of the order; and (2) with respect to the area of the successor authority, has substantially the same effect as the original local development document ('LDD'): Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2204, reg 47(2). Head (1) supra does not apply where the constituent authority is a county council for which there is also a district council: reg 47(5).

For the purposes of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 31(3), a corresponding scheme is a scheme of a successor authority which (a) specifies a document that is a corresponding document for the purposes of s 31(3); but (b) does not specify the original LDD, as a document which is to be an LDD; and in head (b) supra, 'original LDD' means an LDD prepared by the joint committee constituted by the order under s 29: Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2204, reg 47(3), (4).

B. DEVELOPMENT SCHEMES

(A) LOCAL DEVELOPMENT SCHEMES

96. Preparation of local development scheme.

The local planning authority¹ must prepare and maintain a scheme to be known as its local development scheme². The scheme must specify:

- 482 (1) the documents which are to be local development documents³;
- 483 (2) the subject matter and geographical area to which each document is to relate;
- 484 (3) which documents are to be development plan documents⁴;
- 485 (4) which documents, if any, are to be prepared jointly with one or more other local planning authorities⁵;
- 486 (5) any matter or area in respect of which the authority has agreed, or proposes to agree, to the constitution of a joint committee⁶;
- 487 (6) the timetable for the preparation and revision of the documents;
- 488 (7) such other matters as are prescribed⁷.

The matters, in addition to those mentioned in heads (1) to (7) above, to be specified in a local development scheme or any revision of such a scheme⁸ are:

- 489 (a) in relation to each document to be specified in the scheme or revision as a local development document (an 'LDD'):
- 45 62. (i) its proposed title;
- 63. (ii) its proposed subject matter; and
- 64. (iii) the area proposed to be covered by the document;
- 46 490 (b) in relation to each document to be specified in the scheme or revision as a supplementary planning document (an 'SPD')⁹, the month and year in which the local planning authority or county council, as the case may be, intends to comply with the prescribed requirements for public participation¹⁰ and to adopt the document;
- 491 (c) in relation to each document to be specified in the scheme or revision as a development plan document (a 'DPD') and the local planning authority's statement of community involvement¹¹, the date on which the local planning authority intends to comply with:
- 47 65. (i) the prescribed requirements for pre-submission public participation¹²;
- 66. (ii) the statutory requirements for submission to the Secretary of State for independent examination¹³;
- 48

- 492 (d) in relation to proposals to which any of the specified transitional provisions applies¹⁴:
- 49
67. (i) the timetable for the preparation of the proposals, including the month and year in which the local planning authority intends to adopt the proposals; and
68. (ii) where the proposals are for the alteration of a plan, the area and subject matter of the proposals¹⁵.
- 50

The local planning authority must prepare the scheme in accordance with such other requirements as are prescribed¹⁶. When a local development scheme is prepared it must specify that the adopted proposals map¹⁷ will be revised:

- 493 (A) at the same time as any DPD is adopted;
- 494 (B) so as to illustrate geographically the application of the policies in the DPD or revision¹⁸.

The local planning authority must submit the scheme to the Secretary of State at such time as is prescribed¹⁹ or as the Secretary of State, in a particular case, directs²⁰. It must also at that time send a copy of the scheme to the regional planning body (the 'RPB')²¹ or, if the authority is a London borough council²², to the Mayor of London²³.

For the purpose of bringing a local development scheme¹ or any revision of such a scheme² into effect, the requirements of one of heads (1) to (4) below must be met and the local planning authority³ must resolve that the scheme is to have effect and must specify in that resolution the date from which the scheme is to have effect⁴. The specified requirements are as follows:

- 498 (1) that, before the end of the relevant period⁵, the local planning authority has received from the Secretary of State⁶ notice that he does not intend to give the authority a direction⁷ to amend the scheme⁸;

Where a local development scheme takes effect in accordance with the above provisions, a local planning authority must make a copy of the scheme available for inspection¹³ at its principal office during normal office hours and must publish the scheme on its website¹⁴.

The time mentioned in reg 49(2): (1) where the copies, documents, representations, directions, matters, notices or statements relate to a supplementary planning document (an 'SPD') or to the local planning authority's statement of community involvement (see PARA 103 post), is three months after the day on which the SPD or statement of community involvement is adopted; (2) where the copies, documents, representations, directions, matters, notices or statements relate to a development plan document (a 'DPD'), is the end of the period of six weeks referred to in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 113(4) (period for challenging the validity of relevant documents: see PARA 42 ante) that applies as regards the DPD concerned: Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2204, reg 49(3). The local planning authority¹ must revise its local development scheme²:

- 502 (1) at such time as it considers appropriate;

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(2) DEVELOPMENT PLANS UNDER THE 2004 ACT/(ii) Local Development in England/C. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT DOCUMENTS/(A) In general/101. Local development documents; in general.

C. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT DOCUMENTS

(A) IN GENERAL

101. Local development documents; in general.

A document is a local development document only in so far as it or any part of it:

506 (1) is adopted by resolution of the local planning authority¹ as a local development document;

507 (2) is approved² by the Secretary of State³.

Documents which must be specified in the local development scheme⁴ as local development documents are documents of such descriptions as are prescribed⁵ and the local planning authority's statement of community involvement⁶. The local planning authority may also specify in the scheme such other documents as it thinks are appropriate⁷.

The descriptions of document prescribed for these purposes which must be specified as local development documents ('LDDs') in a local development scheme are:

508 (a) a core strategy, that is to say any document containing statements of:

74. (i) the development and use of land which the local planning authority wishes to encourage during any specified period;

75. (ii) objectives relating to design and access which the local planning authority wishes to encourage during any specified period;

76. (iii) any environmental, social and economic objectives which are relevant to the attainment of the development and use of land mentioned in head (i) above;

77. (iv) the authority's general policies in respect of the matters referred to in heads (i) to (iii) above⁸; and

509 (b) where a document of the description mentioned in head (a) above contains policies applying to sites or areas by reference to an Ordnance Survey map⁹, a submission proposals map, that is to say an LDD which accompanies a development plan document (a 'DPD')¹⁰ and shows how the adopted proposals map¹¹ is to be amended as a result of the submission¹² of that DPD to the Secretary of State¹³.

The descriptions of other documents prescribed for these purposes which, if prepared, must be specified as LDDs in a local development scheme are:

- 510 (A) an area action plan, that is to say any document which relates to part of the area of the local planning authority, identifies that area as an area of significant change or special conservation and contains the authority's policies relevant to areas of significant change or special conservation¹⁴; and
- 511 (B) any other document which includes a site allocation policy¹⁵.

The local development documents must, taken as a whole, set out the authority's policies, however expressed, relating to the development¹⁶ and use¹⁷ of land¹⁸ in its area¹⁹. In the case of the documents which are included in a minerals and waste development scheme²⁰ they must also, taken as a whole, set out the authority's policies, however expressed, in relation to development which is²¹ a county matter²².

If to any extent a policy set out in a local development document conflicts with any other statement or information in the document the conflict must be resolved in favour of the policy²³.

The authority must keep under review its local development documents having regard to the results of any review²⁴ carried out²⁵.

Regulations under these provisions may prescribe which descriptions of local development documents are development plan documents²⁶. They may also prescribe the form and content of the local development documents²⁷ and the time at which any step in the preparation of any such document must be taken²⁸.

9 'Ordnance Survey map' means a map produced by Ordnance Survey or a map on a similar base at a registered scale: reg 2(1).

10 For the meaning of 'development plan document' see PARA 96 note 4 ante.

11 For these purposes, 'the adopted proposals map' means a document which (1) when first adopted shows the matters specified in the Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2204, reg 14(4); (2) is revised in the manner specified in reg 9 (see PARA 96 ante); and (3) consists of text and maps, of which the text prevails if the map and text conflict: regs 2(1), 6(6). The adopted proposals map must be comprised of or contain a map of the local planning authority's area which must (a) be reproduced from, or based on, an Ordnance Survey map; (b) show National Grid lines and reference numbers; and (c) include an explanation of any symbol or notation which it uses: reg 14(1). The adopted proposals map may contain a map, called an inset map, which must (i) comply with the requirements in heads (a)-(c) supra; (ii) be drawn to a larger scale than the map referred to in reg 14(1); and (iii) show the application of the local planning authority's policies to part of the authority's area: reg 14(2). Where the adopted proposals map includes an inset map, the area covered by the inset map must be identified on the map referred to in reg 14(2), and the application of the local planning authority's policies to that area must be shown on the inset map only: reg 14(3). When the adopted proposals map is first adopted it must illustrate geographically the application of the policies in any DPD adopted at the same time and an old policy which applies at that time: reg 14(4).

102. Form and content of local development documents; in general.

Except in the case of the submission proposals map or the adopted proposals map¹:

- 512 (1) a local development document (an 'LDD')² must contain a reasoned justification of the policies contained in it³;
- 513 (2) those parts of an LDD which comprise the policies of the LDD and those parts which comprise the reasoned justification required by head (1) above must be clearly identified⁴;
- 514 (3) and only if it includes a site allocation policy⁵, a development plan document (a 'DPD')⁶ must include a submission proposals map showing the changes which will result to the adopted proposals map if the DPD is adopted⁷.

An LDD must contain a title which must name the local planning authority⁸ by which the LDD is prepared⁹ and indicate whether the document is a DPD or a supplementary planning document (an 'SPD')¹⁰. An LDD must also contain a sub-title which must indicate the subject matter of the document and the date on which the document is adopted¹¹.

Where a DPD contains a policy that is intended to supersede another policy, it must state that fact and identify the superseded policy¹². Except for the core strategy¹³, and subject to other prescribed exceptions¹⁴, the policies contained in a DPD must be in conformity with either:

- 515 (a) where a core strategy has been adopted, the policies in the core strategy, or
- 516 (b) in any other case, the policies¹⁵ in the development plan¹⁶.

The policies in an SPD must be in conformity with:

- 517 (i) the policies in the core strategy;
- 518 (ii) the policies in any other DPD; or
- 519 (iii) if neither head (i) nor head (ii) applies, an old policy¹⁷.

103. Statement of community involvement.

The local planning authority¹ must prepare a statement of community involvement². The statement of community involvement is a statement of the authority's policy as to the involvement in the exercise of specified functions of the authority³ of persons who appear to the authority to have an interest in matters relating to development⁴ in its area⁵. For certain statutory purposes⁶ the statement of community involvement is not a local development document⁷. With certain modifications, however, the requirement for independent examination⁸ applies to the statement of community involvement as if it were a development plan document⁹. Furthermore, in the specified statutory provisions¹⁰ references to a development plan document include references to the statement of community involvement¹¹; and Part 6 of the relevant regulations¹² applies to a local planning authority's statement of community involvement as it applies to a development plan document (a 'DPD')¹³.

520 (1) national policies and advice contained in guidance issued by the Secretary of State⁴;

521 (2) the regional spatial strategy (the 'RSS')⁵ for the region⁶ in which the area of the authority is situated, if the area is outside Greater London⁷;

- 533 (d) the objectives of preventing major accidents¹⁷ and limiting the consequences of such accidents;
- 534 (e) the need:
- 57 78. (i) in the long term, to maintain appropriate distances between establishments¹⁸ and residential areas, buildings and areas of public use, major transport routes as far as possible, recreational areas and areas of particular natural sensitivity or interest; and

In preparing the other local development documents the authority must also comply with its statement of community involvement²³; but this does not apply at any time before the authority has adopted that statement²⁴.

The local planning authority must also carry out an appraisal of the sustainability of the proposals in each document and prepare a report of the findings of the appraisal²⁵.

The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision as to any further documents which must be prepared by the authority in connection with the preparation of a local development document and as to the form and content of such documents²⁶.

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(2) DEVELOPMENT PLANS UNDER THE 2004 ACT/(ii) Local Development in England/C. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT DOCUMENTS/(A) In general/105. Conformity with regional strategy.

105. Conformity with regional strategy.

The local development documents¹ must be in general conformity with:

- 537 (1) the regional spatial strategy (the 'RSS')² if the area of the local planning authority³ is in a region other than London⁴;
- 538 (2) the spatial development strategy⁵ if the local planning authority is a London borough council⁶.

A local planning authority whose area is in a region other than London:

- 539 (a) must request the opinion in writing of the regional planning body (the 'RPB')⁷ as to the general conformity of a development plan document⁸ with the RSS;
- 540 (b) may request the opinion in writing of the RPB as to the general conformity of any other local development document with the RSS⁹.

Not later than the end of the period prescribed¹⁰ for these purposes the RPB must send its opinion to the Secretary of State and to the local planning authority¹¹.

A local planning authority which is a London borough council:

- 541 (i) must request the opinion in writing of the Mayor of London¹² as to the general conformity of a development plan document with the spatial development strategy;
- 542 (ii) may request the opinion in writing of the Mayor as to the general conformity of any other local development document with the spatial development strategy¹³.

Whether or not the local planning authority makes a request for an opinion as mentioned above, the RPB or the Mayor, as the case may be, may give an opinion as to the general conformity of a local development document with the RSS or the spatial development strategy, as the case may be¹⁴.

If in the opinion of the RPB a document is not in general conformity with the RSS, the RPB must be taken to have made representations¹⁵ seeking a change to the document¹⁶; but the Secretary of State may in any case direct that this provision must be ignored¹⁷. If in the opinion of the Mayor a document is not in general conformity with the spatial development strategy the Mayor must be taken to have made representations seeking a change to the document¹⁸.

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(2) DEVELOPMENT PLANS UNDER THE 2004 ACT/(ii) Local Development in England/C. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT DOCUMENTS/(A) In general/106. Joint local development documents.

106. Joint local development documents.

Two or more local planning authorities¹ may agree to prepare one or more joint local development documents². A joint local development document is a local development document prepared jointly by two or more local planning authorities³.

Part 2 of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004⁴ applies for the purposes of any step which may be or is required to be taken in relation to a joint local development document as it applies for the purposes of any step which may be or is required to be taken in relation to a local development document⁵; and for those purposes anything which must be done by or in relation to a local planning authority in connection with a local development document must be done by or in relation to each of the authorities mentioned above in connection with a joint local development document⁶.

1 For the meaning of 'local planning authority' for these purposes see PARA 89 note 1 ante.

2 Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 28(1). For the meaning of 'local development document' see PARA 92 note 7 ante. As to withdrawal from such an agreement see PARA 107 post.

5 Ibid s 28(2).

6 Ibid s 28(3). Any requirement of Pt 2 in relation to the regional spatial strategy (the 'RSS') is a requirement in relation to the RSS for the region in which each authority mentioned in s 28(1) is situated; and if those authorities include one or more London borough councils the requirements of Pt 2 in relation to the spatial development strategy also apply: s 28(4), (5). As to the RSS see PARA 72 ante; and as to the spatial development strategy see PARA 86 ante; and LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 189 et seq. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(2) DEVELOPMENT PLANS UNDER THE 2004 ACT/(ii) Local Development in England/C. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT DOCUMENTS/(A) In general/107. Withdrawal from an agreement to prepare joint local development documents.

107. Withdrawal from an agreement to prepare joint local development documents.

The following provisions apply if a local planning authority¹ withdraws from an agreement² to prepare one or more joint local development documents³. Any step taken in relation to the document must be treated as a step taken by:

- 543 (1) an authority which was a party to the agreement for the purposes of any corresponding document⁴ prepared by it;
- 544 (2) two or more other authorities who were parties to the agreement for the purposes of any corresponding joint local development document⁵.

Any independent examination⁶ of a local development document to which the agreement relates must be suspended⁷. If before the end of the period prescribed⁸ for these purposes, however, an authority which was a party to the agreement requests the Secretary of State to do so, he may direct that the examination is resumed in relation to the corresponding document and any step taken for the purposes of the suspended examination has effect for the purposes of the resumed examination⁹.

1 For the meaning of 'local planning authority' for these purposes see PARA 89 note 1 ante.

2 I.e. such an agreement as is mentioned in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 28(1): see PARA 106 ante.

3 Ibid s 28(6). For the meaning of 'local development document' see PARA 92 note 7 ante.

4 The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision as to what is a corresponding document: ibid s 28(11). As to the making of regulations generally see PARA 5 ante; and as to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

A corresponding document for these purposes is a document which (1) does not relate to any part of the area of the authority that has withdrawn from the agreement; and (2) with respect to the areas of the local planning authorities which prepared it, has substantially the same effect as the original joint document; and 'original joint document' means a joint local development document ('LDD') prepared pursuant to the agreement: Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2204, reg 46(2), (3).

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(2) DEVELOPMENT PLANS UNDER THE 2004 ACT/(ii) Local Development in England/C. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT DOCUMENTS/(B) Independent Examination of Development Plan Documents/108. Submission for independent examination.

(B) INDEPENDENT EXAMINATION OF DEVELOPMENT PLAN DOCUMENTS

108. Submission for independent examination.

The local planning authority¹ must submit every development plan document² to the Secretary of State³ for independent examination⁴. The purpose of an independent examination is to determine in respect of the development plan document:

- 545 (1) whether it satisfies the specified statutory requirements⁵;
- 546 (2) whether it is sound⁶.

The authority must not, however, submit such a document unless it has complied with any relevant requirements contained in regulations under Part 2 of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004⁷ and it thinks the document is ready for independent examination⁸.

The authority must also send to the Secretary of State, in addition to the development plan document, such other documents, or copies of documents, as are prescribed and such information as is prescribed⁹. The documents prescribed for these purposes are:

- 547 (a) the sustainability appraisal report¹⁰;
- 548 (b) if the authority has adopted its statement of community involvement¹¹, that statement;
- 549 (c) a statement setting out:
 - 59 80. (i) which of the specified bodies the authority has consulted¹²;
 - 81. (ii) how these bodies, and any other persons whom the authority has consulted, were consulted;
 - 82. (iii) a summary of the main issues raised in those consultations; and
 - 83. (iv) how those main issues have been addressed in the development plan document (the 'DPD');
 - 60
- 550 (d) a statement setting out:
 - 61 84. (i) if representations were made¹³, the number of representations made, a summary of the main issues raised in those representations, and how those main issues have been addressed in the DPD; or
 - 85. (ii) that no such representations were made;
 - 62
- 551 (e) such supporting documents as in the opinion of the authority are relevant to the preparation of the DPD¹⁴.

The examination must be carried out by a person appointed by the Secretary of State¹⁵. Any person who makes representations seeking to change a development plan document¹⁶ must, if he so requests, be given the opportunity to appear before and be heard by the person carrying out the examination¹⁷. Where a person requests such an opportunity, the local planning authority must, at least six weeks before the opening of an independent examination, publish on its website the time and place at which the examination is to be held and the name of the person appointed to carry out the examination¹⁸. It must also notify any person who has made a representation¹⁹ and not withdrawn it of those matters²⁰ and must give notice by local advertisement²¹ of those matters²².

The person appointed to carry out the examination must make recommendations and give reasons for the recommendations²³; and the local planning authority must publish the recommendations and the reasons²⁴. When the local planning authority complies with this requirement for publication it must:

- 552 (A) make the recommendations of the person appointed and his reasons for those recommendations available for inspection²⁵ during normal office hours at the places at which the pre-submission proposals documents²⁶ were made available²⁷;
- 553 (B) publish the recommendations and reasons on its website; and
- 554 (C) give notice to those persons who requested to be notified of the publication of the recommendations of the person appointed that they have been so published²⁸.

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(2) DEVELOPMENT PLANS UNDER THE 2004 ACT/(ii) Local Development in England/C. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT DOCUMENTS/(C) Consultation and Public Participation/109. Public participation before adoption of a supplementary planning document.

(C) CONSULTATION AND PUBLIC PARTICIPATION

109. Public participation before adoption of a supplementary planning document.

Before a local planning authority¹ adopts a supplementary planning document (an 'SPD')² it must:

- 555 (1) make copies of the SPD documents³ and a statement of the SPD matters⁴ available for inspection during normal office hours at its principal office and at such other places within its area as the authority considers appropriate⁵; and
- 556 (2) prepare a statement setting out:
- 63
86. (a) the names of any persons whom the authority consulted in connection with the preparation of the SPD;
87. (b) how those persons were consulted;
88. (c) a summary of the main issues raised in those consultations;
89. (d) how those issues have been addressed in the SPD⁶.
- 64

At the time the authority complies with head (1) above it must publish on its website the SPD documents, the SPD matters, and a statement of the fact that the SPD documents are available for inspection and of the places and times at which they can be inspected⁷. At that time it must also send to each of the specific consultation bodies⁸, to the extent that the local planning authority thinks that the SPD affects the body, and to such of the general consultation bodies⁹ as the local planning authority considers appropriate:

- 557 (i) the SPD;
- 558 (ii) the sustainability appraisal report¹⁰;
- 559 (iii) the consultation statement¹¹;
- 560 (iv) such of the supporting documents as are relevant to the body to which the documents are being sent;
- 561 (v) notice of the SPD matters; and
- 562 (vi) the statement¹² of the fact that the SPD documents are available for inspection and of the places and times at which they can be inspected¹³.

The authority must also give notice at that time by local advertisement¹⁴ of the SPD matters and of the fact that the SPD documents are available for inspection and the places and times at which they can be inspected¹⁵; and must make a request¹⁶ for an opinion as to conformity with regional strategy¹⁷.

Any person may make representations¹⁸ about an SPD¹⁹. Any such representations must be made within the period²⁰, and sent to the address and, where appropriate, the person, specified²¹ pursuant to the above provisions²². A local planning authority must not adopt an SPD until it has considered any representations so made and has prepared a statement setting out a summary of the main issues raised in those representations and how those main issues have been addressed in the SPD which the authority intends to adopt²³. If, however, a local planning authority thinks that a representation made in relation to a local development document²⁴ is in substance a representation or objection in respect of anything which is done or proposed to be done in pursuance of certain specified statutory provisions²⁵ then the authority may disregard the objection²⁶.

1 For the meaning of 'local planning authority' for these purposes see PARA 89 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'SPD' see PARA 96 note 9 ante; and as to adoption of an SPD see PARA 120 post.

4 For these purposes, 'SPD matters' means (1) the title of the SPD; (2) the subject matter of, and the area covered by, the SPD; (3) the period within which representations about the SPD must be made in accordance with ibid reg 18(2)(a) (see PARA 110 post); (4) the address to which and, where appropriate, the person to whom representations (whether made by way of electronic communications or otherwise) must be sent in accordance with reg 18(2)(b) (see PARA 110 post); (5) a statement that any representations may be accompanied by a request to be notified at a specified address of the adoption of the SPD: reg 16(1), (2).

5 Ibid reg 17(1)(a).

6 Ibid reg 17(1)(b). A local planning authority which has, before 28 September 2004, taken or purportedly taken any step for the purposes of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Pt 2 (ss 13-37) which is treated as having been taken after that date by virtue of the Town and Country Planning (Transitional Arrangements) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2205, reg 6(1) (see PARA 92 the text and notes 20-22 ante) must: (1) prepare, as described in the Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2204, reg 17(1), a statement about the participation of the public in the preparation of a local development document (referred to in those Regulations as a supplementary planning document); (2) as described in reg 18(4)(b) (see the text to note 23 infra), prepare a statement about representations made on a supplementary planning document; (3) make that statement available for inspection and arrange for its publication, as described in such other provisions of regs 17-19 as they relate to supplementary planning documents; but nothing in this provision requires the authority to satisfy the requirements of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 19(1) (see PARA 104 ante): Town and Country Planning (Transitional Arrangements) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2205, reg 6(2)(a), (b), (3).

NOTE 8--Strategic Rail Authority abolished: SI 2006/2925. Definition of 'specific consultation bodies' amended: SI 2009/401 (in force in part on 6 April 2010).

NOTE 13--SI 2004/2204 reg 17(2)(b) amended: SI 2009/401.

2004 ACT/(ii) Local Development in England/C. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT DOCUMENTS/(C) Consultation and Public Participation/110. Development plan documents; pre-submission consultation and public participation.

110. Development plan documents; pre-submission consultation and public participation.

Subject to the following provisions¹, before a local planning authority² complies with the requirements for pre-submission public participation³ it must consult:

- 563 (1) each of the specific consultation bodies⁴ to the extent that the local planning authority thinks that the proposed subject matter of the development plan document (the 'DPD')⁵ affects the body; and
- 564 (2) such of the general consultation bodies⁶ as the local planning authority considers appropriate⁷.

If, however, the document is the local planning authority's statement of community involvement⁸, the requirement referred to in head (1) above is satisfied:

- 565 (a) by an authority whose area is in a region⁹ other than London, if the authority consults the regional planning body¹⁰, each relevant authority¹¹ any part of whose area is in or adjoins the area of the local planning authority, and the Highways Agency¹²;
- 566 (b) by a London borough council¹³, if it consults the Mayor of London¹⁴, each relevant authority any part of whose area is in or adjoins the area of the local planning authority and the Highways Agency¹⁵.

Before a local planning authority prepares and submit a DPD to the Secretary of State¹⁶ it must make copies of the pre-submission proposals documents¹⁷ and a statement of the proposals matters¹⁸ available for inspection¹⁹ during normal office hours at its principal office and at such other places within its area as the authority considers appropriate²⁰. The authority must also publish on its website:

- 567 (i) the pre-submission proposals documents;
- 568 (ii) the proposals matters;
- 569 (iii) a statement of the fact that the pre-submission proposals documents are available for inspection and the places and times at which they can be inspected²¹.

It must send to the DPD bodies²² the authority's proposals for a DPD, such supporting documents as are relevant to the body to which the documents are being sent, notice of the proposals matters and the statement referred to in head (iii) above²³ and must give notice by local advertisement²⁴ of the proposals matters and of the fact that the pre-submission proposals documents are available for inspection and the places and times at which they can be inspected²⁵.

Any person may make representations about a local planning authority's proposals for a DPD²⁶. Any such representations must be made within a period of six weeks starting on the day the local planning authority complies with the requirement set out above to make copies of the pre-submission proposals documents and a statement of the proposals matters available for inspection²⁷ and must be sent to the address and, where appropriate, the person specified²⁸ pursuant to the above provisions²⁹. A local planning authority must not prepare and submit the DPD to the Secretary of State until it has considered any representations³⁰ so made³¹. If, however, a local planning authority thinks that a representation made in relation to a local development document³² is in substance a representation or objection in respect of anything which is done or proposed to be done in pursuance of certain specified statutory provisions³³ then the authority may disregard the objection³⁴.

The authority must comply with the direction⁷ and must not adopt the document unless the Secretary of State gives notice that he is satisfied that the authority has so complied⁸; but this does not apply if the Secretary of State withdraws the direction⁹. In the exercise of any function under these provisions the Secretary of State must have regard to the local development scheme¹⁰.

If the Secretary of State gives such a direction in respect of a supplementary planning document (an 'SPD')¹¹, the local planning authority must:

- 582 (1) make the direction available for inspection¹² during normal office hours at the places at which the SPD was made available¹³;
- 583 (2) publish the direction on its website; and
- 584 (3) at the time it complies with the prescribed procedure following adoption of the SPD¹⁴, make available for inspection during normal office hours at the places at which the SPD was made available¹⁵ and publish on its website either a statement that the Secretary of State has withdrawn the direction or the Secretary of State's notice¹⁶ that he is satisfied as mentioned above¹⁷.

If the Secretary of State gives such a direction in respect of a development plan document (a 'DPD')¹⁸, the local planning authority must:

- 585 (a) make the direction available for inspection during normal office hours at the places at which the pre-submission proposals documents¹⁹ were made available²⁰;
- 586 (b) publish the direction on its website; and
- 587 (c) at the time it complies with the prescribed procedure following adoption of the DPD²¹ publish and make available for inspection in accordance with that prescribed procedure either a statement that the Secretary of State has withdrawn the direction or the Secretary of State's notice²² that he is satisfied as mentioned above²³.

UPDATE

115 Direction not to adopt a development plan document

TEXT AND NOTES--SI 2004/2204 reg 38 amended: SI 2008/1371.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/3. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(2) DEVELOPMENT PLANS UNDER THE 2004 ACT/(ii) Local Development in England/C. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT DOCUMENTS/ (D) Intervention by the Secretary of State; Default Power/116. Calling in of development plan document.

116. Calling in of development plan document.

At any time before a development plan document¹ is adopted² by a local planning authority³ the Secretary of State⁴ may direct that the document, or any part of it, is submitted to him for his approval⁵. In the exercise of this function the Secretary of State must have regard to the local development scheme⁶.

The following provisions apply if the Secretary of State gives such a direction:

- 592 (1) the authority must not take any step in connection with the adoption of the document until the Secretary of State gives his decision;
- 593 (2) if the direction is given before the authority has submitted the document for independent examination⁷ the Secretary of State must hold an independent examination⁸;

- 594 (3) if the direction is given after the authority has submitted the document but before the person appointed to carry out the examination has made his recommendations he must make his recommendations to the Secretary of State;
- 595 (4) the document has no effect unless it or, if the direction relates to only part of a document, the part has been approved by the Secretary of State⁹.

If the direction is given¹⁰ before the local planning authority submits to the Secretary of State the development plan document (the 'DPD') to which the direction relates, the Secretary of State must carry out an appraisal of the sustainability of the proposals in the DPD or, where his direction relates to part only of the DPD, the proposals in that part and must prepare a report of the findings of the appraisal¹¹. He must also comply with the prescribed procedure for handling representations¹². If the direction is given before the local planning authority has complied with the prescribed requirements for pre-submission public participation¹³, the authority must publish the direction and make it available for inspection¹⁴ when it complies with, and in accordance with, those requirements¹⁵. If, however, the direction is given after the authority has complied with those requirements, it must make the direction available for inspection during normal office hours at the places at which the pre-submission proposals documents¹⁶ were made available¹⁷ and must publish the direction on its website¹⁸. Subject to any necessary modifications, the authority must comply with the relevant regulations¹⁹ as if it were preparing the DPD²⁰; but nothing in this provision requires a local planning authority to take again any step taken before receipt of the direction²¹.

The Secretary of State must publish the recommendations made to him by virtue of head (2) or head (3) above and the reasons of the person making the recommendations²². As soon as reasonably practicable after the Secretary of State complies with this provision, the local planning authority must make the recommendations and reasons of the person appointed to carry out the examination available for inspection during normal office hours at the places at which the pre-submission proposals documents were made available²³ and must publish the recommendations and reasons on its website²⁴.

In considering a document or part of a document submitted under the above provisions²⁵ the Secretary of State may take account of any matter which he thinks is relevant²⁶; and it is immaterial whether any such matter was taken account of by the local planning authority²⁷. If the Secretary of State proposes to depart from the recommendations of the person appointed to carry out an independent examination, he must publish the changes he proposes to make and his reasons for doing so²⁸. As soon as reasonably practicable after the Secretary of State complies with this requirement the local planning authority must:

- 596 (a) make copies of the changes and reasons and a statement of the prescribed matters²⁹ available for inspection during normal office hours at the places at which the pre-submission proposals documents were made available³⁰;
- 597 (b) publish on its website the changes and reasons, the prescribed matters referred to in head (a) above and a statement of the fact that the changes and reasons are available for inspection and the places and times at which they can be inspected;
- 598 (c) send copies of the changes and reasons to the specified bodies³¹ and notify these bodies of the prescribed matters referred to in head (a) above; and
- 599 (d) give notice by local advertisement³² of those prescribed matters and of the fact that the changes and reasons are available for inspection and the places and times at which they can be inspected³³.

Any person may make representations on the changes the Secretary of State proposes to make by sending them to the address and, where appropriate, the person specified pursuant to heads (a) to (d) above within the period of six weeks starting on the day on which the Secretary of State complies with the requirement³⁴ to publish those changes³⁵. Before the Secretary of State makes his decision³⁶ he must consider any representations³⁷ so made³⁸, unless he thinks that any such representation is in substance a representation in respect of anything which is done or proposed to be done in pursuance of specified statutory provisions³⁹, in which case he may disregard it⁴⁰.

(E) ADOPTION OF LOCAL DEVELOPMENT DOCUMENTS

119. Withdrawal of local development documents before adoption.

A local planning authority¹ may at any time before a local development document² is adopted³ withdraw the document⁴; but this does not apply to a development plan document⁵ at any time after the document has been submitted for independent examination⁶ unless:

- 606 (1) the person carrying out the examination recommends that the document is withdrawn and that recommendation is not overruled by a direction given by the Secretary of State⁷; or
- 607 (2) the Secretary of State directs that the document must be withdrawn⁸.

If any part of the area of the local planning authority is an area to which an enterprise zone scheme⁵ relates, then as soon as practicable after the occurrence of a relevant event⁶:

- 627 (a) the authority must review every local development document in the light of the enterprise zone scheme;

NOTE 2--R (on the application of Martin Grant Homes Ltd), cited, reversed, [2005] EWCA Civ 1221, [2006] LGR 210.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/3. 126. The transitional period in relation to development plans; meanings of 'old policy' and 'new policy'.

The transitional period is the period starting with 28 September 2004¹ and ending on whichever is the earlier of:

- 639 (1) the end of the period of three years;
- 640 (2) the day when in relation to an old policy, a new policy which expressly replaces it² is published³, adopted or approved⁴.

The Secretary of State⁵ may, however, direct that for the purposes of such policies as are specified in the direction head (1) above does not apply⁶.

An old policy is a policy which, immediately before 28 September 2004, forms part of a development plan for the purposes of the relevant provisions⁷ of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990⁸. A new policy is a policy which is contained in:

- 641 (a) a revision of a regional spatial strategy (an RSS);
- 642 (b) an alteration or replacement of the spatial development strategy;
- 643 (c) a development plan document⁹.

1 The commencement of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 38 (meaning of 'development plan'): see the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 (Commencement No 2, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2004, SI 2004/2202, art 2(c); and PARA 91 ante.

2 An old policy contained in a structure plan is replaced only by a new policy contained in a revision to a regional spatial strategy (an 'RSS'); and an old policy contained in a waste local plan or a minerals local plan is replaced in relation to any area of a county council for which there is a district council only by a new policy contained in a development plan document which is prepared in accordance with a minerals and waste development scheme: Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 119(1), Sch 8 para 1(6). A minerals and waste development scheme is a scheme prepared in accordance with s 16 (see PARA 100 ante): Sch 8 para 1(9). For these purposes, 'RSS' must be construed in accordance with Pt 1 (ss 1-12) (see PARA 72 et seq ante); and 'development plan document' must be construed in accordance with Pt 2 (ss 13-37) (see PARA 89 et seq ante): Sch 8 para 19(2), (3).

The repeal by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 of certain provisions in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 relating to land allocated for public authority functions in development plans¹¹ does not affect anything which is required or permitted to be done for the purposes of the provisions relating to blighted land¹² during any time when a plan mentioned in any of those repealed provisions¹³ continues¹⁴ to form part of the development plan¹⁵.

If before 28 September 2004³ the authority has complied with the requirements set out in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 for making copies of proposals and the explanatory memorandum available for inspection⁴, the relevant provisions of that Act⁵ continue to have effect in relation to the proposals⁶. If the proposals are adopted or approved by virtue this provision, the transitional arrangements regarding the development plan⁷ apply to the policies contained in the proposals as if they were policies contained in a development plan within the meaning of the 1990 Act⁸ and 24 September 2004⁹ is the date when the proposals are adopted or approved, as the case may be¹⁰.

In any other case the authority must take no further step in relation to the proposals and the proposals have no effect¹¹.

If a local planning authority withdraws from an agreement to prepare a joint local development plan⁶, the following provisions apply⁷:

- 693 (1) any step taken in relation to the plan must be treated as a step taken by: (a) an authority which was a party to the agreement for the purposes of any

138. Independent examination.

The local planning authority¹ must submit its local development plan² to the National Assembly for Wales³ for independent examination⁴. The purpose of the independent examination is to determine in respect of a local development plan:

- 696 (1) whether it satisfies the statutory requirements regarding its preparation⁵ and the requirements of the relevant regulations⁶;
- 697 (2) whether it is sound⁷.

The authority must not, however, submit a plan unless it has complied with any relevant requirements contained in regulations under Part 6 of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004⁸ and it thinks the plan is ready for independent examination⁹.

The authority must also send to the Assembly, in addition to the local development plan, such other documents, or copies of documents, and such information as is prescribed¹⁰.

The examination must be carried out by a person appointed by the Assembly¹¹. Any person who makes representations seeking to change a local development plan must, if he so requests, be given the opportunity to appear before and be heard by the person carrying out the examination¹². (3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT

(i) Introduction

148. Continuation in force of previous legislation for transitional purposes.

The provisions of Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹ relating to development plans, and certain related provisions², have effect, for the purposes of the transitional arrangements with regard to England made by Schedule 8 to the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004³ and of any regulations made pursuant thereto, as if they had not been repealed by the 2004 Act⁴. The Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999⁵ also continue to have effect for those purposes, subject, in certain cases, to prescribed⁶ amendments⁷.

Furthermore, at the date at which this title states the law, certain local planning authorities in Wales⁸ were not yet under a duty to prepare a local development plan under the new system for such plans in Wales set out in Part 6 of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004⁹ and the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991¹⁰, although revoked in relation to England and replaced by the 1999 Regulations mentioned above, and otherwise revoked in relation to Wales, continued to apply in relation to those local planning authorities¹¹.

For these reasons, the provisions of Part II of the 1990 Act and of the relevant regulations are set out in the following paragraphs¹².

6 Ie subject to the amendments prescribed by the Town and Country Planning (Transitional Arrangements) (England) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2205, regs 3-5, Schedule: see PARAS 128-130 ante.

7 The 1999 regulations came into force on 4 January 2000 and extend to England only: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 1. They apply with respect to (1) the form and content of unitary development plans and the procedure to be followed in connection with the making, alteration and replacement of such plans under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt II Ch I (ss 10-28A) (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 155 et seq post); (2) the form and content of structure plans and the procedure to be followed in connection with the alteration and replacement of such plans under Pt II Ch II (ss 29-54) (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 183 et seq post); (3) the form and content of local plans, minerals local plans and waste local plans and the procedure to be followed in connection with the making, alteration and replacement of such plans under Pt II Ch II (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 195 et seq post): Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 3.

8 See PARA 147 notes 1, 14 ante.

10 Ie the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794 (as amended): see PARA 154 et seq post. The 1991 Regulations came into force on 10 February 1992 (reg 1) and were revoked in relation to England by the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 45(1) with effect from 4 January 2000. In relation to Wales they were revoked with effect from 15 October 2005, but this is subject to transitional provisions: see the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 (Commencement No 4 and Consequential, Transitional and Savings Provisions) (Wales) Order 2005, SI

2005/2722, arts 5, 6; and PARA 147 ante. The 1991 regulations apply for those transitional purposes in relation to Wales with respect to the matters set out in note 7 head (1) supra: see the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 3(a), (c) (revoked subject to transitional provisions). Regulation 3(b), (c), which refers to the matters set out in note 7 heads (2)-(3) supra (structure and local plans) is no longer of practical effect, since, subject to the transitional provisions set out in PARA 210 post, the provisions applying to structure and local plans no longer apply in relation to Wales: see PARA 176 post.

11 See the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 (Commencement No 4 and Consequential, Transitional and Savings Provisions) (Wales) Order 2005, SI 2005/2722, art 5(1), (2), Schedule. For the purposes of the transitional arrangements set out in art 5, the following provisions continue to have effect on or after 15 October 2005 as if they had not been amended or repealed by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004, ie (1) the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt II (ss 10-54A) (as otherwise amended) (see PARA 149 et seq post); (2) s 284 (as otherwise amended) (see PARA 43 ante); (3) s 287 (as otherwise amended) (see PARA 46 ante); (4) s 296(1)(a) (see PARA 11 ante); and (5) s 303A (as added) (see PARA 658 post): Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 (Commencement No 6, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2005, SI 2005/2847, art 3(3), Schedule.

12 As to waste local plans see PARA 197 post.

13 As to resolutions adopting proposals see PARA 204 post.

14 For these purposes, references to notice of approval are, in relation to any plan or alteration made by the Secretary of State under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 51 (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 179 post), to be construed as references to notices of the making of the plan or alteration: s 54(3) (repealed with savings).

15 Ibid s 54(1) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 27, Sch 4 paras 1, 29(1); repealed with savings). Such a plan may include proposals relating to the use of Crown land: see the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 296(1)(a) (as originally enacted). References in s 54(1) (as so amended) to the provisions of any plan, notices of approval, alterations and resolutions of adoption are, in relation to a district forming part of the area to which they are applicable, to be respectively construed as references to so much of those provisions, notice, alterations and resolutions as is applicable to the district: s 54(2) (repealed with savings). Any reference in the Land Compensation Act 1961 to an area defined in the current development plan as an area of comprehensive development is to be construed as a reference to an action area for which a local plan is in force: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 54(5) (repealed with savings).

Section 54 (as amended; repealed with savings) has effect subject to s 54(4), Sch 2 Pt III (paras 1-10) (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 212 post) and the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 27, Sch 4 Pt III (paras 40-51) (repealed with savings) (see PARA 211 post): Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 54(4) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 4 paras 1, 29(2); repealed with savings). As to the application of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 54 (as amended; repealed with savings) to minerals local plans and waste local plans see PARAS 196 note 13, 197 note 10 respectively post.

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(i) Introduction/152. Exercise of functions.

152. Exercise of functions.

The functions¹ of a local planning authority² in respect of development plans under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990³, so far as still in force⁴:

724 (1) are exercisable under specified statutory provisions⁵ by the county planning authority⁶ and not by the district planning authority⁷;

725 (2) are exercisable under other specified statutory provisions⁸ by the district planning authority and not by the county planning authority; and references in those provisions to a local planning authority are to be construed accordingly⁹.

1 For the meaning of 'functions' see PARA 2 note 1 ante.

2 As to local planning authorities see PARA 28 et seq ante.

3 lie under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt II (ss 10-54A) (as amended; repealed with savings): see PARAS 149-151 ante, PARA 153 et seq post. For the meaning of 'development plan' for these purposes see PARA 149 note 3 ante.

The Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 1 para 2 (as so substituted) does not, however, apply in Greater London: Sch 1 para 2(1). LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(i) Introduction/153. Status of development plans.

153. Status of development plans.

Where, in making any determination under the planning Acts¹, regard is to be had to the development plan under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990², so far as still in force³, the determination must be made in accordance with the plan unless material considerations indicate otherwise⁴.

1 For the meaning of 'the planning Acts' see PARA 2 ante.

2 lie under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt II (ss 10-54A) (as amended) (repealed with savings): see PARAS 149-151 ante, PARA 155 et seq post. For the meaning of 'development plan' for these purposes see PARA 149 note 3 ante.

3 See PARA 148 ante.

4 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 54A (added by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 26; repealed with savings). As to what are material considerations see PARA 485 post. Failure to refer expressly to s 54A (as so added and repealed) is not necessarily fatal to a decision provided that the requirements of that provision are met: St Albans District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment and Allied Breweries Ltd (1992) 66 P & CR 432, [1993] 1 PLR 88. See also Heatherington (UK) Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment and Westminster City Council (1994) 69 P & CR 374, [1995] JPL 228 (the duty under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 54A (as so added and repealed) does not override the duty under the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 s 66(1) (see PARA 1106 post) but must be considered equally). A finding of compliance with the aims of local policies, in contrast with the policies themselves, amounts to a failure to comply with the duty under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 54A (as so added and repealed): R v Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions, ex p Richmondshire District Council (1999) 80 P & CR 302, [1999] 48 LS Gaz R 41, [1999] EGCS 148. As to whether it is appropriate to give significant weight to a policy in a draft local plan see Austin v First Secretary of State [2003] All ER (D) 72 (Feb); Gloucester City Council v First Secretary of State and Noble Organisation Ltd [2003] EWHC 540 (Admin), [2003] 2 P & CR 420, [2003] All ER (D) 331 (Mar); South Cambridgeshire District Council v First Secretary of State [2004] EWHC 2933 (Admin), [2004] All ER (D) 227 (Dec); and as to the weight to be attached to a draft unitary development plan see Warrington Borough Council v Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions [2002] All ER (D) 303 (Nov), CA. It is not 'double counting' to take into account both the presumption that development should be in accordance with the development plan pursuant to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 54A (as so added and repealed) and, as a separate consideration, the legitimate expectations of the public that a proposed development not in accordance with the plan would not be allowed to proceed: Loup v Secretary of State for the Environment (1995) 71 P & CR 175, [1996] JPL 22, CA. Where a proposed development was in substantial conflict with a unitary development plan policy, an inspector who did not adequately consider a number of other material considerations which might have outweighed that conflict was in error: B & Q plc v Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions [2002] EWHC 551 (Admin), [2002] All ER (D) 377 (Mar).

Development plans are not to be treated as legally binding documents; they are written by planners for planners and only loosely drafted and the wording of such documents is not amenable to a strict interpretative approach: Cranage Parish Council v First Secretary of State [2004] EWHC 2949 (Admin), [2004] All ER (D) 143 (Dec). As to interpretation of a development plan see eg Houghton v Secretary of State for the Environment (1995) 70 P & CR 178. In order to have regard to a development plan the decision maker must accurately identify its content: Wycombe District Council v First Secretary of State [2005] EWHC 120 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 124 (Feb). A site which does not fall within a designated shopping centre for the purposes of the local plan may nevertheless fall within the 'town centre' for the purposes of national policy guidance: see R (on the application of Co-operative Group (CWS) Ltd) v Rushcliffe Borough Council [2004] EWHC 1932 (Admin), [2004] All ER (D) 510 (Jul). For the relevant policy guidance see PPS 6--Planning for Town Centres; and as to the status of such guidance see PARA 9 ante.

154. Supply and availability of documents etc.

The Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991¹, so far as still in force in relation to Wales², and the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999³, so far as still in force in relation to England⁴, make provision with regard to:

- 726 (1) the supply of documents to the Secretary of State⁵ or, in relation to Wales, to the National Assembly for Wales⁶;
- 727 (2) the availability of documents for inspection⁷;
- 728 (3) the availability of plans after adoption or approval⁸;
- 729 (4) the keeping of an index of relevant information by the local planning authority⁹.

The 1999 Regulations also make provision regarding the use of electronic communications¹⁰.

² See PARA 148 ante.

3 In the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280 (as amended).

4 The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante.

5 See the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 32. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

6 See the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 21 (revoked subject to transitional provisions). As to the Assembly see PARA 20 ante.

7 In relation to England, and subject to the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 37(3), documents made available for inspection pursuant to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt II (ss 10-54A) (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 149 et seq ante, PARA 155 et seq post) or pursuant to the 1999 Regulations by a local planning authority making, altering or replacing a statutory plan must be made so available at the place and time specified by the authority when giving notice of their availability for inspection, and must, unless the statutory plan proposals are withdrawn, remain so available until the expiration of six weeks from the date of publication of the notice of adoption, approval or rejection of the proposals: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 37(1). The local planning authority must, on request and on payment of a reasonable charge, provide, as soon as practicable, a copy of any document so made available for inspection: reg 37(2). Adopted proposals made available for inspection under reg 19(2) (see PARA 191 note 8 post) or reg 31(2) (see PARA 168 note 11 post) and approved proposals made available for inspection under reg 35(7)(c) (see PARA 173 note 10 post) must, however, remain so available until printed copies of the proposals are made available for inspection under reg 38(1) (see note 8 infra): reg 37(3).

For similar provisions in relation to Wales see the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 26 (revoked subject to transitional provisions).

8 In relation to England, as soon as practicable after proposals for a statutory plan or for the alteration or replacement of a statutory plan have been adopted or approved, the local planning authority which prepared the proposals must secure that printed copies of the statutory plan, the statutory plan as altered, or the replacement plan, as the case may be, are available for inspection during normal office hours at its principal office and at such other places within its area as it considers appropriate and, on payment of a reasonable charge, for purchase: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 38(1). A local planning authority must continue to make printed copies of a statutory plan, altered statutory plan, or replacement plan so made available for inspection and purchase so available until the relevant plan is altered, further altered, or replaced, as the case may be: reg 38(2).

For similar provisions in relation to Wales see the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 27 (revoked subject to transitional provisions).

9 In relation to England, a local planning authority must keep an index containing the following information in respect of the development plan for its area: (1) the title of any plan forming part of or constituting the development plan for its area; (2) the date on which that plan was adopted or approved; (3) the title and date of adoption or approval of any alteration to that plan; (4) the date of the first publication of any notice given under the 1999 Regulations in respect of proposals for the making of a plan which will form part of or constitute the development plan for its area or for the alteration or replacement of such a plan; and (5) the places at which any plan, alteration or notice listed in the index may be inspected: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 39(1). In a non-metropolitan area, the index kept by the local planning authority must also contain the date of any statement supplied under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 35C (as substituted; repealed with savings) (see PARA 189 post) or the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 4 para 47 (repealed with savings) (old transitional provisions: see PARA 211 note 2 post), or prepared under the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 41 (statement of conformity: see PARA 208 post), in relation to a plan listed in the index and must identify the places at which the statement may be inspected: reg 39(2). A local planning authority must also keep a map showing the boundary of any plan listed in its index: reg 39(3). The index and map kept in accordance with reg 39 must be made available for inspection during normal office hours at the local planning authority's principal office and at such other places within its area as the authority considers appropriate: reg 39(4).

For similar provisions in relation to Wales see the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 28 (revoked subject to transitional provisions).

10 In relation to England, where any provision of the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280 (as amended): (1) requires a person to send a document, a copy of a document or any notice to another person; or (2) requires a person to notify another person of any matter; and (3) that other person has an address for the purposes of electronic communications, the document, copy, notice or notification may be sent or made by way of electronic communications: reg 46(1) (reg 46 added by SI 2004/2205). Where any provision of those regulations enables a person to make representations on any matter or document, those representations may be made (a) in writing; or (b) by way of electronic communications: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 46(2) (as so added). Where electronic communications are used as mentioned in reg 46(1) or (2) (as added), and the communication is received by the recipient outside office hours, it is to be taken to have been received on the next working day; and for these purposes 'working day' means a day which is not a Saturday, Sunday, bank holiday or other public holiday: reg 46(3) (as so added).

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/3. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(ii) Unitary Development Plans in England and Wales/155. Application of statutory provisions relating to unitary development plans.

(ii) Unitary Development Plans in England and Wales

155. Application of statutory provisions relating to unitary development plans.

The statutory provisions relating to unitary development plans¹ under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990², so far as still in force³, apply subject to certain exceptions⁴ to the area of any local planning authority⁵ in Greater London⁶ or a metropolitan county⁷, other than any area in such a county which is part of a National Park⁸. Those provisions came into force, in the area of any such local planning authority, on such day as was appointed in relation to that area by an order made by the Secretary of State⁹. The power so to make orders might be exercised so as to make different provision for different cases, including different provision for different areas¹⁰.

Until a unitary development plan has become operative under those provisions for such an area as is mentioned above¹¹, or, where parts of such a plan became operative on different dates, until every part has become operative, transitional statutory provisions¹² apply¹³.

Those statutory provisions relating to unitary development plans¹⁴ also apply to the area of any local planning authority in Wales¹⁵. Where, however, the area of a local planning authority in Wales includes (1) the whole or any part of an area prescribed¹⁶ in relation to a National Park; and (2) other land, then those provisions apply separately in relation to:

- 730 (a) the Park area¹⁷ or, if there is more than one, each Park area; and
- 731 (b) the remaining area¹⁸, and any reference therein to the area of the local planning authority, including any reference which falls to be so construed, is to be construed in its application in relation to any Park area, as a reference to that Park area, and in its application in relation to the remaining area, as a reference to that area¹⁹.

Until a unitary development plan has become fully operative²⁰ for the area of any local planning authority in Wales, certain transitional statutory provisions²¹ apply in relation to that area²².

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(ii) Unitary Development Plans in England and Wales/156. Regulations and directions.

156. Regulations and directions.

The Secretary of State¹ or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales² may³ make regulations with respect to the form and content of unitary development plans⁴ under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990⁵, so far as still in force⁶, and the procedure to be followed in connection with their preparation, withdrawal, adoption, submission, approval, making, alteration or replacement⁷. Such regulations may in particular:

- 732 (1) provide for publicity to be given to the results of any review or survey carried out⁸;
- 733 (2) provide for the notice to be given of or the publicity to be given to:
77
 - 109. (a) matters included or proposed to be included in any unitary development plan;
 - 110. (b) the approval, adoption or making of any such plan or any alteration or replacement of it; or
 - 111. (c) any other prescribed⁹ procedural step,
- 734 and for publicity to be given to the procedure to be followed¹⁰;
- 735 (3) make provision with respect to the making of an application to the Mayor of London¹¹ for a written opinion as to whether the unitary development plan is in general conformity with the spatial development strategy¹² and the giving by him of such an opinion, including provision as to the time within which such an application or opinion must be made or given;
- 736 (4) make provision with respect to the making and consideration of representations with respect to matters to be included in, or objections to, any such plan or proposals for its alteration or replacement;
- 737 (5) make provision with respect to the circumstance in which representation with respect to the matters to be included in a plan or proposals are to be treated¹³ as being objections made in accordance with the regulations¹⁴;
- 738 (6) provide, without prejudice to head (2) above, for notice to be given to particular persons of the approval, adoption, alteration or replacement of any plan if they have objected to the plan and have notified the local planning authority¹⁵ of their wish to receive notice, subject, if the regulations so provide, to the payment of a reasonable charge;
- 739 (7) require or authorise a local planning authority to consult¹⁶ with, or consider the views of, other persons before taking any prescribed procedural step;
- 740 (8) require a local planning authority, in such cases as may be prescribed or in such particular cases as the Secretary of State or the Assembly may direct, to provide persons making a request in that behalf with copies of any plan or document which has been made public in compliance with the regulations or available for inspection¹⁷ subject, if the regulations so provide, to the payment of a reasonable charge;
- 741 (9) make provision for steps taken in compliance with the regulations in respect of a unitary development plan which has been withdrawn to be taken into account in prescribed circumstances for the purposes of complying with the regulations in respect of a subsequent unitary development plan;

742 (10) provide for the publication and inspection of any unitary development plan which has been adopted, approved or made or any document approved, adopted or made altering or replacing any such plan, and for copies of any such plan or document to be made available on sale¹⁸.

Regulations so made may make different provision for different cases¹⁹ and any provision made by regulations under these provisions as they apply in relation to England may differ from that made under them as they apply in relation to Wales²⁰.

The Secretary of State or the Assembly may²¹ give directions to any local planning authority or to local planning authorities generally:

743 (i) for formulating the procedure for the carrying out of its or their relevant statutory functions²²;

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(ii) Unitary Development Plans in England and Wales/158. Preparation of unitary development plan.

158. Preparation of unitary development plan.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², the local planning authority³ must, within such period, if any, as the Secretary of State⁴ or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales⁵ may direct, prepare for its area a plan to be known as a unitary development plan⁶. A unitary development plan must comprise two parts⁷:

753 (1) Part I must consist of a written statement formulating the authority's general policies⁸ in respect of the development⁹ and use¹⁰ of land in the authority's area¹¹;

754 (2) Part II must consist of:

- 112. (a) a written statement formulating in such detail as the authority thinks appropriate, and so as to be readily distinguishable from the other contents of the plan, its proposals for the development and use of land in its area;
- 113. (b) a map¹² showing those proposals on a geographical basis;
- 114. (c) a reasoned justification¹³ of the general policies in Part I of the plan and of the proposals in Part II of it; and
- 115. (d) such diagrams, illustrations or other descriptive or explanatory matter in respect of those general policies or proposals as the authority thinks appropriate or as may be prescribed¹⁴.

A unitary development plan must also contain such other matters as may be prescribed or as the Secretary of State or the Assembly may in any particular case direct¹⁵.

In formulating the general policies in Part I of a unitary development plan the authority must have regard to:

- 755 (i) any regional or strategic planning guidance given by the Secretary of State or the Assembly to assist it in the preparation of the plan;
- 756 (ii) current national policies;
- 757 (iii) the resources likely to be available; and
- 758 (iv) such other matters as the Secretary of State or the Assembly may prescribe or, in a particular case, direct¹⁶.

The proposals in Part II of a unitary development plan must be in general conformity with Part I¹⁷; and, in formulating its proposals therein, the authority must have regard to such information and other considerations as the Secretary of State or the Assembly may prescribe or, in a particular case, direct¹⁸. Part II of a unitary development plan may designate any part of the authority's area as an action area¹⁹ and, if an area is so designated, that Part of the plan must contain a description of the treatment proposed by the authority²⁰.

In preparing a unitary development plan, the authority must take into account the provisions of any scheme²¹ relating to land in its area which has been designated²² as an enterprise zone²³.

160. Unitary development plans for National Parks in Wales.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², a unitary development plan³ must be prepared for each National Park in Wales⁴. A Welsh National Park development plan⁵ must relate to an area prescribed⁶ in relation to the National Park in question by order made by the National Assembly for Wales⁷. The prescribed area in relation to a National Park which falls wholly within, but does not comprise the whole of, the area of a single local planning authority⁸ must be:

- 761 (1) where the local planning authority has so elected, the whole of the area of the local planning authority; and
- 762 (2) in any other case, either the whole of the area of the National Park or a composite area⁹.

The prescribed area in relation to any other Welsh National Park must be either the whole of the area of the National Park or a composite area¹⁰.

5 'Welsh National Park development plan' means a unitary development plan prepared for a National Park in Wales: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 23B(10) (as added and repealed: see note 4 supra). Certain Welsh National Park development plans must be joint plans: see PARA 161 post.

6 For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 16 note 5 ante.

7 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 23B(2) (as added and repealed: see note 4 supra). The statutory wording is 'by order made by the Secretary of State'; but as to the transfer of functions under s 23B(2) (as so added and repealed) to the Assembly see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1 (as amended); and as to the Assembly see PARA 20 ante. The Assembly may not so prescribe an area which is a composite area except with the consent of every local planning authority in whose area the prescribed area or any part of it would fall: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 23B(6) (as so added and repealed). Any order made under s 23B(2) (as so added and repealed) may make such saving or transitional provision as the Assembly considers appropriate: s 23B(7) (as so added and repealed). Where, by an order under s 23B(2) (as so added and repealed) the Assembly prescribes a composite area which comprises or includes part only of the area of a local planning authority, the provisions of Pt II Ch I (ss 10-28A) (as amended; repealed with savings) apply in relation to (1) the Welsh National Park development plan in question; or (2) any proposals for its alteration or replacement, subject to such modifications, if any, as may be prescribed by the order: s 23B(8) (as so added and repealed). See also note 9 infra.

For these purposes and the purposes of s 23C (as added; repealed with savings) (see PARA 161 post), 'composite area', in relation to a National Park, means an area which consists of the whole of the Park together with any one or more other areas in Wales: s 23B(5) (as so added and repealed).

161. Joint unitary development plans.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², a joint unitary development plan³ or joint proposals for the alteration or replacement⁴ of such a plan may be prepared by two or more local planning authorities⁵ in Greater London⁶ or by two or more local planning authorities in a metropolitan county⁷. Similarly, a joint unitary development plan or joint proposals for the alteration or replacement of such a plan may be prepared by two or more local planning authorities in Wales for their areas if each of those areas adjoins each of the others, or if the National Assembly for Wales⁸ has given its approval⁹; but this does not apply in relation to a joint plan for any area which consists of or includes a National Park¹⁰.

The relevant statutory provisions¹¹ have effect in relation to any such joint plan or proposals subject to the following provisions¹²:

- 763 (1) each of the local planning authorities by which a joint unitary development plan is prepared has the duty¹³ of making copies of the plan available for inspection¹⁴;
- 764 (2) objections to such a plan may be made to any of those authorities and the statement required¹⁵ to accompany copies of the plan must state that objections may be so made¹⁶;
- 765 (3) it is for each of the local planning authorities by which a joint unitary development plan is prepared to adopt the plan¹⁷ and each may do so as respects any part of its area to which the plan relates, but any modifications subject to which the plan is adopted must have the agreement of all those authorities¹⁸;
- 766 (4) where a unitary development plan has been prepared jointly, the power of preparing proposals in respect of the plan¹⁹ may be exercised as respects their respective areas by any of the authorities by which it was prepared and the Secretary of State²⁰ or, in relation to Wales, the Assembly may²¹ direct any of them to prepare proposals as respects their respective areas²²;
- 767 (5) the date of the coming into operation of a unitary development plan prepared jointly by two or more local planning authorities or for the alteration or replacement of such a plan in pursuance of proposals so prepared is to be a date jointly agreed by those authorities²³.

A Welsh National Park development plan²⁴ for a National Park which neither coincides with nor falls wholly within the area of a single local planning authority must be a joint unitary development plan²⁵. A Welsh National Park development plan for any other National Park must be a joint unitary development plan if it relates to a composite area²⁶ unless the composite area coincides with or falls wholly within the area of a single local planning authority²⁷. Any Welsh National Park development plan which is required to be a joint plan must be prepared by the authorities who will be the appropriate authorities²⁸ in relation to the plan²⁹. Any proposals prepared³⁰ for the alteration or replacement of a joint plan of such a kind must be joint proposals prepared by the appropriate authorities in relation to that plan, and any direction given by the Assembly³¹ in relation to that plan must be given jointly to those authorities³².

162. Pre-deposit consultation.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², when preparing a unitary development plan³ for its area and before finally determining its contents, the local planning authority⁴ must:

768 (1) comply with any requirements imposed by regulations⁵ and any particular direction given to it by the Secretary of State⁶ or, in relation to Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales⁷ with respect to specified publicity and consultation matters⁸; and 769 (2) consider any representations made in accordance with those regulations⁹.

Where the local planning authority for a London borough¹⁰ has prepared a unitary development plan, it must, before complying with the statutory requirements for the deposit of proposals¹¹, make an application in accordance with regulations¹² to the Mayor of London¹³ for his written opinion whether the unitary development plan is in general conformity with the spatial development strategy¹⁴. If, on such an application, the opinion given by the Mayor¹⁵ is that the unitary development plan is not in general conformity with the spatial development strategy, the giving of the opinion is to be treated as the making by the Mayor of objections in accordance with the regulations¹⁶.

In order for the transitional arrangements in relation to England set out in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 119(1), Sch 8 (see PARA 125 et seq ante) to apply to a unitary development plan, the local planning authority must have complied with the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 13(2) (as so substituted and repealed) before 28 September 2004: see PARA 129 ante.

10 For these purposes, 'the prescribed period' means such period as may be prescribed or determined in accordance with regulations made under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 26 (as amended; repealed with savings): s 13(4) (as substituted and repealed: see note 9 supra). The period within which objections and representations may be made to the local planning authority with respect to proposals for a unitary development plan, or for the alteration or replacement of such a plan, made available for inspection under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 13(2)(a) (as substituted and repealed: see note 9 supra) is (1) in relation to Wales, six weeks beginning with the date on which a notice given pursuant to the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 11(1)(b) (see note 11 infra) is first published in a local newspaper (reg 12(1)); (2) in relation to England, six weeks beginning with the date on which (a) a notice given pursuant to the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 22(1)(b) (see note 11 infra) is first published in a local newspaper; or (b) the local planning authority complies with reg 24A(3)(b) (as added) (see note 11 infra) (regs 23(1), 24A(9)(a)) (reg 24A added by SI 2004/2205). The 1991 Regulations have been revoked in relation to England subject to transitional provisions which apply in relation to Wales; and the 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante.

11 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 13(3) (as substituted and repealed: see note 9 supra).

In relation to England, a local planning authority making a local plan, waste local plan, minerals local plan or unitary development plan (ie a 'statutory plan': see the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 2(1)) or proposals for the alteration or replacement of such a plan available for inspection in accordance with the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 13(2)(a) (as substituted and repealed: see note 9 supra) or s 40(2)(a) (as substituted; repealed with savings: see PARA 201 post) must: (1) make the proposals available at its principal office and at such other places within its area as it considers appropriate; (2) give notice by advertisement in Form 6; and (3) give notice in similar form to any other person whom it considers should be given notice: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 22(1). Proposals made available for inspection must be accompanied by the statement prepared pursuant to reg 21 (see PARA 162 ante); reg 22(2). The local planning authority must send four copies of the documents made available for inspection to the Secretary of State: reg 22(3). It must send one copy of the documents made available for inspection to each of those bodies listed in reg 10(1)(c)-(f) (pre-deposit consultation with regard to structure plans: see PARA 186 note 8 post) and to any other local authority for an area covered by the plan or proposals: reg 22(4). For Form 6 see regs 2(2)(b), 22(1), Schedule, Form 6.

Where, however, a local planning authority has complied with either the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 119(1), Sch 8 para 5(2)(b) or Sch 8 para 5(3) (transitional arrangements for unitary development plans: see PARA 129 ante) or with either Sch 8 para 10(2)(b) or Sch 8 para 10(3) (transitional arrangements for local plans: see PARA 130 ante), the following procedural requirements apply: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 24A(1) (as added: see note 10 supra). The local planning authority may revise the plan or proposals or, where the authority has complied with reg 24 (revoked) the revised plan or revised proposals: reg 24A(2) (as so added). The local planning authority must: (a) make the plan or proposals available for inspection at those places at which the plan or proposals were made available under reg 22(1)(a); (b) give notice by advertisement of the following matters: (i) the title of the plan or proposals; (ii) the fact that the plan or proposals were made available under reg 22 or, as the case may be, that the revised plan or revised proposals were made available under reg 24 (revoked) and, in either case, the date on which they were first made available; (iii) if it be the case that the plan or proposals have been revised under reg 24A(2) (as so added), that fact; (iv) that copies of the plan or proposals are available for inspection and the places and times at which they can be inspected; (v) the period set out in reg 24A(9) (as so added) (see note 10 supra) and the address to which, and, where appropriate, the person to whom, representations on the plan or proposals must be made; (vi) that any such representations may be accompanied by a request to be notified at a specified address of the adoption of the plan or proposals; and (vii) where reg 24A(4) (as so added) applies, that if no objections are received during the period for receipt of representations, the authority intends to adopt the plan or proposals 28 days after the expiry of that period; and (c) notify in writing: (i) the persons referred to in reg 24A(5) (as so added); and (ii) such other persons as the authority thinks fit, of the matters referred to in reg 24A(3)(b)(i), (ii), (iv) and (v) (as so added) (see heads (i), (ii), (iv), (v) supra) and, if applicable, those referred to in reg 24A(3)(b)(iii) and (vii) (as so added) (see heads (iii), (vii) supra): reg 24A(3) (as so added). Regulation 24A(4) (as so added) applies if either at the time the local planning authority complies with reg 24A (as so added) no objections in accordance with the 1999 Regulations have been made in respect of the plan or proposals or if such objections have been made, they have been withdrawn; or if the local planning authority complies with reg 24A(2) (as so added) and those parts of it in respect of which objections have been made and not subsequently withdrawn no longer form part of the plan or proposals: reg 24A(4) (as so added). The persons referred to in reg 24A(3)(c) (as so added) are any person who, in accordance with the 1999 Regulations, has objected to, or made a representation in respect of the plan or proposals (whether or not that person has subsequently withdrawn that objection or representation): reg 24A(5) (as so added). The plan or proposals made available under reg 24A(3)(a) (as so added) (see head (a) supra) must comprise the full text of the plan or proposals and, in the case of a plan or proposal revised under reg 24A(2) (as so added), indicate clearly the revisions that have been made: reg 24A(6) (as so added). Where revisions have been made under reg 24A(2) (as so added), the plan or proposals made available must be accompanied by a list of the revisions made and need not contain a revised version of the map required by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 12(4)(b) (repealed with savings) (see PARA 158 ante) or (in relation to a local plan) s 36(6)(a) (as substituted; repealed with savings: see PARA 195 post) provided that the plan or proposals contain that map and such diagrams and maps as are necessary to indicate the revisions are annexed to that map: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 24A(7) (as so added). The authority must send four copies of the documents made available for inspection to the Secretary of State and one copy of those documents to each of the bodies listed in reg 10(1)(c)-(f) and to any other local authority any part of whose area is covered by the plan or proposals: reg 24A(8) (as so added). The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante.

In relation to Wales, a local planning authority making proposals for a statutory plan available for inspection in accordance with the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 13(2)(a) (as substituted and repealed: see note 9 supra) must: (A) make the proposals available at its principal office and at such other places within its area as it considers appropriate; (B) give notice by advertisement in the prescribed form; and (C) give notice in similar form to any consultee under the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 10(1) (see PARA 162 ante) and to any other person whom the authority considers should be given notice: reg 11(1). Proposals so made available for inspection must be accompanied by the statement prepared pursuant to reg 10(3) (see PARA 162 ante) and the local planning authority must send four copies of the documents made available for inspection to the Assembly: reg 11(2)(a), (3). For the prescribed form see regs 2(2)(b), 10(1), Schedule Form 1 (substituted by SI 1997/531). 'Statutory plan' now means a unitary development plan (see PARA 176 post); 'by advertisement' means by publication in the London Gazette and by local advertisement; and 'by local advertisement' means by publication on at least one occasion in two successive weeks in a local newspaper circulating in the area of the local planning authority: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 2(1). The 1991 Regulations have been revoked subject to transitional provisions which apply in relation to Wales: see PARA 148 ante.

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(ii) Unitary Development Plans in England and Wales/164. Objections and representations.

164. Objections and representations.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², objections and representations to be considered by the local planning authority³ must be made in accordance with the relevant regulations⁴.

Neither the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales⁵, nor a local planning authority is required⁶ to consider representations or objections with respect to a unitary development plan⁷ or any proposals for the alteration or replacement of such a plan⁸ if it appears to the Secretary of State or the Assembly or, as the case may be, to the authority that those representations or objections are in substance representations or objections with respect to things done or proposed to be done in pursuance of:

- 773 (1) an order or scheme under specified provisions⁹ of the Highways Act 1980;
- 774 (2) an order or scheme under any statutory provision replaced by those specified provisions¹⁰; or
- 775 (3) an order under specified provisions¹¹ of the New Towns Act 1981¹².

The procedure for considering objections without holding a local inquiry¹³ is prescribed by regulations¹⁴.

1 le under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt II (ss 10-54A) (as amended; repealed with savings): see PARA 149 et seq ante, PARA 165 et seq post.

2 See PARA 148 ante.

3 As to local planning authorities see PARA 28 et seq ante; and as to the authorities to which these provisions apply see PARA 155 ante.

4 See PARA 162 ante at head (2) in the text. In relation to England, objections and representations must be made in writing and addressed to the local planning authority in accordance with the details given in the published notice under the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 22 (see PARA 163 ante); reg 22(2). In addition to the requirement to consider objections imposed by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 13(6) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (see PARA 167 post) or s 40(7) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (local plans: see PARA 203 post), as the case may be, the local planning authority must also consider any representations made in accordance with the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 22: reg 22(3). In the case of a plan, or proposals for the replacement of a plan, to which reg 22 refers, a representation that matters relating to the development and use of land not included in the plan or proposals ought to have been so included must, if the representation is made within the time and in the manner required by reg 22, be treated as an objection made to the plan or proposals in accordance with the 1999 Regulations for the purpose of regs 26, 28 (as amended) and the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 16 (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 165 post) and s 42 (as amended; repealed with savings) (local plans: see PARA 202 post): Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 22(4). The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante.

Where, however, a local planning authority has complied with either the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 119(1), Sch 8 para 5(2)(b) or Sch 8 para 5(3) (transitional arrangements for unitary development plans: see PARA 129 ante) or with either Sch 8 para 10(2)(b) or Sch 8 para 10(3) (transitional arrangements for local plans: see PARA 130 ante), the following provisions apply: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 24A(1) (added by SI 2004/2205). An objection or representation is made in accordance with the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 24A (as so added) if it is made within six weeks beginning with the date on which the local planning authority complies with reg 24A(3)(b) (as so added) (see PARA 163 note 11 head (b) ante), in writing, and sent to the address, and, where appropriate, the person, specified under paragraph reg 24A(3)(b)(v) (as so added) (see PARA 163 note 11 head (b)(v) ante): reg 24A(9) (as so added). In addition to the requirement to consider objections imposed by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 13(6) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (see PARA 167 post) or s 40(7) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (local plans: see PARA 203 post), as the case may be, the local planning authority must also consider any representations made in accordance with the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 24A (as so added): reg 24A(10) (as so added). A representation (1) that matters relating to the development and use of land not included in the plan or proposals ought to have been so included; or (2) made by the Secretary of State that the plan or proposals should be modified to accord with current national policies or policies in a regional spatial strategy (an 'RSS') must, if it is made in accordance with reg 24A (as so added), be treated as an objection made to the plan or proposals in accordance with the 1999 Regulations for the purpose of regs 26, 28 (as amended) and the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 16 (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 165 post) and s 42 (as amended; repealed with savings) (local plans: see PARA 202 post): Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 24A(11) (as so added). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante; and as to the RSS see PARA 72 ante.

An opinion given by the Mayor of London that the unitary development plan is not in general conformity with the spatial development strategy is to be treated as the making by the Mayor of objections in accordance with the 1999 Regulations: see PARA 162 ante.

In relation to Wales, objections and representations must be made in writing and addressed to the local planning authority in accordance with the details given in the notice published pursuant to the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 11(1)(b) (see PARA 163 ante); and the local planning authority must, in addition to the requirement to consider objections imposed by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 13(6) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (see PARA 167 post) also consider any representations so made: see the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 12(2), (3). In the case of deposited proposals for a statutory plan or for the replacement of such a plan, a representation that matters relating to the development and use of land not included in the deposited proposals ought to have been so included is to be treated, for the purposes of reg 17 (see note 14 infra) and, in the case of statutory plan proposals reg 14 (see PARA 165 post) and the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 16 (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 165 post), as an objection made to the proposals in accordance with the regulations if the representation is made within the time and in the manner required by the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 12: reg 12(4). The 1991 Regulations have been revoked subject to transitional provisions which apply in relation to Wales: see PARA 148 ante. For the meaning of 'statutory plan' see PARA 163 note 11 ante.

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(ii) Unitary Development Plans in England and Wales/165. Local inquiries and other hearings.

165. Local inquiries and other hearings.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², where any objections have been made in accordance with the regulations³ to proposals for a unitary development plan⁴ copies of which have been made available for inspection⁵, the local planning authority⁶ must cause a local inquiry or other hearing to be held for the purpose of considering the objections⁷. The authority may also cause a local inquiry or other hearing to be held for the purpose of considering any other objections to the proposals⁸.

The local inquiry or other hearing must be held by a person appointed by the Secretary of State⁹ or, in relation to Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales¹⁰ or, in such cases as may be prescribed¹¹, by the authority itself¹². No such inquiry or hearing need, however, be so held if all persons who have made objections have indicated in writing that they do not wish to appear¹³.

Regulations made for these purposes may make provision with respect to:

- 776 (1) the appointment and qualifications for appointment of persons to hold such a local inquiry or other hearing, including provision enabling the Secretary of State or the Assembly to direct a local planning authority to appoint a particular person or one of a specified list or class of persons;
- 777 (2) the remuneration and allowances of a person appointed for that purpose¹⁴.

In relation to England, there is no longer a prescribed procedure whereby the local planning authority may modify the proposals after the inquiry¹⁵.

The Local Government Act 1972 s 250(2), (3) (as amended) (power to summon and examine witnesses: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 105) applies to an inquiry held under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 16 (as amended and repealed) as it applies to an inquiry under the Local Government Act 1972 s 250 (as amended) (Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 16(2) (repealed with savings)); and the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 applies to a local inquiry or other hearing held under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 16 (as amended and repealed) as it applies to a statutory inquiry held by the Secretary of State, but as if in the Tribunals and Inquiries Act

In relation to England, a local planning authority must, at least six weeks before the opening of any local inquiry or other hearing which it causes to be held to consider objections to a plan or proposals to which the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 22 refers (see PARA 163 ante): (1) give any person who has objected to, or made a representation in respect of, the plan or proposals in accordance with the 1999 Regulations and not withdrawn the objection or representation, notice of the time and place at which the inquiry or other hearing is to be held, the name of the person appointed to hold it, and its purpose; and (2) in the case of a local inquiry, give notice of that information by local advertisement: reg 26(1). Where, by virtue of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Sch 8 para 4 (transitional arrangements for unitary development plans: see PARA 129 ante) or Sch 8 para 9 (transitional arrangements for local plans: see PARA 130 ante), the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt I Ch I (ss 10-28A) (as amended; repealed with savings) or Pt II Ch II (ss 29-54) (as amended; repealed with savings) continue to have effect in relation to proposals, a local planning authority must, within eight weeks of receiving the report of the person holding an inquiry or other hearing to which this provision applies, make that report available for inspection at those places at which the proposals were made available under the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 22(1)(a): reg 26(2) (reg 26(2) amended, and reg 26(2A), (2B) added, by SI 2004/2205). The date so referred to is: (a) the date the authority adopt the plan or proposals; or (b) if (i) the Secretary of State issues a direction under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 17(1) (as amended) (see PARA 169 post), s 18(1) (as amended) (see PARA 170 post), s 43(4) (as amended) (local plans: see PARA 205 post) or s 44(1) (as amended) (local plans: see PARA 206 post) (all repealed with savings) (as the case may be), and (ii) that direction is issued after the local planning authority has received the report of the person holding the inquiry or other hearing, as soon as practicable after that direction is issued: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 26(2B) (as so added). the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 2(2)(b), Schedule, Form 1 or, where the authority has also given notice of its intention to adopt in Form 3 or Form 4, the period in the last such notice to be given by the authority, has expired: regs 2(2)(b), 19. LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(ii) Unitary Development Plans in England and Wales/168. Adoption of unitary development plan by local planning authority.

168. Adoption of unitary development plan by local planning authority.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², the local planning authority³ may⁴ by resolution adopt the unitary development plan⁵, either as originally prepared or as modified so as to take account of any objections to the plan or any other considerations which appear to the authority to be material⁶. A unitary development plan may not, however, be adopted unless Part II of the plan is in general conformity with Part I⁷. Nor may a unitary development plan be adopted by a London borough council⁸ unless Parts I and II of the plan are in general conformity with the spatial development strategy⁹.

A unitary development plan becomes operative¹⁰ on the date on which it is adopted¹¹. The procedures for giving notice of such adoption are prescribed by regulations¹².

The authority must also notify any person who has asked to be notified of the adoption of the plan or proposals of the matters specified in head (1)(a), (b), (d)-(f) and, if applicable, in head (1)(c) supra, and must publish the plan, the plan as altered, or the replacement plan as the case may be on its website: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 31(1)(b), (c) (as so substituted). A copy of the notice given pursuant to reg 31(1) (as so substituted) and of the adopted plan or proposals must be made available for inspection at any place at which the proposals were made available for inspection under reg 22(1)(a) (see PARA 163 ante): reg 31(2). The local planning authority must, not later than the date on which notice is first given by advertisement pursuant to reg 31(1) (as so substituted), send one copy of the adopted plan or proposals to the Secretary of State: reg 31(3) (as so amended). The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante.

In relation to Wales, when a local planning authority adopts proposals for a statutory plan or for the alteration or replacement of such a plan, it must give notice by advertisement in the prescribed form and serve notice in similar form on any person who has asked to be notified of the adoption: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 20(1). For the prescribed form of notice see regs 2(2) (b), 20(1)(a), Schedule Form 5 (substituted by SI 1997/531). A copy of the notice so given and of the adopted proposals must be made available for inspection at any place at which the proposals were made available for inspection under the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 11(1) (a) (see PARA 163 ante): reg 20(2). Adopted proposals so made available for inspection must remain so available until printed copies of the proposals are made available under reg 27(1) (see PARA 154 ante): reg 26(3). The local planning authority must, not later than the date on which notice is first given by advertisement pursuant to reg 20(1), send four copies of the adopted proposals to the National Assembly for Wales: reg 20(3); and see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1 (as amended). 169. Direction to modify proposals.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², after a copy of a unitary development plan³ has been sent⁴ to the Secretary of State⁵ or, in relation to Wales, to the National Assembly for Wales⁶, the following provisions apply⁷. Before the plan is adopted by the local planning authority⁸, the Secretary of State or the Assembly may, if it appears to him or to it that the plan is unsatisfactory, direct the authority to modify the proposals in such respects as are indicated in the direction⁹. An authority to which a direction is given may not adopt the plan unless it satisfies the Secretary of State or the Assembly that the authority has made the modifications necessary to conform with the direction or the direction is withdrawn¹⁰.

10 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 17(2) (repealed with savings).

In relation to England, where the Secretary of State directs a local planning authority to modify its proposals under s 17(1) (as amended and repealed), s 35(2) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (structure plans: see PARA 192 post) or s 43(4) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (local plans: see PARA 205 post), the authority must make a copy of the direction available for inspection at each place at which the plan or proposals were made available for inspection under the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 22(1)(a) (see PARA 163 ante): reg 33(1) (substituted by SI 2004/2205). Any notice of adoption of the proposals given pursuant to the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 19(1) (see PARA 191 post) or reg 31(1) (as so substituted) must state that the local planning authority has satisfied the Secretary of State that it has made the modifications necessary to conform with the direction to modify or that the direction has been withdrawn, as the case may be: reg 33(2). A copy of any notification by the Secretary of State that he is satisfied with the modifications made or that the direction is withdrawn must be made available for inspection from the date on which, and at the places at which, the adopted proposals are made available for inspection: reg 33(3). The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante.

In relation to Wales, where the Assembly so directs a local planning authority to modify its proposals, the authority must make a copy of the direction available for inspection with any subsequent list of modifications made so available pursuant to the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 18(1); and that list must indicate: (1) which modifications have been proposed to comply with the direction; or (2) where modifications have not been proposed to comply, or to comply fully, with the direction, the authority's reasons for not doing so: reg 22(1); and see note 6 supra. Any notice of adoption of the proposals given pursuant to reg 20(1) (see PARA 168 ante) must state that the local planning authority has satisfied the Assembly that it has made the modifications necessary to conform with the direction to modify or that the direction has been withdrawn, as the case may be: reg 22(2). 170. Calling in of unitary development plan for approval.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², after a copy of a unitary development plan³ has been sent⁴ to the Secretary of State⁵ or, in relation to Wales, to the National Assembly for Wales⁶, and before it is adopted by the local planning authority⁷, the Secretary of State or the Assembly may direct that the whole or part of the plan shall be submitted to him or to it for approval⁸. If such a direction is given:

- 780 (1) the authority may not take any further steps for the adoption of the plan until the Secretary of State or the Assembly has given his or its decision on the plan or the relevant part of it⁹; and
- 781 (2) the plan or the relevant part of it does not have effect unless approved by him or by the Assembly and does not require adoption under the normal¹⁰ statutory provisions¹¹.

8 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 18(1) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 27, Sch 4 paras 1, 9; repealed with savings).

In relation to England, if, before the local planning authority has adopted proposals for a statutory plan or for the alteration or replacement of such a plan, the Secretary of State directs the authority not to adopt the proposals until he has decided whether to give it a direction under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 18(1) (as so amended and repealed), under s 35A(1) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (structure plans: see PARA 193 post) or under s 44(1) (as amended; repealed with savings) (local plans: see PARA 206 post), as the case may be, the authority must not adopt the proposals until he has notified them of his decision: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 34. For the meaning of 'statutory plan' see PARA 163 note 11 ante. The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante.

Similarly, in relation to Wales, if, before the local planning authority has adopted proposals for such a plan or for the alteration or replacement of such a plan, the Assembly directs the authority not to adopt the proposals until it has decided whether to give the authority a direction that the whole or part of the plan be submitted to the Assembly for approval, the authority may not adopt the proposals until the Assembly has notified the authority of its decision: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794, reg 23 (revoked subject to transitional provisions); and see note 6 supra.

9 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 18(2)(a) (repealed with savings). Section 18(2)(a) (as so repealed) applies in particular to holding or proceeding with a local inquiry or other hearing in respect of the plan under s 16 (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 165 ante); and at any such inquiry or hearing which is subsequently held or resumed a local planning authority need not give any person an opportunity of being heard in respect of any objection which has been heard at an examination, local inquiry or other hearing under s 20 (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 171 post) or which the Secretary of State or the Assembly states that he or it has considered in making his or its decision: s 18(4) (repealed with savings).

171. Local inquiry after calling in.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², before deciding whether or not to approve a plan or part of a plan submitted for approval³, the Secretary of State⁴ or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales⁵ must consider any objection to it so far as made in accordance with the regulations⁶. He or the Assembly need not, however, so consider any objections which have already been considered by the local planning authority⁷.

Where the whole or part of Part II of a unitary development plan⁸ is submitted⁹ for approval, whether or not the whole or part of Part I of the plan is also submitted, then, if any objections have been made¹⁰ to the plan or the relevant part of it, the Secretary of State or the Assembly must, before deciding whether to approve it, cause a local inquiry or other hearing to be held for the purpose of considering those objections¹¹. He or the Assembly need not, however, so cause such an inquiry or hearing to be held if the local planning authority has already held a local inquiry or other hearing into the objections¹² or if the Secretary of State or the Assembly, on taking the plan or the relevant part of it into consideration, decides to reject it¹³.

The procedure for giving notice of such an inquiry or hearing is prescribed by regulations¹⁴.

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(ii) Unitary Development Plans in England and Wales/172. Public examination and consultation after calling in.

172. Public examination and consultation after calling in.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², where the whole or part of Part I of a unitary development plan³, but not the whole or any part of Part II of the plan, is submitted to the Secretary of State⁴ or, in relation to Wales, to the National Assembly for Wales⁵, he or the Assembly may cause a person or persons appointed by him or by it for the purpose to hold an examination in public of such matters affecting his or its consideration of the part of the plan so submitted as he or the Assembly considers ought to be so examined⁶. The Secretary of State or the Assembly is not, however, required to secure to any local planning authority⁷ or other person a right to be heard at such an examination, and the bodies and persons who may take part are such only as he or the Assembly may, whether before or during the course of the examination, in his or its discretion invite to do so⁸. The person or persons holding the examination, however, have power, exercisable either before or during the course of the examination, to invite additional bodies or persons to take part if it appears to him or them desirable to do so⁹.

On considering a plan or part of a plan so submitted¹⁰, the Secretary of State or the Assembly may consult¹¹ with or consider the views of any local planning authority or other person but need not¹² do so¹³.

Such an examination constitutes a statutory inquiry for the purposes of the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 s 1(1)(c) (see ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) PARA 15), but does not constitute such an inquiry for any other purpose of that Act: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 20(7) (amended by the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 s 18(1), Sch 3 para 23; repealed with savings). The Secretary of State may, after consultation with the Lord Chancellor, make regulations with respect to the procedure to be followed at any such examination: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 20(5) (repealed with savings). This function is not transferred to the Assembly so far as exercisable in relation to Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1 (as amended). The local planning authority must, on receipt of a list sent to it pursuant to reg 35(5), make that list available for inspection at any place at which the statutory plan proposals have been made available for inspection: reg 35(6). LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(ii) Unitary Development Plans in England and Wales/173. Approval by the Secretary of State or the Assembly.

173. Approval by the Secretary of State or the Assembly.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², the Secretary of State³ or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales⁴ may⁵ after considering⁶ a plan or part of a plan submitted for approval⁷, either approve it, in whole or in part and with or without modifications or reservations, or reject it⁸.

The Secretary of State or the Assembly must give a local planning authority⁹ such statement as he or the Assembly considers appropriate of the reasons governing his or its decision on any plan or part of a plan submitted to him or to it¹⁰.

Where the whole or part of Part I of a unitary development plan is approved by the Secretary of State or the Assembly with modifications, the local planning authority must, before adopting the remainder of the plan, make such modifications in Part II as may be directed by the Secretary of State or the Assembly for bringing it into general conformity with Part I and, in the absence of any such direction, must make such modifications for that purpose in Part II as appear to the authority to be required¹¹.

A plan or part of a plan which is approved by the Secretary of State or the Assembly under the above provisions becomes operative¹² on such day as he or it may appoint¹³.

6 In considering a plan or part of a plan submitted to him or to it under ibid s 18 (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 170 ante), the Secretary of State or the Assembly may take into account any matters which he or it thinks relevant, whether or not they were taken into account in preparing the plan or that part of it: s 19(2) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 27, Sch 4 paras 1, 10; repealed with savings).

7 le under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 18(1) (as amended; repealed with savings): see PARA 170 ante.

8 Ibid s 19(1) (repealed with savings).

In relation to England, where the Secretary of State is minded to approve with modifications statutory plan proposals submitted to him for his approval, he must, unless, in his opinion, the proposed modifications will not materially affect the content of the statutory plan proposals, send a list of the proposed modifications to the local planning authority, and the authority must, upon receipt of the list: (1) make copies of the list available for inspection at any place at which the statutory plan proposals were made available for inspection; (2) give notice by advertisement of the following matters: (a) the title of the statutory plan proposals; (b) the name of the local planning authority; (c) that the proposals have been submitted to the Secretary of State for his approval and the date when this occurred; (d) that the Secretary of State proposes to modify the proposals; (e) that copies of the proposals and lists of the proposed modifications are available for inspection and the places and times at which they can be inspected; (f) the period within which and the address to which representations on the proposed modifications must be made; (g) that any representations made may be accompanied by a request to be notified at a specified address of the approval or rejection of the statutory plan proposals; and (3) serve notice in similar form on any person who has objected to, or made a representation in respect of, the statutory plan proposals in accordance with the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280 (as amended), and not withdrawn the objection or representation and on any other person on whom the Secretary of State directs the authority to serve such a notice: reg 35(1) (amended by SI 2004/2205). The period within which objections or representations may be made to the Secretary of State in respect of the proposed modifications is six weeks beginning with the date on which a notice given pursuant to the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 35(1) (as so amended) is first published in a local newspaper: reg 35(2). Objections and representations must be made in writing and addressed in accordance with the details given in the notice: reg 35(3). The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante. 'Statutory plan proposals' means proposals for a statutory plan or for the alteration or replacement of a statutory plan: reg 2(1). For the meaning of 'statutory plan' see PARA 163 note 11 ante.

Similarly in relation to Wales, where the Assembly is minded to approve with modifications proposals for a unitary development plan or for the alteration or replacement of a unitary development plan submitted to it for its approval, the Assembly must, unless in its opinion the proposed modifications will not materially affect the content of the plan proposals, send a list of the proposed modifications to the local planning authority, and the authority must, upon receipt of the list: (i) make copies of the list available for inspection at any place at which the plan proposals have been made available for inspection; (ii) give notice by local advertisement in the prescribed form; and (iii) serve notice in similar form on any person who has objected to, or made a representation in respect of, the plan in accordance with the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794 (as amended), and not withdrawn the objection or representation and on any Default powers of the Secretary of State or the Assembly.

174. Default powers of the Secretary of State or the Assembly.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², where, by virtue of any of the relevant statutory provisions³, any unitary development plan⁴ or proposals for the alteration or replacement of such a plan is or are required to be prepared, or steps are required to be taken for the adoption of any such plan or proposals, then:

- 782 (1) if at any time the Secretary of State⁵ or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales⁶ is satisfied, after holding a local inquiry⁷ or other hearing, that the local planning authority⁸ is not taking the steps necessary to enable it to prepare or adopt such a plan or proposals within a reasonable period; or
- 783 (2) in a case where a period is specified for the preparation or adoption of any such plan or proposals, if no such plan or proposals has or have been prepared or adopted by the local planning authority within that period, the Secretary of State or the Assembly may prepare and make the plan or any part of it or, as the case may be, alter or replace it, as he or it thinks fit⁹.

The authority mentioned above must on demand repay to the Secretary of State or the Assembly so much of any expenses incurred by him or by the Assembly in connection with the doing of anything which should have been done by the authority as he or it certifies to have been incurred in the performance of the authority's functions¹⁰.

The relevant statutory provisions¹¹ apply so far as practicable, with any necessary modifications, in relation to the doing of anything by the Secretary of State or the Assembly under these default powers and to the thing so done¹².

In relation to England, the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280 (as amended), apply, so far as practicable and with any necessary modifications, to the making, alteration and replacement of a statutory plan by the Secretary of State pursuant to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 25 (repealed with savings) (default powers) or s 51 (as amended; (repealed with savings) (default powers with regard to local or structure plans: see PARA 179 post) as they apply to the making, alteration or replacement of a statutory plan by a local planning authority: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 36(1). When a statutory plan or alteration made by the Secretary of State becomes operative, the local planning authority entitled to prepare proposals for the alteration or replacement of the plan made or altered by the Secretary of State must comply with reg 38 (see PARA 154 ante) in respect of that plan: reg 36(2). The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante. For the meaning of 'statutory plan' see PARA 163 note 11 ante.

Similarly in relation to Wales, the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2794 (as amended), apply, so far as practicable and with any necessary modifications, to the making, alteration and replacement of a statutory plan by the Assembly as they apply to the making, alteration or replacement of a statutory plan by a local planning authority: reg 25(1). When a unitary development plan or alteration made by the Assembly becomes operative, the local planning authority entitled to prepare proposals for the alteration or replacement of the plan made or altered by the Assembly must comply with reg 27 (see PARA 154 post) in respect of that plan: reg 25(2). LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(ii) Unitary Development Plans in England and Wales/175. Alteration or replacement of plan.

175. Alteration or replacement of plan.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², a local planning authority³ may at any time prepare proposals for alterations to the unitary development plan⁴ for its area, or for its replacement⁵. If the Secretary of State⁶ or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales⁷ directs the authority to do so, it must prepare, within such time as he or the Assembly may direct, proposals for such alterations to the unitary development plan as he or it directs, or for its replacement⁸. An authority may not, however, without the consent of the Secretary of State or the Assembly prepare proposals in respect of a unitary development plan if the plan or any part of it has been approved by him or by the Assembly⁹.

Where:

- 784 (1) a local planning authority in Greater London¹⁰ proposes to make, alter or replace a unitary development plan;
- 785 (2) copies of proposed alterations of, or of a proposed new spatial development strategy¹¹ to replace, the spatial development strategy have been made available for inspection¹²; and
- 786 (3) the local planning authority includes in any relevant copy¹³ of the plan or proposals a statement that it is making the permitted assumption¹⁴, the permitted assumption must¹⁵ be made for all purposes, including in particular any question as to conformity between the plan and the spatial development strategy¹⁶. The permitted assumption must not, however, be made at any time after the local planning authority knows that the proposed alterations or new spatial development strategy mentioned in head (2) above have been withdrawn¹⁷.

As soon as practicable after:

- 787 (a) an order has been made¹⁸ for the designation of an enterprise zone; or
- 788 (b) a notification has been given¹⁹ of approval of modification of an enterprise zone scheme²⁰, the local planning authority for an area in which the zone is wholly or partly situated must review any unitary development plan for that area in the light of the provisions of the scheme or modified scheme²¹ and must prepare proposals for any consequential alterations to the plan which the authority considers necessary²².

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(iii) Structure and Local Plans in England/A. IN GENERAL/179. Default powers of the Secretary of State.

179. Default powers of the Secretary of State.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², where any survey is required³ to be carried out, or any local plan⁴ or proposals for the alteration or replacement of such a plan or of a structure plan⁵ are required to be prepared or submitted to the Secretary of State⁶, or steps are required to be taken for the adoption of any local plan or any such proposals, then:

- 809 (1) if at any time the Secretary of State is satisfied, after holding a local inquiry⁷ or other hearing, that the relevant local planning authority⁸ is not carrying out the survey or is not taking the steps necessary to enable it to submit or adopt a local plan or such proposals within a reasonable period; or
- 810 (2) in a case where a period is specified for the submission or adoption of a local plan or any such proposals, if no such plan or proposals has or have been submitted or adopted within that period, the Secretary of State may carry out the survey or prepare and make a local plan or, as the case may be, alter or replace such a plan or a structure plan, as he thinks fit⁹.

Where the Secretary of State may so do anything which should have been done by a local planning authority ('the defaulting authority'), he may, if he thinks fit, authorise any other local planning authority which appears to him to have an interest in the proper planning of the area of the defaulting authority to do it¹⁰. The defaulting authority must:

- 811 (a) on demand repay to the Secretary of State so much of any expenses incurred by him in connection with the doing of anything which should have been done by the authority as he certifies to have been incurred in the performance of the authority's functions¹¹; and
- 812 (b) repay to any other authority which so does anything which should have been done by the defaulting authority any expenses certified by the Secretary of State to have been reasonably incurred by that other authority in connection with the doing of that thing¹².

The relevant statutory provisions¹³ apply so far as practicable, with any necessary modifications, in relation to the doing of anything by the Secretary of State under these default powers and to the thing so done¹⁴.

B. STRUCTURE PLANS

183. Continuity, form and content.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², each structure plan approved by the Secretary of State³ under the Town and Country Planning Act 1971 with respect to the area of a local planning authority⁴ which was in operation immediately before 24 August 1990⁵ continues in force after that date, subject to any alterations then in operation and to the relevant provisions⁶ of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990⁷.

A structure plan⁸ must contain a written statement formulating the authority's general policies⁹ in respect of the development¹⁰ and use¹¹ of land¹² in its area¹³.

The policies must¹⁴ include policies in respect of:

- 819 (1) the conservation of the natural beauty and amenity¹⁵ of the land;
- 820 (2) the improvement of the physical environment; and
- 821 (3) the management of traffic¹⁶; and, in formulating its general policies, the authority must have regard to:

- 822 (a) any regional or strategic planning guidance given by the Secretary of State to assist the authority in the preparation of the plan;
- 823 (b) current national policies¹⁷;
- 824 (c) the resources likely to be available; and
- 825 (d) such other matters as the Secretary of State may prescribe¹⁸ or, in a particular case, direct¹⁹.

A structure plan must also contain:

- 826 (i) such diagrams, illustrations or other descriptive or explanatory matter in respect of the general policies as may be prescribed²⁰, and
- 827 (ii) such other matters as the Secretary of State may, in any particular case, direct²¹.

Where there is in operation²² a structure plan relating to part of the area of a local planning authority, the authority must, within such period, if any, as the Secretary of State may direct, prepare proposals for replacing the structure plans for the time being in operation with a single structure plan relating to the whole of its area²³.

3 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

4 The functions of a local planning authority under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 31 (as amended; repealed with savings) (see the text and notes 5-23 infra) are exercisable by the country planning authority: see PARA 152 ante. As to local planning authorities generally see PARA 28 et seq ante; and as to the authorities to which these provisions apply see PARA 176 ante.

8 The title of a structure plan must consist of the name of the area of the local planning authority followed by 'structure plan': Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 4(1). The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante.

9 For these purposes, except in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 31(6)(b) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (see head (b) in the text), 'policies' includes proposals: s 31(10) (substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 27, Sch 4 paras 1, 16; repealed with savings). As to whether a policy is general see JS Bloor Ltd v Swindon Borough Council [2001] EWHC Admin 966, (2001) Times, 4 December, [2001] All ER (D) 365 (Nov).

See also Richardson v Secretary of State for the Environment (1997) 75 P & CR 97 (meaning of 'replacement' in a structure plan which contained a presumption against development in the open countryside but permitted replacement of existing dwellings).

14 In subject to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 31(4) (substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 4 paras 1, 16; repealed with savings). Regulations under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 31 (as amended and repealed) may prescribe the aspects of such development and use with which the general policies in a structure plan are to be concerned, in which case the policies must be concerned with those aspects and no others: s 31(4) (as so substituted and repealed). Regulations under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 31 (as amended and repealed) may make different provision for different cases and are subject to any direction given, in a particular case, by the Secretary of State: s 31(9) (substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 4 paras 1, 16; repealed with savings).

15 As to the meaning of 'amenity' see PARA 158 note 8 ante.

16 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 31(3) (substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 4 paras 1, 16; repealed with savings).

17 The Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 31(10) (as substituted and repealed: see note 9 supra) (meaning of 'proposals') does not apply for this purpose: s 31(10) (as so substituted and repealed).

18 In formulating its general policies in a structure plan, the local planning authority must, in addition to the matters specified in ibid s 31(6) (as substituted and repealed: see note 19 infra), have regard to: (1) economic, environmental and social considerations; (2) the national waste strategy; (3) the objectives of preventing major accidents and limiting the consequences of such accidents; and (4) the need (a) in the long term, to maintain appropriate distances between establishments and residential areas, areas of public use and areas of particular sensitivity or interest; and (b) in the case of existing establishments, for additional technical measures in accordance with EC Council Directive 96/82 (OJ L10, 14.01.97, p 13) on the control of major accident hazards involving dangerous substances, art 5 (see PARA 1211 post): Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 9(1), (3). For the meanings of 'major accident' and 'establishment' see PARA 1211 note 2 post; and as to existing establishments see PARA 1211 note 4 post (definitions applied by virtue of reg 9(4)). 'National waste strategy' means any statement which contains the Secretary of State's policies in relation to the recovery and disposal of waste in England, and which is made under the Environmental Protection Act 1990 s 44A (as added) (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 46 (2010) PARA 627), or pending the publication of the first such statement, any relevant waste disposal plan prepared under s 50 (repealed): Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 2(1). The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante.

19 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 31(6) (substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 4 paras 1, 16; repealed with savings).

20 A structure plan must contain a diagram, called the key diagram, illustrating the general policies formulated in the plan's written statement: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 5(1). A structure plan may also contain a diagram, called an inset diagram, drawn to a larger scale than the key diagram, and illustrating the application of the general policies to part of the area covered by the structure plan: reg 5(2). Where an inset diagram is included in a structure plan, the area covered by the inset diagram must be identified on the key diagram and the application of the general policies to that area must be illustrated on that inset diagram only: reg 5(3). No key diagram or inset diagram contained in a structure plan must be on a map base: reg 5(4). The title of a structure plan must be set out on the key diagram and on any inset diagram contained in the plan and the key diagram and any inset diagram must include an explanation of any symbol or notation used in the diagram: reg 5(5).

184. Alteration or replacement of structure plan.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², a local planning authority³ may at any time prepare proposals for alterations to the structure plan⁴ for its area or for its replacement⁵. If the Secretary of State⁶ directs the authority to do so, it must prepare, within such time as he may direct, proposals for such alterations to the structure plan as he directs, or for its replacement⁷. An authority may not, however, without the consent of the Secretary of State prepare proposals in respect of a structure plan if the plan or any part of it has been approved⁸ by him⁹.

Proposals so prepared must be accompanied by an explanatory memorandum¹⁰ which must state:

- 828 (1) the reasons which in the opinion of the authority justify each of its proposals;
- 829 (2) any information on which the proposals are based;
- 830 (3) the relationship of the proposals to general policies for the development¹¹ and use¹² of land¹³ in neighbouring areas which may be expected to affect the area to which the proposals relate, and may contain such illustrative material as the authority thinks appropriate¹⁴.

Proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan do not become operative unless they are adopted¹⁵ by the authority or approved¹⁶ by the Secretary of State¹⁷.

The Secretary of State may⁷ direct any of them to submit such proposals as respects their respective areas⁸.

Each of the authorities by which proposals for the alteration or replacement of a joint structure plan have been prepared has the duty⁹ of making copies of the proposals and explanatory memorandum available for inspection¹⁰.

The date of the coming into operation of proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan prepared jointly by two or more local planning authorities is a date jointly agreed by those authorities¹¹.

Where two or more local planning authorities jointly so prepare proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan, all or any of them may withdraw the proposals¹² and, on their doing so, all the authorities must comply with the relevant¹³ statutory provisions¹⁴.

9 When preparing proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 33(1) (as so substituted and repealed), and before finally determining the contents of the proposals, the local planning authority must consult: (1) the Secretary of State; (2) any other local authority (except the council of any parish) for an area covered by the proposals; (3) any local planning authority for an area adjacent to the area covered by the proposals; (4) the Environment Agency; (5) the Countryside Agency and English Nature; (6) the Historic Buildings and Monuments Commission for England (commonly known as 'English Heritage'): Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 10(1) (amended by virtue of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 s 73(2)). The local planning authority must consider any representations made by the consultees before finally determining the contents of the proposals (Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 10(2)) and must prepare a statement of any other persons it has consulted when preparing its proposals, in addition to those listed in heads (1)-(6) supra, and of any steps it has taken to publicise its proposals and to provide persons with an opportunity of making representations in respect of those proposals (reg 10(3)). Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², where the local planning authority³ has prepared proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan⁴, the authority must:

- 833 (1) make copies of the proposals and the explanatory memorandum⁵ available for inspection at such places as may be prescribed⁶ by the relevant regulations⁷;
- 834 (2) send a copy of the proposals and the explanatory memorandum to the Secretary of State⁸; and
- 835 (3) comply with any requirements imposed by those regulations⁹; and each copy so made available for inspection or sent to the Secretary of State must be accompanied by a statement of the prescribed period¹⁰ within which objections may be made to the authority¹¹.

Where no examination in public is held¹², the procedure for dealing with objections is prescribed by regulations¹³. The procedure which the authority must follow where it proposes to modify its proposals after they have been deposited is similarly prescribed¹⁴.

3 The functions of a local planning authority under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 33(2)-(4) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (see the text and notes 4-11 infra) are exercisable by the county planning authority: see PARA 152 ante. 7 Ie regulations under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 53 (as amended; repealed with savings): see PARA 177 ante.

A local planning authority making proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan available for inspection in accordance with 33(2)(a) (as substituted and repealed: see note 9 infra) (see head (1) in the text) must: (1) make the proposals available at its principal office and at such other places within its area as it considers appropriate; (2) give notice by advertisement in Form 1; and (3) give notice in similar form to any consultee under the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 10(1) (as amended) (see PARA 186 note 8 ante) and to any other person whom it considers should be given notice: reg 11(1). Proposals made available for inspection must be accompanied by (a) the statement prepared pursuant to reg 10(3); and (b) the explanatory memorandum: reg 11(2). The local planning authority must send four copies of the documents made available for inspection to the Secretary of State: reg 11(3). The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante. For Form 1 see regs 2(2)(b), 10 (as amended), Schedule Form 1.

8 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

9 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 33(2) (s 33 substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 27, Sch 4 paras 1, 17; repealed with savings). In order for the transitional arrangements in relation to England set out in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 119(1), Sch 8 (see PARA 125 et seq ante) to apply to a structure plan, the local planning authority must have complied with the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 33(2) (as so substituted and repealed) before 28 September 2004: see PARA 128 ante.

10 For these purposes, 'the prescribed period' means such period as may be prescribed or determined in accordance with regulations made under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 53 (as amended; repealed with savings): s 33(4) (as substituted and repealed: see note 9 supra). The period within which objections and representations may be made to the local planning authority with respect to proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan made available for inspection under s 33(2)(a) (as so substituted and repealed) is six weeks beginning with the date on which a notice given pursuant to the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 11(1)(b) (see note 7 supra) is first published in a local newspaper: reg 12(1).

11 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 33(3) (as substituted and repealed: see note 9 supra). Objections and representations must be made in writing and addressed to the local planning authority in accordance with the details given in the published notice: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 12(2). In the case of deposited proposals for the replacement of a structure plan, a representation that matters relating to the development and use of land not included in the deposited proposals ought to have been so included is to be treated as an objection made to the proposals in accordance with the 1999 Regulations for the purpose of reg 16 (see note 13 infra) if the representation is made within the time and in the manner required by reg 12: reg 12(4).

12 As to examination in public see PARA 188 post.

13 Where objections have been made to proposals in accordance with the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280 (as amended), and not withdrawn and the local planning authority does not cause an examination in public to be held, the authority must prepare a statement of its decisions as respects all the objections and its reasons for each decision: reg 16(1). Regulation 15(2), (3), (5) (see PARA 188 note 11 post) applies where a statement is prepared pursuant to reg 16(1) as it applies where a statement is prepared pursuant to reg 15(1): reg 16(2).

14 Subject to ibid reg 17(7), a local planning authority proposing to modify proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan (whether to comply with a direction given by the Secretary of State or on its own initiative) must, unless it is satisfied that the modifications it intends to make will not materially affect the content of the proposals: (1) prepare a list of the modifications with its reasons for proposing them; (2) make copies of that list available for inspection at any place at which the proposals have been made available for inspection; (3) give notice by local advertisement in Form 4; and (4) serve a notice in similar form on any person who has objected to, or made a representation in respect of, the proposals in accordance with the 1999 Regulations and not withdrawn the objection or representation and on such other persons as the authority thinks fit: reg 17(1). The period within which objections and representations may be made to the local planning authority in respect of proposed modifications is six weeks beginning with the date on which a notice given pursuant to reg 17(1) is first published in a local newspaper: reg 17(2). Objections and representations must be made in writing and addressed in accordance with the details given in the notice: reg 17(3). Where an examination in public is held to consider matters in connection with proposed modifications, reg 14 (see PARA 188 note 9 post) applies as that regulation applies in the case of proposals, and reg 15 (see PARA 188 note 11 post) applies following such an examination in public as it applies to an examination in public mentioned in reg 15(1): reg 17(5). Where objections have been made to proposed modifications in accordance with reg 17 and not withdrawn and the local planning authority does not cause an examination in public to be held, reg 16 (see note 13 supra) applies to the consideration of the objections as it applies to the consideration of objections to proposals: reg 17(6). Unless a list of proposed modifications contains only modifications proposed by the local planning authority in order to comply with a direction given by the Secretary of State under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 35(2) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (see PARA 192 post), it must not be made available for inspection, and the notice referred to in the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 17(1) must not be given or served, until after (a) the period for objecting to the proposals after they have been made available for inspection has expired, or, in the case of a second or subsequent list of proposed modifications, the period for objecting to the previous list of proposed modifications has expired; and (b) any statement (or further statement) required by reg 15(1) or 16(1), as the case may be, has been prepared: reg 17(7). For Form 4 see regs 2(2)(b), 17(1), Schedule Form 4.

188. Examination in public.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², before adopting proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan³, the local planning authority⁴ must, unless the Secretary of State⁵ otherwise directs, cause an examination in public to be held of such matters affecting the consideration of the proposals as the authority considers ought to be so examined, or the Secretary of State directs⁶. An examination in public must be conducted by a person appointed by the Secretary of State for the purpose⁷.

No person has a right to be heard at an examination in public⁸ but the following may take part in such an examination:

- 836 (1) the local planning authority; and
- 837 (2) any person invited to do so by the person or persons holding the examination or the person causing the examination to be held⁹.

The Secretary of State may, after consultation with the Lord Chancellor, make regulations with respect to the procedure to be followed at any examination in public¹⁰.

The procedure for dealing with objections following an examination in public is prescribed by regulations¹¹.

Without prejudice to s 303A(8), (9) (as added; repealed with savings) (see PARA 658 post), regulations may make provision with respect to the remuneration and allowances of any person or persons appointed by the Secretary of State to conduct an examination in public under s 35B (as so substituted and repealed): s 35B(8) (added by the Town and Country Planning (Costs of Inquiries etc) Act 1995 s 1(5)). 9 Ibid s 35B(5) (as substituted and repealed: see note 6 supra).

A local planning authority must, at least six weeks before the opening of an examination in public which it causes to be held of matters affecting the consideration of proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan: (1) make available for inspection at any place at which the proposals have been made available for inspection a list of the matters with which the examination in public will be concerned and the persons who have been invited to take part in it; (2) give any person who has objected to, or made a representation in respect of, the proposals in accordance with the 1999 Regulations and not withdrawn the objection or representation, notice of the time and place at which the examination in public is to be held, the name of the person or persons appointed to hold it and its purpose, and the availability for inspection of the list mentioned in head (1) supra; and (3) give notice of that information by local advertisement: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 14(1). Any notice so given must invite representations to be made to the local planning authority on the list referred to in head (1) supra within 28 days of the date on which the notice is first published in a local newspaper: reg 14(2). The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante.

10 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 35B(6) (as substituted and repealed: see note 6 supra). An examination in public constitutes a statutory inquiry for the purposes of the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 s

1(1)(c) (see ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) PARA 15) but does not constitute such an inquiry for any other purpose of that Act: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 35B(7) (as so substituted and repealed); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(a). As to the Lord Chancellor's power to make provision by order for the transfer, modification or abolition of his functions under the 1990 Act see the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 19.

11 Where a local planning authority causes an examination in public to be held for a purpose mentioned in the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 14 (see note 9 supra), the authority must, after considering the report of the person holding the examination in public, prepare a statement of: (1) the decisions it has reached in the light of the report and any recommendations contained in the report; and (2) the reasons for those decisions: reg 15(1). Where a list of proposed modifications to the proposals is made available for inspection under reg 17(1) (see PARA 187 note 14 ante) after the statement of decisions and reasons is prepared, the report mentioned in reg 15(1) and that statement must be made available for inspection from the date on which, and at the places at which, the list is made available for inspection: reg 15(2). Where such a list is not made available for inspection under reg 17(1) after the statement of decisions and reasons is prepared, the local planning authority must: (a) give notice by local advertisement in Form 3; (b) serve a notice in similar form on any person who has objected to, or made a representation in respect of, the proposals in accordance with the 1999 Regulations and not withdrawn the objection or representation and on such other persons as the authority thinks fit; and (c) make copies of the report mentioned in reg 15(1) and the statement of decisions and reasons available for inspection at any place at which the proposals have been made available for inspection: reg 15(3). Where the report of the person holding the examination in public contains recommendations that the proposals should be modified in a manner specified in the report and the local planning authority intends not to accept one or more of those recommendations: (i) the authority must make a list of the recommendations that it does not intend to accept available for inspection from the date on which, and at the places at which, the report is made available for inspection; (ii) the notice given in Form 3, or in Form 4, as the case may be, must record the authority's intention not to accept those recommendations and invite objections and representations to be made in respect of that intention within six weeks of the date on which the notice is first published in a local newspaper; (iii) reg 17(3), (4) (see PARA 187 note 14 ante) applies to any objection or representation made in respect of that intention as it applies to objections and representations made in respect of proposed modifications; (iv) where an examination in public is held to consider one or more objections made to that intention, reg 14 applies as it applies in the case of proposals, and reg 15 applies following such an examination in public as it applies to an examination in public mentioned in reg 15(1); and (v) where objections have been made to that intention in accordance with the 1999 Regulations and not withdrawn and the local planning authority does not cause an examination in public to be held, reg 16 (see PARA 187 note 13 ante) applies to the consideration of the objections as it applies to the consideration of objections to proposals: reg 15(4). Where notice is given in Form 3 and reg 15(4) does not apply, the notice must give 28 days notice of the local planning authority's intention to adopt the proposals: reg 15(5). For Forms 3, 4, see regs 2(2)(b), 15, Schedule Forms 3, 4.

189. Withdrawal of proposals for alteration or replacement of structure plans.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan³ may be withdrawn by the local planning authority⁴ at any time before the authority has adopted them or the Secretary of State⁵ has approved them⁶. On the withdrawal of such proposals, the authority must:

- 838 (1) withdraw the copies made available for inspection⁷; and
- 839 (2) give notice that the proposals have been withdrawn to every person who has made an objection to them⁸.

An authority responsible for a structure plan⁹ must, where any of its proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan are withdrawn, notify any authority responsible for a local plan¹⁰ in its area that the proposals have been withdrawn¹¹.

Where a structure plan has been jointly prepared by two or more local planning authorities¹², the duty so to notify any authority applies to each of those authorities¹³.

8 Ibid s 34(2) (as substituted and repealed: see note 6 supra).

On the withdrawal of proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan, the local planning authority must, in addition to the persons specified in head (2) in the text, give notice of the withdrawal to every person who has made a representation with respect to the proposals: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 13(1). A local planning authority withdrawing proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan must also give notice by advertisement: reg 13(2). The notice of withdrawal must be in Form 2: reg 13(3). The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante. For Form 2 see regs 2(2)(b), 13(3), Schedule Form 2.

9 For these purposes, an authority is regarded as responsible for a structure plan if the authority is entitled to prepare proposals for its alteration or replacement: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 35C(5)(a) (s 35C substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 27, Sch 4 paras 1, 17; repealed with savings).

10 For these purposes, an authority is regarded as responsible for a local plan if the authority is under a duty to prepare a local plan or is entitled to prepare proposals for its alteration or replacement: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 35C(5)(b) (as substituted and repealed: see note 9 supra). For the meaning of 'local plan' see PARA 195 post.

11 Ibid s 35C(3) (as substituted and repealed: see note 9 supra). Nothing in s 35C (as so substituted and repealed) requires an authority to notify itself: s 35C(4) (as so substituted and repealed).

12 The functions of a local planning authority under ibid 50(7)(a) (as substituted and repealed) (see note 13 infra) are exercisable by the county planning authority: see PARA 152 ante.

For the meaning of 'objections made in accordance with the regulations' see PARA 177 note 12 ante; and as to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

In addition to the requirement to consider objections imposed by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 33(6) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (see note 8 infra), the local planning authority must also consider any representations made in accordance with the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 12 (see PARA 187 ante): reg 12(3). An objection to, or representation in respect of, proposed modifications, made in accordance with reg 17 (see PARA 187 note 14 ante), must be treated as an objection made in accordance with the 1999 Regulations for the purpose of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 33(6) (as so substituted and repealed): Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 17(4). 191. Adoption of proposals.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², the local planning authority³ may⁴ by resolution adopt proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan⁵, either as originally prepared or as modified so as to take account of any objections to the proposals or any other considerations which appear to the authority to be material⁶.

Proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan become operative⁷ on the date on which they are adopted⁸.

An authority responsible for a structure plan must, where any proposals of the authority for the alteration or replacement of such a plan are adopted or approved:

- 840 (1) notify any authority responsible for a local plan in its area that the proposals have been adopted or approved; and
- 841 (2) supply that authority with a statement⁹ that the local plan is or, as the case may be, is not in general conformity with the altered or new structure plan¹⁰.

Where a structure plan has been jointly prepared by two or more local planning authorities, the duty to notify and supply such a statement applies to each of those authorities¹¹.

Where a local planning authority adopts proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan it must: (1) give notice by advertisement in Form 5; and (2) serve notice in similar form on any person who has asked to be notified of the adoption: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 19(1). A copy of the notice so given and of the adopted proposals must be made available for inspection at any place at which the proposals were made available for inspection under reg 11(1)(a) (see PARA 187 note 7 ante): reg 19(2). The local planning authority must, not later than the date on which notice is first given by advertisement pursuant to reg 19(1), send four copies of the adopted proposals to the Secretary of State: reg 19(3). For Form 5 see regs 2(2)(b), 19(1), Schedule Form 5. The 1999 Regulations apply for transitional purposes: see PARA 148 ante. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

9 A statement that a local plan is not in general conformity with a structure plan must specify the respects in which it is not in such conformity: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 35C(2) (s 35C substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 27, Sch 4 paras 1, 17; repealed with savings). An authority to which a direction is given may not adopt the proposals unless it satisfies the Secretary of State that the authority has made the modifications necessary to conform with the direction or the direction is withdrawn⁷.

C. LOCAL PLANS

195. Preparation of local plan.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², the local planning authority³ must, within such period, if any, as the Secretary of State⁴ may direct, prepare for its area a plan to be known as a local plan⁵. A local plan must contain a written statement formulating the authority's detailed policies⁶ for the development⁷ and use⁸ of land⁹ in its area¹⁰; and the policies must include policies in respect of:

- 844 (1) the conservation of the natural beauty and amenity¹¹ of the land;
- 845 (2) the improvement of the physical environment; and
- 846 (3) the management of traffic¹².

In formulating its detailed policies, the authority must have regard to:

- 847 (a) such information and other considerations as the Secretary of State may prescribe or, in a particular case, direct; and
- 848 (b) the provisions of any scheme¹³ relating to land in the authority's area which has been designated¹⁴ as an enterprise zone¹⁵.

A local plan must also contain:

- 849 (i) a map¹⁶ illustrating each of the detailed policies; and
- 850 (ii) such diagrams, illustrations or other descriptive or explanatory matter in respect of the policies as may be prescribed¹⁷, and may contain such descriptive or explanatory matter as the authority thinks appropriate¹⁸.

A local plan must be in general conformity with the structure plan¹⁹, but it may not contain any policies in respect of:

- 851 (A) the winning and working of minerals²⁰ or the depositing of mineral waste²¹, unless it is a plan for a National Park²²;
- 852 (B) the depositing of refuse or waste materials other than mineral waste, unless it is a plan for a National Park or for an area where such depositing is not²³ a county matter²⁴.

A local plan may designate any part of the authority's area as an action area²⁵; and, if an area is so designated, the plan must contain a description of the treatment proposed by the authority²⁶.

A local plan becomes operative²⁷ on the date on which it is adopted²⁸. After adoption, the authority may adopt supplementary planning guidance setting out more detailed guidance on the way in which the policies in a development plan will be applied in particular circumstances or areas without necessitating a formal alteration of the plan²⁹, provided that the supplementary guidance is not inconsistent with the adopted plan³⁰.

197. Waste policies.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², a local planning authority³ other than an excluded authority⁴ must, within such period, if any, as the Secretary of State⁵ may direct:

- 855 (1) prepare a waste local plan⁶ for its area; or 856 (2) include its waste policies in its minerals local plan⁷.

A local planning authority for a National Park must, within such period, if any, as the Secretary of State may direct:

- 857 (a) prepare a waste local plan for its area; or
- 858 (b) include its waste policies in its minerals local plan or its local plan⁸.

In formulating its waste policies, the authority must have regard to such information and other considerations as the Secretary of State may prescribe⁹ or, in a particular case, direct¹⁰.

2 See PARA 148 ante.

3 The functions of a local planning authority under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 38(2) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (see note 4 infra) are exercisable by the district planning authority: see PARA 152 ante. As to local planning authorities generally see PARA 28 et seq ante; and as to the authorities to which these provisions apply see PARA 176 ante.

4 A local planning authority is an excluded authority for these purposes if it is an authority (1) for a National Park; or (2) for an area where waste policies are not a county matter for the purposes of ibid s 1(5), Sch 1 (as amended) (see PARA 38 ante): s 38(3) (s 38 substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 27, Sch 4 paras 1, 17; repealed with savings). As to the National Parks see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 636 et seq.

5 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

6 For these purposes, 'waste local plan' means a plan containing waste policies; and 'waste policies' means detailed policies in respect of development which involves the depositing of refuse or waste materials other than mineral waste: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 38(1) (as substituted and repealed: see note 4 supra). For the meaning of 'development' see PARA 217 post.

The title of a waste local plan must consist of the name of the area of the local planning authority followed by 'waste local plan'; and, where waste policies are included in a local plan or a minerals local plan, the local plan or minerals local plan including such policies must have a sub-title consisting of the words 'including waste policies': Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 4(1), (2). 859 (1) they each have the duty⁵ of making copies of the relevant documents available for inspection and objections to the proposals may be made to any of those authorities and the statement required⁶ to accompany the relevant documents must state that objections may be so made;

860 (2) it is for each of the local planning authorities to adopt⁷ the proposals but any modifications subject to which the proposals are adopted must have the agreement of all those authorities⁸.

Where a local plan has been made jointly, the power of making proposals for its alteration or replacement may be exercised as respects their respective areas by any of the authorities by which it was made; and the Secretary of State⁹ may direct¹⁰ any of them to make proposals as respects their respective areas¹¹.

The date of the coming into operation of a local plan or proposals for its alteration or replacement prepared jointly by two or more local planning authorities is a date jointly agreed by those authorities¹².

204. Adoption of proposals.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², the local planning authority³ may⁴ by resolution adopt proposals for a local plan⁵ or for its alteration or replacement, either as originally prepared or as modified so as to take account of any objections to the plan or any other considerations which appear to the authority to be material⁶. The authority may not, however, adopt any proposals which do not conform generally to the structure plan⁷.

Proposals for a local plan, or for its alteration or replacement, become operative⁸ on the date on which they are adopted⁹.

An authority to which a direction is so given may not adopt the proposals unless it satisfies the Secretary of State that the authority has made the modifications necessary to conform with the direction or the direction is withdrawn⁷.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², after copies of proposals³ have been sent to the Secretary of State⁴ and before they have been adopted by the local planning authority⁵, the Secretary of State may direct that the proposals, or any part of them, shall be submitted to him for his approval⁶. If he gives such a direction:

- 871 (1) the local planning authority may not take any further steps for the adoption of any of the proposals until the Secretary of State has given his decision on the proposals or the relevant part of the proposals; and 872 (2) the proposals or the relevant part of the proposals do not have effect unless approved by him and do not require adoption⁷ by the authority⁸.

207. Approval or rejection of called-in proposals.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², the Secretary of State³ may, after considering⁴ proposals submitted to him⁵, either approve them, in whole or in part and with or without modifications or reservations, or reject them⁶. Where, on taking the proposals into consideration, the Secretary of State does not determine to reject them, he must, before determining whether or not to approve them:

873 (1) consider any objections to them made in accordance with the regulations⁷;

874 (2) give any person who made such an objection which has not been withdrawn an opportunity of appearing before, and being heard by, a person appointed by him for the purpose; and

875 (3) if a local inquiry⁸ or other hearing is held, also give such an opportunity to the local planning authority and such other persons as he thinks fit, except so far as the objections have already been considered, or a local inquiry or other hearing into the objections has already been held, by the authority⁹.

Proposals so approved by the Secretary of State become operative¹⁰ on such day as he may appoint¹¹.

4 In considering the proposals the Secretary of State (1) may take into account any matters which he thinks are relevant, whether or not they were taken into account in the proposals as submitted (Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 45(2) (repealed with savings)); (2) may consult with, or consider the views of, any local planning authority or any other person, but he need not do so, or give an opportunity for the making of representations or objections, or cause a local inquiry or other hearing to be held, except as provided by s 45(3) (as amended and repealed: see note 9 infra) (s 45(4) (as so repealed)). LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(iv) Conformity and Conflict/208. Conformity between plans.

(iv) Conformity and Conflict

208. Conformity between plans.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², an authority responsible for a local plan³ may not make copies available⁴ unless:

876 (1) it has served on the authority responsible for the structure plan⁵ in its area a copy of the plan or the proposals; and 877 (2) such period as may be prescribed⁶ has elapsed since it served the copy of the plan or proposals⁷.

Where a local planning authority⁸ has been so served with a copy, the authority must, before the end of any period so prescribed⁹, supply the authority responsible for the local plan with:

- 878 (a) a statement that the plan or the proposals is or are in general conformity with the structure plan; or
- 879 (b) a statement that the plan or the proposals is or are not in such conformity¹⁰.

A statement under head (b) above must specify the respects in which the plan or proposals is or are not in such conformity¹¹; and any such statement is to be treated¹² as an objection made in accordance with the regulations¹³.

Where:

- 880 (i) a local planning authority proposes to make, alter or replace a local plan;
- 881 (ii) copies of proposals for the alteration or replacement of the structure plan for its area have been made available for inspection¹⁴; and
- 882 (iii) the authority mentioned in head (i) above includes in any relevant copy¹⁵ of the plan or proposals a statement that the authority is making the permitted assumption¹⁶, the permitted assumption must be made for all purposes, including in particular any question as to conformity between plans¹⁷, but may not be made at any time after that authority knows that the proposals mentioned in head (ii) above have been withdrawn¹⁸.

Nothing in the above provisions requires an authority to serve a copy on or supply a statement to itself¹⁹.

Where a structure plan has been jointly prepared by two or more local planning authorities²⁰, the duty to supply a statement under the above provisions applies to each of those authorities²¹; and, where a local plan or proposals for its alteration or replacement have been jointly prepared by two or more local planning authorities²², the requirement to serve a copy²³ and the right to be supplied with a statement²⁴ apply to each of those authorities²⁵.

In the case of a London borough, Part I of the unitary development plan must be in general conformity with the spatial development strategy for the time being in force²⁶.

The requirement is for 'general conformity' not 'conformity' and the word 'general' imports a degree of flexibility: see Persimmon Homes (Thames Valley) Ltd v Stevenage Borough Council [2005] All ER (D) 316 (May).

An authority responsible for a structure plan must, where any of its proposals for the alteration or replacement of a structure plan are adopted or approved, prepare a statement in respect of any local plan for which the authority is responsible, and any minerals local plan and waste local plan for its area, stating whether the plan is, or as the case may be, is not, in general conformity with the altered or new structure plan: Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 41(1). A statement so prepared stating that a local plan, minerals local plan or waste local plan is not in general conformity with a structure plan must specify the respects in which it is not in such conformity: reg 41(2). A local planning authority which makes available for inspection a plan to which a statement under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 35C (as substituted; repealed with savings) (see PARA 189 ante) or the Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 41(1) relates, must make a copy of the statement available for inspection at any place at which the plan is made available for inspection: reg 41(3). For these purposes, references to an authority responsible for a structure plan or a local plan are to be construed in accordance with the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 35C(5) (as substituted; repealed with savings) (see PARA 189 notes 9-10 ante): Town and Country Planning (Development Plan) (England) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3280, reg 41(4).

16 For these purposes, 'the permitted assumption' means the assumption that (1) the proposals mentioned in ibid s 46(6)(b) (as substituted and repealed: see note 3 supra); or (2) if any proposed modifications to those proposals are published in accordance with regulations made under s 53 (as amended; repealed with savings) (see PARA 177 ante), the proposals as so modified, have been adopted: s 46(7) (as so substituted and repealed).

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(iv) Conformity and Conflict/209. Conflict between or within plans.

209. Conflict between or within plans.

Under Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹, so far as still in force², the provisions of a local plan³ prevail for all purposes over any conflicting provisions in the relevant structure plan⁴ unless the local plan is one:

- 883 (1) stated⁵ not to be in general conformity with the structure plan; and
- 884 (2) neither altered nor replaced after the statement was supplied⁶.

The Secretary of State⁷ may make regulations with respect to cases where:

- 885 (a) provisions in a structure plan or a local plan conflict with provisions in a minerals local plan⁸ or a waste local plan⁹;
- 886 (b) a structure plan and a local plan are made by the same authority and the provisions of the two plans conflict¹⁰.

Where there is a conflict between the written statement of a statutory plan¹¹ and any other document forming part of the plan, the provisions of the written statement prevail¹².

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING/(3) UNITARY, STRUCTURE AND LOCAL PLANS UNDER THE 1990 ACT/(v) Previous Transitional Arrangements/210. Transition from 1991 to 1994 legislation in Wales.

(v) Previous Transitional Arrangements

210. Transition from 1991 to 1994 legislation in Wales.

Transitional provision has been made:

887 (1) by Part III of Schedule 5 to the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994¹ with regard to the area of any local planning authority² in Wales during the period beginning on 1 April 1996 and ending when a unitary development plan³ has become fully operative⁴ for that area⁵;

888 (2) by Part IA of Schedule 2 to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990⁶ with regard to the continuation of structure, local and old development plans in Wales on and after 1 April 1996⁷.

1 See the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 s 20(3), Sch 5 Pt III (paras 9-23) (as amended).

2 Ibid Sch 5 para 9(4)-(6) applies where the area of a local planning authority in Wales includes (1) the whole or any part of an area prescribed under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 23B(2) (as added; repealed with savings) (see PARA 160 ante) in relation to a National Park; (2) other land: Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 Sch 5 para 9(3). The provisions of Sch 5 Pt III (as amended) apply separately in relation to the Park area or, if there is more than one, each Park area, and the remaining area: Sch 5 para 9(4). Any reference in Sch 5 Pt III (as amended) to the area of the local planning authority (including any reference which falls to be so construed) must be construed in its application in relation to any Park area, as a reference to that Park area, and in its application in relation to the remaining area, as a reference to that area: Sch 5 para 9(5). For these purposes, 'the Park area', in relation to a National Park, means the part of the local planning authority's area which is within the area prescribed under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 23B(2) (as added; repealed with savings) in relation to that Park or, where there is more than one such part, those parts taken as a whole; and 'the remaining area' means the part of the local planning authority's area which is not within an area so prescribed in relation to any National Park: Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 Sch 5 para 9(6). As to local planning authorities generally see PARA 28 et seq ante.

3 As to unitary development plans see PARA 155 et seq ante.

4 For these purposes, a unitary development plan for the area of a local planning authority in Wales has become fully operative (1) when it has become operative under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt II Ch I (ss 10-28A) (as amended) (repealed with savings) (see PARA 155 et seq ante); or (2) where different parts of it have become operative at different times, when all parts of it have become so operative: Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 Sch 5 para 9(2). Where a unitary development plan is operative in part, but has not become fully operative, in the area of a new planning authority, to the extent that they conflict with any provision of any structure plan, local plan, minerals local plan, waste local plan, or modified plan, in force for that area or any part of it, the provisions of the unitary development plan prevail: Sch 5 para 20.

5 Ibid Sch 5 para 9(1). Transitional provision is so made in relation to (1) the preparation of modified schemes (see Sch 5 para 12); (2) default powers (see Sch 5 para 13); (3) the effect of adoption or approval of a modified plan (see Sch 5 para 14); (4) the principle that other plans are to prevail over old development plans and saved local plans (see Sch 5 para 15); (6) the principle that local plans are to prevail over structure plans (see Sch 5 para 16); (7) development plans for compensation purposes (see Sch 5 para 17); (8) revocation of the old development plan (see Sch 5 para 18); (9) the authority's temporary duty in relation to the existing structure plan (see Sch 5 para 19); (10) the position where a unitary development plan is operative in part (see Sch 5 para 20; and note 4 supra); (11) planning blight and structure plans (see Sch 5 paras 21-22); and (12) the power to make regulations and give directions (see Sch 5 para 23; those powers, previously exercisable by the Secretary of State, are now transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1 (as amended); and as to the Assembly see PARA 20 ante). As to interpretation see the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 Sch 5 para 11.

6 See the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 28A(1)(a), Sch 2 Pt IA (paras 1-4) (added by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 s 20(2), (3)(b), Sch 5 Pt II para 8).

7 Every existing plan which related to any part of Wales continued in force on and after 1 April 1996: see the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 2 Pt IA para 1(1) (as added: see note 6 supra). When a unitary development plan has become fully operative for the area of a local planning authority in Wales, any existing plan which is for the time being in force and any interim plan ceases to have effect in respect of its plan area to the extent that it is comprised in the area of that local planning authority: Sch 2 Pt IA para 1(2) (as so added). Any existing plan or interim plan, while it continues in force in respect of the area, or part of the area, of any local planning authority in Wales, is to be treated for the purposes of (1) the Town and Country Planning Act 1990; (2) any other enactment relating to town and country planning; (3) the Land Compensation Act 1961; and (4) the Highways Act 1980, as being, or as being comprised in, the development plan in respect of that area or, as the case may be, that part of that area: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 2 Pt IA para 1(3) (as so added). Schedule 2 Pt IA para 1(1)-(3) (as so added) has effect subject to the provisions of Sch 2 Pt IA paras 1(4)-4 (as added) and the 1994 Act transitional provisions (Sch 2 Pt IA para 1(4) (as so added)); and for these purposes, 'the 1994 Act transitional provisions' means the provisions of the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 Sch 5 Pt III (as amended) (see head (1) in the text); 'existing plan' means a structure plan, local plan or old development plan, to the extent that it was in force in respect of any area in Wales immediately before 1 April 1996 (and includes any alteration made to, or replacement of, the plan after that date under the 1994 Act transitional provisions); 'interim plan' means any modified plan (within the meaning of the 1994 Act transitional provisions) which comes into force in respect of any area in Wales on or after 1 April 1996 under those provisions; 'old development plan' means any plan which was in force immediately before 1 April 1996 by virtue of the Town and Country Planning Act 1971 Sch 7 (repealed) and the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 2 Pt III (paras 1-10) (repealed with savings) (see PARA 212 post at head (3) in the text); and 'plan area', in relation to an existing plan or interim plan, means the area in respect of which it was in force immediately before 1 April 1996 or, as the case may be, comes into force on or after that date: Sch 2 Pt IA para 1(5) (as so added). 'Local plan' includes a minerals local plan, a waste local plan and a local plan adopted or approved before the commencement of the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 4 Pt I (paras 1-29) (amendments to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990) or under the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 4 Pt III (paras 40-51) (repealed with savings) (see PARA 211 post): Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 2 Pt IA para 4 (as so added).

Transitional provision is made with regard to (a) revocation of the structure plan (see Sch 2 Pt IA para 2 (as so added)); (b) incorporation of the current local plan into the unitary development plan (see Sch 2 Pt IA para 3 (as so added)).

6 For these purposes, 'old development plan' means a development plan to which the Town and Country Planning Act 1971 Sch 7 para 2 (repealed) (continuation in force of development plans prepared before structure plans became operative) applied immediately before 24 August 1990: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 2 Pt III para 1 (repealed with savings: see note 1 supra).

7 Transitional provision was so made in relation to (1) the continuation in force of old development plans (see ibid Sch 2 Pt III para 2); (2) the principle that other plans are to prevail over old development plans (see Sch 2 Pt III para 3); (3) development plans for compensation purposes (see Sch 2 Pt III para 5); (4) discontinuance of the old development plan on adoption of the local plan (see Sch 2 Pt III paras 6-10). (i) Exercise of Certain Functions in England

213. Planning permissions; certificates of lawfulness of existing or proposed use or development.

The functions¹ of a local planning authority² of determining:

- 892 (1) applications for planning permission³;
- 893 (2) applications for a certificate of lawfulness of existing or proposed use or development⁴, must be exercised, in England, by the district planning authority⁵. The functions of a local planning authority of determining any such application as is mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above which relates to a county matter⁶ must, however, be exercised by the county planning authority⁷.

The above provisions do not apply to applications relating to land in a National Park⁸; nor do they apply in Greater London⁹.

If requested to do so by the council of any parish situated in its area, a local planning authority which has the functions of determining applications for planning permission must notify that council of any relevant planning application and any alteration to that application accepted by the authority¹⁰.

As to district planning authorities (which do not exist in Wales) see PARA 28 ante. A local planning authority does not have jurisdiction to determine whether a proposed development requires planning permission; however, in considering whether permission ought to be granted, the authority may give weight to the fact that permission might not in reality be needed. TEXT AND NOTES 1-5--Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 1 para 3(1) further amended: Planning Act 2008 s 190(1), (6).

214. Revocation or modification of planning permission etc.

The functions¹ of a local planning authority² of:

- 894 (1) making orders³ revoking or modifying planning permission⁴, or requiring⁵ discontinuance of use⁶, imposing conditions on continuance of use or requiring the alteration or removal of buildings or works⁷; or
- 895 (2) issuing enforcement notices⁸ or serving planning contravention notices⁹ or stop notices¹⁰ or breach of condition notices¹¹, are exercisable in England by the district planning authority¹².

In a case, however, where it appears to the district planning authority of a district in a non-metropolitan county¹³ that the above functions relate to county matters¹⁴, the authority may not exercise those functions without first consulting¹⁵ the county planning authority¹⁶.

In a non-metropolitan county those functions are also exercisable by a county planning authority in a case where it appears to that authority that they relate to a matter which should properly be considered a county matter¹⁷.

The above provisions do not apply in Greater London¹⁸.

The functions of local planning authorities¹ under the provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 relating to simplified planning zone schemes² must be exercised in non-metropolitan counties in England by the district planning authorities³.

Elsewhere than in a National Park⁴, the functions of a local planning authority under the provisions relating to completion notices⁵ are exercisable by the district planning authority, except that where the relevant planning permission⁶ was granted by the county planning authority⁷, those functions, so far as relating to that permission, are exercisable by the county planning authority and also by the district planning authority after consulting⁸ the county planning authority⁹.

The exercise of functions relating to tree preservation orders is discussed below in that context¹⁰.

Provision is made with regard to the exercise of certain enforcement functions¹¹ and other functions relating to development control¹².

RELATING TO DEVELOPMENT CONTROL/(ii) Exercise of Certain Functions in Wales/216.
Exercise of development control functions in Wales; in general.

(ii) Exercise of Certain Functions in Wales

216. Exercise of development control functions in Wales; in general.

Provision is made in relation to the exercise of certain enforcement and other development control functions in any area of Wales for which there is more than one local planning authority¹. The specific provision made is discussed below in the relevant context².

If requested to do so by the council for any community or group of communities situated in its area, a local planning authority which has the functions of determining applications for planning permission must notify that council of any relevant planning application and any alteration to that application accepted by the authority³.

1 See the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 1(6), Sch 1A paras 3-7, 11 (added by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 s 18, Sch 4; the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 1(6) amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(3), Sch 24).

(2) WHAT CONSTITUTES DEVELOPMENT

(i) In general

217. Meaning of 'development'.

Except where the context otherwise requires, and subject to the provisions set out in the following paragraphs¹, 'development' means the carrying out of building², engineering³, mining⁴ or other operations⁵ in, on, over or under land⁶, or the making of any material change in the use⁷ of any buildings⁸ or other land⁹.

1 ie subject to the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55(1A)-(5) (as amended): see PARA 218 et seq post.

2 For the meaning of 'building operations' see PARA 218 post.

3 For the meaning of 'engineering operations' see PARA 219 post.

4 For the meaning of 'mining operations' see PARA 220 post.

5 The operations must involve a change in the physical character of the land or what is under or over the land, and that with some degree of permanence: Parkes v Secretary of State for the Environment [1979] 1 All ER 211, [1978] 1 WLR 1308, CA; Cheshire County Council v Woodward [1962] 2 QB 126, [1962] 1 All ER 517, DC. See also Bedfordshire County Council v Central Electricity Generating Board [1985] JPL 43, CA (preliminary testing of suitability of land for storage of radioactive waste not development).

'Other operations' is not to be construed ejusdem generis with building, engineering or mining operations: Coleshill and District Investment Co Ltd v Minister of Housing and Local Government [1969] 2 All ER 525 at 532, [1969] 1 WLR 746 at 759, HL, per Lord Guest, at 537 and 764 per Lord Wilberforce, and at 543 and 771 per Lord Pearson. Nevertheless 'development' does not include every operation: Coleshill and District Investment Co Ltd v Minister of Housing and Local Government supra at 529 and 755 per Lord Morris of Borth-y-Gest.

Demolition of buildings falls within the statutory definition of 'building operations': see PARA 218 post at head (1) in the text.

6 For the meaning of 'land' see PARA 2 note 10 ante.

7 As to material change of use see PARA 222 post.

8 For the meaning of 'building' see PARA 2 note 10 ante.

9 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 ss 55(1), 336(1). 'Develop' is to be construed accordingly: s 336(1). Accordingly, where a local development policy refers to 'development' that includes 'material change of use': see Holding v First Secretary of State [2003] All ER (D) 206 (Nov).

218. Meaning of 'building operations'.

'Building operations' includes:

- 896 (1) demolition of buildings¹;
- 897 (2) rebuilding²;
- 898 (3) structural alterations of or additions to buildings; and
- 899 (4) other operations normally undertaken by a person carrying on business as a builder³.

1 For the meaning of 'building' see PARA 2 note 10 ante. When considering whether an item is a building or structure, a threefold test of size, permanence and degree of physical attachment is to be applied, permanence being a matter of degree: Skerritts of Nottingham Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (No 2) [2000] 2 PLR 102, CA (temporary nature of large marquee, erected in hotel grounds for eight months each year, did not exclude it from the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55 (as amended)). A mobile shed on a wheeled chassis which is in no way attached to the land and which can be moved freely is not a 'building', and its erection does not constitute a 'building operation' under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55(1) (see PARA 218 ante): Tewkesbury Borough Council v Keeley [2004] EWHC 2594 (QB), [2004] All ER (D) 231 (Nov). As to demolition in the context of a listed building see Shimizu (UK) Ltd v Westminster City Council [1997] 1 All ER 481, [1997] 1 WLR 168, HL; and PARA 1109 note 2 post.

2 Where no building has stood on a site for many years, the proposed erection of a building there may properly be treated as proposed new development rather than rebuilding: see eg Smith v First Secretary of State [2005] All ER (D) 157 (Sep).

3 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55(1A) (added by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 13(1)); Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1) (definition added by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 32, Sch 7 paras 8, 52(1), (2)(c)). Certain building operations do not, however, involve development: see PARA 223 post.

219. Meaning of 'engineering operations'.

Except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'engineering operations' includes the formation or laying out of means of access¹ to highways².

Where the placing or assembly of any tank³ in any part of any inland waters⁴ for the purpose of fish farming there would not otherwise⁵ involve development⁶ of the land⁷ below, the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 has effect as if the tank resulted from carrying out engineering operations over that land⁸.

1 For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'means of access' includes any means of access, whether private or public, for vehicles or for foot passengers, and includes a street: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1).

2 Ibid s 336(1). For the meaning of 'highway' see PARA 50 note 5 ante.

Engineering operations are operations of the kind usually undertaken by engineers, although an engineer need not actually be engaged on the activity under consideration: Fayrewood Fish Farms v Secretary of State for the Environment and Hampshire County Council [1984] JPL 267. The removal of earth embankments surrounding a building operation may be an engineering operation: Coleshill and District Investment Co Ltd v Minister of Housing and Local Government [1969] 2 All ER 525, [1969] 1 WLR 746, HL. The tipping of refuse or waste material to raise the level of agricultural land to facilitate drainage is an engineering operation, provided it is shown that the object of the exercise is genuinely to improve the quality of the land: Northavon District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment (1980) 40 P & CR 332, DC. As to the tipping of refuse and waste materials generally see PARA 222 note 23 post. The Secretary of State has held that filling in a ha-ha is an engineering operation: see [1957] JPL 452.

3 For these purposes, 'tank' includes any cage and any other structure for use in fish farming; and 'fish farming' means the breeding, rearing or keeping of fish or shellfish, which includes any kind of crustacean and mollusc: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55(4A) (added by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 14(1)).

4 For these purposes, 'inland waters' means waters which do not form part of the sea or of any creek, bay or estuary or of any river as far as the tide flows: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55(4A) (as added: see note 3 supra).

5 Ie apart from ibid s 55(4A) (as added: see note 3 supra).

220. Meaning of 'mining operations'.

Mining operations include:

- 900 (1) the removal of material of any description:
85
121. (a) from a mineral-working deposit¹;
122. (b) from a deposit of pulverised fuel ash or other furnace ash or clinker; or
123. (c) from a deposit of iron, steel or other metallic slags; and 86
901 (2) the extraction of minerals² from a disused railway embankment³.

2 For the meaning of 'minerals' see PARA 16 note 2 ante.

3 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55(4).

Where mining operations are taking place, each shovelful or cut by the bulldozer is a separate act of development: Thomas David (Porthcawl) Ltd v Penybont RDC [1972] 1 All ER 733 at 738, [1972] 1 WLR 354 at 359, DC, per Lord Widgery CJ; affd [1972] 3 All ER 1092, [1972] 1 WLR 1526, CA. 221. Time when development is begun.

Development¹ of land² is taken³ to be initiated:

- 902 (1) if the development consists of the carrying out of operations, at the time when those operations are begun;
903 (2) if the development consists of a change in use⁴, at the time when the new use is instituted;
904 (3) if the development consists both of the carrying out of operations and of a change in use, at the earlier of the times mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above⁵.

For the purposes of specified provisions⁶ of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, however, development is taken to be begun on the earliest date on which any material operation comprised in the development begins to be carried out⁷; and for these purposes, 'material operation' means:

- 905 (a) any work of construction in the course of the erection⁸ of a building⁹;
906 (b) any work of demolition of a building;
907 (c) the digging of a trench which is to contain the foundations, or part of the foundations, of a building;
908 (d) the laying of any underground main or pipe to the foundations, or part of the foundations, of a building or to any such trench as is mentioned in head (c) above;
909 (e) any operation in the course of laying out or constructing a road or part of a road;

910 (f) any change in the use of any land which constitutes material development¹⁰.

For certain of the statutory purposes mentioned above¹¹, development consisting of the winning and working of minerals¹² is taken to be begun on the earliest date on which the winning and working of minerals to which the relevant grant of planning permission relates begins; and the provisions set out above do not apply¹³.

For the purposes of certain transitional provisions under previous legislation¹⁴, certain acts which were not specified operations under that legislation may have amounted to the beginning of development¹⁵.

1 For the meaning of 'development' see PARA 217 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'land' see PARA 2 note 10 ante.

3 Ie for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 but subject to s 56(2)-(6) (as amended): see the text and notes 4-10 infra. See also the text and notes 11-13 infra.

4 Except so far as the context otherwise requires, 'use', in relation to land, does not include the use of land for the carrying out of any building or other operations on it: ibid s 336(1). For the purpose of the provisions specified in s 315(1), Sch 16 Pts I, II (as amended), however (see PARA 16 note 4 ante), 'use' in relation to the discontinuance of a use of land includes the discontinuance of the use of land for development consisting of the winning and working of minerals; and save as so provided, for the purpose of those provisions 'use', in relation to land, does not include the use of land for development consisting of the winning and working of minerals: Town and Country Planning (Minerals) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/2863, reg 2. 'Development consisting of the winning and working of minerals' does not include the winning and working, on land held or occupied with land used for the purposes of agriculture, of any minerals reasonably required for the purposes of that use, including the fertilisation of the land so used and the maintenance, improvement or alteration of buildings or works on it which are occupied or used for those purposes: reg 1.

5 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 56(1). Section 56 (as amended) applies for determining, for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, when development of land is taken to be initiated: s 336(6).

6 Ie for the purposes of ibid s 85(2) (see PARA 432 post), s 86(6) (see PARA 443 post), s 87(4) (see PARA 427 post), s 89 (see PARA 1503 post), s 91 (as amended) (see PARA 537 post), s 92 (as amended) (see PARA 519 post) and s 94 (see PARA 538 post).

7 Ibid s 56(2), (3) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 32, Sch 7 paras 8, 10(1)). The test as to whether an operation is material is not the quantum of work carried out but whether it relates to the planning permission involved: Malvern Hills District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment (1982) 81 LGR 13, 46 P & CR 58, CA; Thayer v Secretary of State for the Environment [1992] JPL 264, CA. The test for determining whether the developer intends to complete the works is an objective test: Riordan Communications Ltd v South Buckinghamshire District Council (1999) 81 P & CR 85, [2000] 1 PLR 45. Whether the land that is the subject of the relevant planning permission is, at the moment of commencement, in the ownership of the developer or of the developer and others makes no difference to the principle that a starting point has to be identified to determine whether the planning permission remains extant: Ashfield v National Assembly for Wales [2003] EWHC 3309 (Admin), [2004] All ER (D) 240 (Jan). As to the significance of differences in the original plan and the works later carried out see Commercial Land Ltd v Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions [2003] JPL 358, [2002] All ER (D) 444 (May).

8 For the meaning of 'erection' see PARA 2 note 10 ante.

9 For the meaning of 'building' see PARA 2 note 10 ante.

10 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 56(4) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 7 paras 8, 10(2)). Pegging of an access road and surface clearance may fall within head (e) in the text: see Aerlink Leisure Ltd (in liquidation) v First Secretary of State [2004] EWHC 3198 (Admin), [2004] All ER (D) 359 (Dec). For these purposes, 'material development' means any development other than (1) development for which planning permission is granted by a general development order or local development order for the time being in force and which is carried out so as to comply with any condition or limitation subject to which planning permission is so granted; (2) development of a class specified in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 3 para 1 or Sch 3 para 2 (see PARA 920 post); (3) development of any class prescribed for the purposes of s 56(4) (as so amended): s 56(5) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 6 paras 8, 10; and by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 40(2)(a) (partly as from a day to be appointed under s 121; at the date at which this title states the law, 6 August 2004 had been appointed for limited purposes only: see PARA 4 note 8 ante)). 'General development order' means a development order, within the meaning of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 59 (see PARA 252 post), made as a general order applicable, subject to such exceptions as may be specified in it, to all land in England and Wales: s 56(6). As to local development orders see PARA 419 et seq post. For the meaning of 'planning permission' see PARA 43 note 6 ante; and for the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 16 note 5 ante.

At the date at which this title states the law no classes of development had been prescribed by regulations made under head (3) supra; it is apprehended that the Material Development Regulations 1967, SI 1967/494, which previously had effect as if so made, lapsed on the repeal of their enabling power by the Statute Law (Repeals) Act 1998.

11 le for the purposes the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 91 (as amended) (see PARA 537 post), s 92 (as amended) (see PARA 519 post) and s 94 (see PARA 538 post).

UPDATE

221 Time when development is begun

NOTE 10--Day now appointed in relation to England for remaining purposes: SI 2006/1061.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/4. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(2) WHAT CONSTITUTES DEVELOPMENT/(i) In general/222. Material change of use.

222. Material change of use.

In considering and determining whether there has been a material change¹ in the use² of buildings³ or other land⁴, the matter to be considered is the character of the use and not the particular purpose of the particular occupier; and thus, where goods are sold, the mere fact that they were formerly manufactured by the dealer but are now bought from another manufacturer does not involve a material change; nor does the mere fact that goods are sold or stored which were not dealt in before. Similarly, a change in ownership of the land has no relevance⁵.

Nevertheless, it seems that many considerations are material in determining the character of a use⁶; the use of land may thus be narrowly defined⁷; and some uses have been described as sui generis⁸. The question whether there has been a material change of use is⁹ primarily one of fact and degree¹⁰. Whether a material change in the use of buildings or other land has taken place is to be considered and determined in the context of the appropriate planning unit¹¹. Save in very exceptional circumstances, a single dwelling house ought to be treated as a single planning unit¹².

The planning unit may accommodate more than one activity and may include activities which are primary and ancillary¹³ activities or are primary activities alone¹⁴. The right to use land for an activity hitherto ancillary to a primary use is lost on the cessation of the primary activity¹⁵. A change in the character of an ancillary use may amount to a material change in the use of the land in, over or under which it is carried on¹⁶. There may be a material change in the use of the land as the result of the intensification of an existing use of land, the test being whether the use has been intensified to such a degree that it can be said to have become a materially different use compared with the original¹⁷.

The use of land may be of an intermittent or seasonal nature; in such a case the resumption of activity is not development¹⁸. Where the use to which land has been put has been suspended without there being any intervening use, prima facie the resumption of that use does not constitute development¹⁹; but, where land has remained unused for a considerable time, the circumstances may be such that the use will be taken to have been abandoned²⁰.

For the avoidance of doubt:

- 911 (1) the use as two or more separate dwelling houses of any building previously used as a single dwelling house involves a material change in the use of the building and of each part of it which is so used²¹;
- 912 (2) the deposit of refuse or waste materials²² on land involves a material change in its use, notwithstanding that the land is comprised in a site already used for that purpose if the superficial area of the deposit is extended or the height of the deposit is extended and exceeds the level of the land adjoining the site²³.

The use for the display of advertisements²⁴ of any external part of a building which is not normally used for that purpose is treated²⁵ as involving a material change in the use of that part of the building²⁶.

The use as temporary sleeping accommodation²⁷ of any residential premises²⁸ in Greater London²⁹ involves a material change of use of the premises and of each part thereof which is so used³⁰; and there is a material change of use of a dwelling house³¹ in Greater London if, not being subject to a time-sharing scheme³², it becomes so subject³³.

A change in the use of land or buildings to a use as a waste disposal installation for a specified purpose³⁴ involves a material change in the use of that land or those buildings³⁵.

The test for determining whether a material change of use has occurred is an objective test, the application of which is unaffected by the health or infirmity of the landowner³⁶.

See also Wealden District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment and Colin Day [1988] JPL 268, CA (use of caravan for storage of feed and shelter). It has been held that a decision whether permission to use the river bed for water and ships included permission to use it for water and ships which attracted helicopter traffic, and therefore whether such use amounted to a change of use, ought to be left to the planning authorities with whom Parliament had entrusted such decisions; and that a court which said that such changes would, rather than could, amount to a change of use had gone too far, even though the parties

9 Certain matters are, however, expressly declared by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 to involve a material change of use (see the text and notes 21-26 infra); and certain uses of land do not involve development (see PARA 223 post).

It has been held that an intention to operate refuse collection vehicles on land should not be equated with actual operation of those vehicles so as to amount to a change of use (see MDJ Light Brothers Ltd v First Secretary of State [2003] All ER (D) 158 (May)); however, while a claimant's intention in respect of the use of the land is in no way definitive as to whether or not a change of use has taken place, his stated intention to carry out works is a relevant factor when considering the overall picture (Fox v First Secretary of State [2003] EWHC 887 (Admin), [2003] All ER (D) 453 (Mar)).

The supply on prescription of pharmaceutical goods from a supermarket does not constitute a material change of use: R v Maldon District Council, ex p Pattani (1998) 47 BMLR 54, [1999] PLCR 1, CA. Whether land is used for grazing is a question of fact and degree: Fox v First Secretary of State [2003] EWHC 887 (Admin), [2003] All ER (D) 453 (Mar). Use of a building as a dwelling does not cease if the landowner or his invitees do not actually sleep there for even quite long periods of time; thus an absence from the building while the owner takes a substantial holiday does not mean that he has ceased to use the building as his dwelling; by contrast indications that there had been such cessation of use would be absence combined with removal of all personal effects and disconnection of services: see Swale Borough Council v First Secretary of State [2005] EWHC 290 (Admin) at [19], [2005] All ER (D) 118 (Mar) per Evans-Lombe J.

11 G Percy Trentham Ltd v Gloucestershire County Council [1966] 1 All ER 701, [1966] 1 WLR 506, CA. The planning unit will normally be the unit of occupation; but, where land is used for two or more different and unrelated purposes each in separate areas, each such area should be treated as a separate planning unit: Burdle v Secretary of State for the Environment [1972] 3 All ER 240, [1972] 1 WLR 1207, DC; but see Rawlins v Secretary of State for the Environment, Gregory v Secretary of State for the Environment [1989] JPL 439; affd [1990] 1 PLR 110, CA (planning unit comprised a number of individual plots of land under separate ownership). The erection of a new building does not necessarily create a new planning unit or open a new chapter in the planning history; but a change in the physical nature of the premises or its planning status may give rise to an inference that reliance on a prior use is being abandoned and a new planning history about to begin, the question being one of fact and degree in each case: Jennings Motors Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment supra; Prosser v Minister of Housing and Local Government (1968) 67 LGR 109, DC; Petticoat Lane Rentals Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment [1971] 2 All ER 793, [1971] 1 WLR 1112, DC; Leighton and Newman Car Sales Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment (1976) 32 P & CR 1, CA; Joyce Shopfitters Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment [1976] JPL 236, DC; Hilliard v Secretary of State for the Environment supra; Newbury District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment [1981] AC 578, [1980] 1 All ER 731, HL.

A material change of use may occur when the planning unit is sub-divided: see Wakelin v Secretary of State for the Environment (1978) 46 P & CR 214, CA; Winton v Secretary of State for the Environment (1982) 46 P & CR 205; Pope v Secretary of State for the Environment and Teignbridge District Council (1991) 63 P & CR 442.

The use of part of a farm for a non-agricultural use may constitute a new and separate planning unit: Warnock v Secretary of State for the Environment and Dover District Council [1980] JPL 590, DC (lairage).

12 Wood v Secretary of State for the Environment [1973] 2 All ER 404 at 408, 409, [1973] 1 WLR 707 at 712, DC, per Lord Widgery CJ. See also Brooks v Gloucestershire County Council (1967) 66 LGR 386, DC (dwelling house part residential, part shop). The question whether the use by the owner of a dwelling house of one or two rooms for his professional or business purposes constitutes a material change of use of the whole house is one of fact and degree in each case. For ministerial decisions that such use constitutes a material change see eg Selected Appeals VI/20 (use of outbuildings for mending cloth); [1968] JPL 637 (tailoring business); [1970] JPL 156 (dog breeding); [1974] JPL 554 (one room as nursing agency); [1976] JPL 328 (veterinary operating theatre); [1980] JPL 885 (use of kitchen to prepare sandwiches and salads for local firms).

13 If ancillary to a primary use of the same planning unit. Where a particular building or parcel of land is part of a larger unit and the activity in, over or under it is merely ancillary to the use of the unit as a whole, its use is determined by that of the unit as a whole: Vickers-Armstrong Ltd v Central Land Board (1957) 9 P & CR 33, CA (administration block in general industrial unit); G Percy Trentham Ltd v Gloucestershire County Council [1966] 1 All ER 701, [1966] 1 WLR 506, CA (farm buildings); Brazil (Concrete) Ltd v Amersham RDC (1966) 65 LGR 207, DC; affd (1967) 65 LGR 365, CA (carpenter's shop in builders' yard). Cf Duffy v Secretary of State for the Environment and Westminster London Borough Council [1981] JPL 811 (staff accommodation building 'geographically separated' from main hotel building); and see Swinbank v Secretary of State for the Environment and Darlington Borough Council [1987] JPL 781; Fuller v Secretary of State for the Environment [1987] JPL 854. The ancillary link may be lost where the ancillary use grows to such a point that it can no longer be said to be ancillary, but to have become a separate use in its own right: Trio Thames Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment and Reading Borough Council [1984] JPL 183. It is a misapplication of this concept to treat the use or uses of a single planning unit as ancillary to activities carried on outside the unit altogether: Westminster City Council v British Waterways Board [1985] AC 676 at 684, [1984] 3 All ER 737 at 743, HL, per Lord Bridge. The commencement of a use ancillary to an established use does not require planning permission: Emma Hotels Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment (1980) 41 P & CR 255, DC (non-residents' bar in private hotel). See also Allen v Secretary of State for the Environment [1990] 1 PLR 25 (retail sale of home-grown plants and shrubs); Harrods Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions [2002] EWCA Civ 412, [2002] 12 LS Gaz R 36, [2002] All ER (D) 73 (Mar) (when deciding whether a proposed change of use of retail premises amounts to development, it is appropriate to consider shops in general, rather than a particular shop, to determine what ancillary activities may be); R (on the application of I'm Your Man Ltd) v North Somerset Council [2004] EWHC 342 (Admin), [2004] All ER (D) 423 (Feb) (helicopter experience flights and helicopter flights by visitors constituting ancillary use of site operating as a helicopter museum).

14 Where two or more primary activities are carried on within the same planning unit, its use is determined by reference to all the activities concerned, and the use is said to be a composite or mixed use: see eg Wipperman v Barking London Borough Council (1965) 64 LGR 97, DC; Burdle v Secretary of State for the Environment [1972] 3 All ER 240, [1972] 1 WLR 1207, DC. Where there is a composite or mixed use, the cessation of one of the component activities would not of itself amount to a material change of use, but there may be a material change of use if one component use absorbs the entire site to the exclusion of the other: Wipperman v Barking London Borough Council supra. A grant of planning permission enures for the benefit of the land to which it relates and all persons for the time being interested in it; consequently a valid planning permission capable of implementation cannot be abandoned by conduct of the owner or occupier of the land for the time being: Pioneer Aggregates (UK) Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment and the Peak Park Joint Planning Board [1985] AC 132, [1984] 2 All ER 358, HL.

21 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55(3)(a). The question whether there has been a change of use within the ambit of s 55(3)(a) is one of fact and degree to be determined (inter alia) by the existence or absence of any degree of physical reconstruction, and the extent to which the alleged separate dwellings can be regarded as separate in the sense of being self-contained and independent of other parts of the same property: Ealing Corp v Ryan [1965] 2 QB 486, [1965] 1 All ER 137, DC. It is doubtful whether the principles enunciated in cases decided under the Rent Acts are applicable for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55(3)(a): Birmingham Corp v Minister of Housing and Local Government and Habib Ullah [1964] 1 QB 178 at 187, [1963] 3 All ER 668 at 674, DC, per Lord Parker CJ. 22 For these purposes, references to waste are modified to include 'Directive Waste' as defined by the Waste Management Licensing Regulations 1994, SI 1994/1056, reg 1(3), Sch 4 Pt II: see reg 19, Sch 4 Pt I para 11. See further ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH.

23 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55(3)(b). The effect of s 55(3)(b) is that the tipping on sites of refuse or waste materials is to be treated as a material change of use and not as operational development: Bilboe v Secretary of State for the Environment (1980) 39 P & CR 495, CA; Roberts v Vale Royal District Council (1977) 39 P & CR 514, DC. The Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55(3)(b) permits the continuance of tipping on sites used for that purpose on 1 July 1948 subject to limitations: see Macdonald v Glasgow Corp'n 1960 SLT (Sh Ct) 21 per Sheriff RH Sherwood Calver QC. Where land was so used on 1 July 1948, that use may subsequently have been abandoned, in which case the resumption of tipping would require planning permission: Ratcliffe v Secretary of State for the Environment [1975] JPL 728, DC. Where the backfilling of quarry refuse has been part of the use as a quarry, filling with household refuse subsequent to the cessation of quarrying is a material change of use even though the superficial area of the tip has not been extended nor its height raised above the level of the adjoining ground: Alexandra Transport Co Ltd v Secretary of State for Scotland 1974 SLT 81. Cf R v Surrey County Council, ex p Monk (1986) 53 P & CR 410 (planning permission subject to condition requiring infilling of quarry with materials suitable for plant growth; materials could include waste if agreed with local authority to be suitable for that purpose). 27 For these purposes, 'use as temporary sleeping accommodation' means use as sleeping accommodation which is occupied by the same person for less than 90 consecutive nights and which is provided, with or without other services, for a consideration arising either (1) by way of trade for money or money's worth; or (2) by reason of the employment of the occupant, whether or not the relationship of landlord and tenant is thereby created: Greater London Council (General Powers) Act 1973 s 25(2)(a) (amended by the Greater London Council (General Powers) Act 1983 s 4). The word 'consideration' in the Greater London Council (General Powers) Act 1973 s 25(2)(a) (as amended) is not limited to valuable consideration in the strict sense of contract law: R v Kensington and Chelsea London Borough Council, ex p Lawrie Plantation Services Ltd [1999] 3 All ER 929, [1999] 1 WLR 1415, HL. The Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987, SI 1987/764 (as amended) (see PARA 224 et seq post), does not repeal, modify or disapply the effect of the Greater London Council (General Powers) Act 1973 Act s 25 (as amended): Hyde Park Residence Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (2000) 80 P & CR 419, [2000] All ER (D) 64, CA.

28 For these purposes, 'residential premises' means a building, or any part of a building, which was previously used, or was designed or constructed for use, as one or more permanent residences: Greater London Council (General Powers) Act 1973 s 25(2)(b).

29 As to Greater London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 29.

30 Greater London Council (General Powers) Act 1973 s 25(1); Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990 s 2. For the meaning of 'hostel' for these purposes see Panayi v Secretary of State for the Environment (1985) 50 P & CR 109. The Greater London Council (General Powers) Act 1973 s 25(1) is a deeming provision and has the effect that, in the absence of some specific reference in the grant of planning permission to the right to use the premises for temporary purposes, it is unlawful so to use them even on a first use in the area to which s 25 (as amended) applies: Westminster City Council v Secretary of State for the Environment [1991] 2 PLR 44. As to breach of the Greater London Council (General Powers) Act 1973 s 25 (as amended) see also Fairstate Ltd v First Secretary of State [2005] EWCA Civ 238, [2005] All ER (D) 330 (Mar) (use for more than ten years as temporary sleeping accommodation, which made that use lawful; but that use was then changed for about five months to longer term residential occupation and finally reverted back for the next four years to temporary sleeping accommodation; held that there had been a breach of planning control).

31 For these purposes, 'dwelling house' includes a flat: Greater London Council (General Powers) Act 1984 s 5(3).

32 For these purposes, a dwelling house becomes subject to a time-sharing scheme when any person is granted a right entitling him to occupy the dwelling house or any part of it for a specified week or other period in every year during which the right subsists: ibid s 5(2).

33 Ibid s 5(1).

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(2) WHAT CONSTITUTES DEVELOPMENT/(i) In general/223. Operations or uses not involving development.

223. Operations or uses not involving development.

Subject to exceptions in the case of certain internal operations¹, the following operations or uses of land² are not taken³ to involve development⁴ of land:

- 913 (1) the carrying out for the maintenance, improvement or other alteration⁵ of any building⁶ of works which:
 - 87 124. (a) affect only the interior of the building; or
 - 125. (b) do not materially affect the external appearance⁷ of the building,
 - 88 914 and are not works for making good war damage⁸ or works begun after 5 December 1968 for the alteration of a building by providing additional space in it underground⁹;
 - 915 (2) the carrying out on land within the boundaries of a road by a highway authority¹⁰ of any works required for the maintenance or improvement of the road but, in the case of any such works which are not exclusively for the maintenance of the road, not including any works which may have significant adverse effects on the environment;
 - 916 (3) the carrying out by a local authority¹¹ or statutory undertakers¹² of any works for the purpose of inspecting, repairing or renewing any sewers, mains, pipes, cables or other apparatus, including the breaking open of any street or other land for that purpose;
 - 917 (4) the use of any buildings or other land within the curtilage¹³ of a dwelling house for any purpose incidental to the enjoyment of the dwelling house as such¹⁴;
 - 918 (5) the use of any land for the purposes of agriculture¹⁵ or forestry, including afforestation, and the use for any of those purposes of any building occupied together with land so used;
 - 919 (6) in the case of buildings or other land which are used for a purpose of any class¹⁶ specified in an order made by the Secretary of State¹⁷ or, in relation to Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales¹⁸, the use of the buildings or other land or, subject to the provisions of the order, of any part of the buildings or the other land, for any other purpose of the same class;

920 (7) the demolition of any description of building specified in a direction given by the Secretary of State or by the Assembly to local planning authorities¹⁹ generally or to a particular local planning authority²⁰.

1 See note 9 infra.

2 For the meaning of 'use' see PARA 221 note 4 ante; and for the meaning of 'land' see PARA 2 note 10 ante.

3 le for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990.

4 For the meaning of 'development' see PARA 217 ante.

5 The distinction between 'improvement or other alteration' and rebuilding is a matter of fact and degree: Street v Essex County Council (1965) 183 Estates Gazette 537, DC. See also Larkin v Basildon District Council and the Secretary of State for the Environment [1980] JPL 407, DC; Hewlett v Secretary of State for the Environment and Brentwood District Council [1983] JPL 105; affd [1985] JPL 404, CA. As to general permission for alterations etc to dwelling houses see PARA 265 et seq post.

6 For the meaning of 'building' see PARA 2 note 10 ante.

7 The words 'which do not materially affect the external appearance' cannot be used to enlarge the definition of development; what is done by way of alteration must be something which can be classified as an operation: Coleshill and District Investment Co Ltd v Minister of Housing and Local Government [1969] 2 All ER 525 at 535, [1969] 1 WLR 746 at 762, HL, per Lord Upjohn and at 537 and 764 per Lord Wilberforce. See also Kensington and Chelsea Royal London Borough Council v CG Hotels Ltd (1980) 41 P & CR 40, DC (installation of floodlights). Stone cladding to the front elevation of a dwelling house may involve development (City of Bradford Metropolitan District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment (1977) 76 LGR 454) but may be permitted development (see PARAS 265-266 post). For a similar approach in relation to the painting of a building see Windsor & Maidenhead Royal Borough Council v Secretary of State for the Environment [1988] JPL 410.

8 Except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'war damage' has the meaning given in the War Damage Act 1943: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1). As to permission to restore war damage see PARA 238 note 15 post.

9 The Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales may in a development order specify any circumstances or description of circumstances in which ibid s 55(2) (as amended) (see heads (1)-(7) in the text) does not apply to operations mentioned in s 55(2)(a) (see head (1) in the text) which have the effect of increasing the gross floor space of the building by such amount or percentage amount as is so specified: s 55(2A) (added by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 49(1)). The development order may make different provision for different purposes: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55(2B) (as so added). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante; as to the transfer of functions under s 55 (as amended), so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, to the Assembly see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1 (as amended); and as to the Assembly see PARA 20 ante. For the meaning of 'development order' see PARA 252 post.

A development order made for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55(2A) (as so added) does not affect any operations begun before it is made: Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 49(4). If: (1) the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 55(2) (as amended) is disapplied in respect of any operations by virtue of a development order under s 55(2A) (as so added); (2) at the date the development order comes into force a certificate under s 192 (as substituted) (certificate of lawfulness of proposed use or development: see PARA 587 post) is in force in respect of the operations; and (3) before that date no such operations have been begun, then the certificate under 192 (as substituted) is of no effect: Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 49(2), (3).

Section 49 was enacted in response to concerns that the development of mezzanine floors in large retail stores significantly increased the available floorspace without, in many cases, being subject to planning controls: see HL Debates vol 659 col 917-920 (25 March 2004).

10 As to highway authorities see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 49 et seq. Until the prospective amendment made by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 cited in note 20 infra is brought into force, head (2) in the text refers to a 'local highway authority' rather than to a 'highway authority'. For the meaning of 'local highway authority' see PARA 39 note 21 ante.

11 For the meaning of 'local authority' see PARA 3 note 3 ante.

12 For the meaning of 'statutory undertakers' see PARA 1009 post.

Some operations within the curtilage of a dwelling house are permitted development: see PARA 265 et seq post. As to listed buildings see PARA 1091 et seq post.

Earlier decisions such as Edwick v Sunbury-on-Thames UDC (1959) 11 P & CR 261, DC, Methuen-Campbell v Walters [1979] QB 525, [1979] 1 All ER 606, CA and Dyer v Dorset County Council [1989] QB 346, [1988] 3 WLR 213, CA, interpreted 'curtilage' more restrictively as a small area forming part and parcel with the house or building which it contains or to which it is attached; but cf Skerritts of Nottingham Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (No 2) supra at 66-67 and at 522 per Robert Walker LJ. One building and its curtilage may fall within the curtilage of another building: A-G (ex rel Sutcliffe) v Calderdale Borough Council (1982) 46 P & CR 399, CA (considered in Debenhams plc v Westminster City Council [1987] AC 396, [1987] 1 All ER 51, HL). The extension of the garden of a dwelling house by the incorporation of land previously used for agriculture may involve a material change of use: Sampson's Executors v Nottinghamshire County Council [1949] 2 KB 439 at 447, [1949] 1 All ER 1051 at 1055, DC, per Lord Goddard CJ.

14 See Collins v Secretary of State for the Environment [1989] EGCS 15; Wallington v Secretary of State for Wales [1991] 1 PLR 87, CA (keeping 44 dogs as a hobby not 'incidental to the enjoyment of the dwelling house as such'; what is reasonably incidental should be decided objectively). Cf, however, South Oxfordshire District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions [2000] 2 All ER 667 at 672-673 per George Bartlett QC (sitting as a deputy judge of the High Court) (helicopter use as a personal means of transport properly considered as incidental to the enjoyment of a dwelling house as such).

15 For the meaning of 'agriculture' see PARA 16 note 6 ante. As to the factors to be taken into account when determining whether land is being used for the purposes of agriculture see Millington v Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions [1999] 3 PLR 118, [1999] All ER (D) 675, CA. Ministerial decisions have held that (1) the rearing of alpacas falls within the definition of 'agriculture' but a proposed use for alpaca trekking and dog training would not be ancillary or incidental to agricultural use but would involve a separate primary use for leisure or recreational purposes (Christchurch Borough Council [2003] JPL 652); (2) the breeding of rats etc to provide food for snakes and reptiles does not fall within the terms of 'agriculture' (North Cornwall District Council [2003] JPL 655).

223 Operations or uses not involving development

NOTE 20--Day now appointed: SI 2006/1281. SI 1987/764 further amended: SI 2006/220 (England), SI 2006/1386 (Wales).

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/4. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(2) WHAT CONSTITUTES DEVELOPMENT/(ii) Use Classes/224. In general.

(ii) Use Classes

224. In general.

Where a building¹ or other land is used² for a purpose of any specified Class³, the use⁴ of that building or that other land for any other purpose of the same Class is not taken⁵ to involve development⁶ of the land⁷. A use which is included in, and ordinarily incidental⁸ to, any use in a specified Class is not excluded from the use to which it is incidental merely because it is specified as a separate use⁹.

Where land on a single site¹⁰ or on adjacent sites used as parts of a single undertaking is used for purposes consisting of or including purposes falling within Classes B1 and B2¹¹, those Classes may be treated as a single Class in considering the use of that land¹² so long as the area used for a purpose falling within Class B2¹³ is not substantially increased as a result¹⁴.

No specified Class¹⁵ includes, however, use:

- 921 (1) as a theatre;
- 922 (2) as an amusement arcade or centre, or a funfair;
- 923 (3) as a launderette;
- 924 (4) for the sale of fuel for motor vehicles;
- 925 (5) for the sale or display for sale of motor vehicles;
- 926 (6) for a taxi business or business for the hire of motor vehicles;
- 927 (7) as a scrapyards, or a yard for the storage or distribution of minerals¹⁶ or the breaking of motor vehicles;
- 928 (8) for any work formerly registrable under the Alkali etc Works Regulation Act 1906 (now repealed)¹⁷;
- 929 (9) as a hostel;
- 930 (10) as a waste disposal installation for the incineration, chemical treatment¹⁸ or landfill of waste of a specified description¹⁹;
- 931 (11) in England, as a retail warehouse club being a retail club where goods are sold, or displayed for sale, only to persons who are members of that club;
- 932 (12) in England, as a night-club²⁰.

Furthermore, where a building or other land is situated in Wales, class B8 (storage or distribution)²¹ does not include use of that building or land for the storage of, or as a distribution centre for, radioactive material²² or radioactive waste²³.

The right to change from one use to another within the same use Class may be excluded by an express condition of a planning permission²⁴.

1 For these purposes, references to a building include references to land occupied with the building and used for the same purposes: Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987, SI 1987/764, art 3(2). For the meanings of 'building' and 'land' see PARA 2 note 10 ante.

2 Where a use of land is de minimis, it should be disregarded for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987, SI 1987/764 (as amended): Kwik Save Discount Group Ltd v Secretary of State for Wales (1980) 42 P & CR 166, CA.

3 Ie for a purpose of any Class specified in the Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987, SI 1987/764, art 3, Schedule (as amended): see PARA 225 et seq post.

4 For the meaning of 'use' see PARA 221 note 4 ante.

5 Ie subject to the provisions of the Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987, SI 1987/764 (as amended): see the text and notes 6-24 infra; and PARA 225 et seq post.

6 For the meaning of 'development' see PARA 217 ante.

7 Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987, SI 1987/764, arts 2, 3(1). Once it has been determined that two uses fall within the same Class, a change from one to the other cannot be held to be development by reason of intensification or for any other reason: Brooks and Burton Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment [1978] 1 All ER 733, [1977] 1 WLR 1294, CA; Carpet Decor (Guildford) Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment (1981) 261 Estates Gazette 56. Certain changes of use are deemed not to be development, but a change of use from one Class to another, or a change from a use outside any of the use Classes to a use within a use Class, is not necessarily development: Rann v Secretary of State for the Environment and Thanet District Council [1980] JPL 109. See also Young v Secretary of State for the Environment [1983] 2 AC 662, [1983] 2 All ER 1105, HL (change from light industrial building to general industrial building).

10 For these purposes, 'site' means the whole area of land within a single unit of occupation: Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987, SI 1987/764, art 2.

where the sale, display or service is to visiting members of the public³.

1 le for the purpose of determining whether a use involves development: see PARA 224 ante.

2 'The retail sale of goods' does not include showing films in coin-operated cubicles; nor would that constitute a use incidental to a retail use (Lydcare Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment (1984) 49 P & CR 186, CA) but includes the supply of pharmaceutical goods on prescription (R v Maldon District Council, ex p Pattani (1998) 47 BMLR 54, [1999] PLCR 1, CA). Use of premises as a warehouse club selling goods in bulk to members who pay an annual subscription and are either in business or within a specified employment group does not fall within Class A1: R v Thurrock Borough Council, ex p Tesco Stores Ltd (1994) 92 LGR 321, [1994] JPL 328; and see PARA 224 ante at head (11) in the text.

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(2) WHAT CONSTITUTES DEVELOPMENT/(ii) Use Classes/226. Class A2: financial and professional services.

226. Class A2: financial and professional services.

Class A2 comprises¹ use for the provision of:

- 944 (1) financial services; or
- 945 (2) professional services, other than health or medical services; or
- 946 (3) any other services, including use as a betting office, which it is appropriate to provide in a shopping area, where the services are provided principally to visiting members of the public².

2 Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987, SI 1987/764, arts 2, 3, Schedule, Class A2. A solicitor's office can fall within Class A2 if the professional services are provided principally 'over the counter' to members of the public who come in off the street, even if the practice is also operated on an appointments system: Kalra v Secretary of State for the Environment (1995) 72 P & CR 423, [1995] NPC 164, CA. 227. Classes A3 to A5: food and drink.

In England only:

- 948 (2) Class A4 comprises use as a public house, wine-bar or other drinking establishment³; and
- 949 (3) Class A5 comprises use for the sale of hot food for consumption off the premises⁴.

228. Class B1: business.

Class B1 comprises¹ use for all or any of the following purposes:

- 952 (1) as an office other than a use within Class A2²;
- 953 (2) for research and development of products or processes; or
- 954 (3) for any industrial process³, being a use which can be carried out in any residential area without detriment to the amenity of that area by reason of noise, vibration, smell, fumes, smoke, soot, ash, dust or grit⁴.

1 le for the purpose of determining whether a use involves development: see PARA 224 ante.

2 le the Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987, SI 1987/764, arts 2, 3, Schedule, Class A2: see PARA 226 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'industrial process' means a process for or incidental to any of the following purposes: (1) the making of any article or part of any article, including a ship or vessel, or a film, video or sound recording; (2) the altering, repairing, maintaining, ornamenting, finishing, cleaning, washing, packing, canning, adapting for sale, breaking up or demolition of any article; or (3) the getting, dressing or treatment of minerals, in the course of any trade or business other than agriculture, and other than a use carried on in or adjacent to a mine or quarry: ibid art 2. For the meaning of 'minerals' see PARA 16 note 2 ante. The making of a profit or commercial activity is not an essential feature of a process carried on in the course of trade or business: Rael-Brook Ltd v Minister of Housing and Local Government [1967] 2 QB 65, [1967] 1 All ER 262, DC (use by a local authority of a building as a cooking centre for school meals).

4 Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987, SI 1987/764, Schedule, Class B1. The test is whether the use would or might be detrimental to the amenity of any residential area in which the process is carried on: WT Lamb Properties Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment and Crawley District Council [1983] JPL 303.

The mere fact that a person carries on an operation which interferes with the amenities does not establish that the machinery cannot be operated without detriment to the amenities: Alan Markovits Ltd v Hove Borough Council (1958) 9 P & CR 292. As to general guidance on use Classes see also PARA 224 note 24 ante.

229. Class B2: general industrial.

Class B2 comprises¹ use for the carrying on of an industrial process² other than one falling within³ Class B1⁴. A recycling facility may fall within Class B2⁵.

In relation to Wales, Class C2A comprises use for the provision of secure residential accommodation, including use as a prison, young offenders institution, detention centre, secure training centre, custody centre, short-term holding centre, secure hospital, secure local authority accommodation or use as military barracks¹.

233. Class C3: dwelling houses.

Class C3 comprises¹ use as a dwelling house, whether or not as a sole or main residence:

- 958 (1) by a single person or by people living together as a family; or
- 959 (2) by not more than six residents living together as a single household², including a household where care³ is provided for residents⁴.

1 le for the purpose of determining whether a use involves development: see PARA 224 ante.

2 The fact that no more than six people are living together makes it more likely that they are living together as a single household; furthermore, although the precise nature of the relationship between the residents is clearly a material consideration, it is not necessarily determinative of the matter: R (on the application of Hossack) v Kettering Borough Council [2002] EWCA Civ 886, [2003] 2 P & CR 444, [2002] All ER (D) 186 (Jun) (for further proceedings see R (on the application of Hossack) v Kettering Borough Council (No 2) [2003] EWHC 1929 (Admin), [2003] All ER (D) 556 (Jul)). The concept of 'living together as a household' means a proper functioning household; the presence of resident children, or other persons unable to care for themselves, and non-resident carers does not suffice: North Devon District Council v Secretary of State for Transport, Local

- 961 (2) as a crèche, day nursery or day centre²;
- 962 (3) for the provision of education;
- 963 (4) for the display of works of art, otherwise than for sale or hire;
- 964 (5) as a museum;
- 965 (6) as a public library or public reading room;
- 966 (7) as a public hall or exhibition hall;
- 967 (8) for, or in connection with, public worship or religious instruction³.

A. IN GENERAL

236. General requirement of permission.

Subject to certain exceptions¹, planning permission² is required for the carrying out of any development³ of land⁴.

Planning permission may be granted:

- 973 (1) by a development order⁵ or local development order⁶;

- 974 (2) by the local planning authority⁷, or in specified cases⁸, by the Secretary of State⁹ (or, in relation to Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales¹⁰) on application to the authority in accordance with a development order;
- 975 (3) on the adoption or approval of a simplified planning zone scheme¹¹ or alterations to such a scheme¹²; or
- 976 (4) on the designation of an enterprise zone or the approval¹³ of a modified scheme¹⁴.

Heads (3) and (4) above do not, however, permit planning permission for certain types of development to be granted without consideration of its environmental impact¹⁵.

Planning permission may also be deemed¹⁶ to be granted¹⁷.

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(i) Control by Requirement of Permission/A. IN GENERAL/1. Application of the levy

1. Application of the levy

The Secretary of State¹ may with the consent of the Treasury make regulations² providing for the imposition of a charge to be known as community infrastructure levy ('CIL')³. In making the regulations the Secretary of State must aim to ensure that the overall purpose of CIL is to ensure that costs incurred in providing infrastructure to support the development⁴ of an area can be funded, wholly or partly, by owners or developers of land⁵. CIL regulations must require the authority that charges CIL⁶ to apply it, or cause it to be applied, to funding infrastructure⁷; and for these purposes 'infrastructure' includes: (1) roads and other transport facilities; (2) flood defences; (3) schools and other educational facilities; (4) medical facilities; (5) sporting and recreational facilities; (6) open spaces; and (7) affordable housing⁸. The regulations may specify: (a) works, installations and other facilities that are to be, or not to be, funded by CIL⁹; (b) criteria for determining the areas in relation to which infrastructure may be funded by CIL in respect of land¹⁰; and (c) what is to be, or not to be, treated as funding¹¹; and may: (i) require charging authorities to prepare and publish a list of projects that are to be, or may be, wholly or partly funded by CIL¹²; (ii) include provision about the procedure to be followed in preparing a list, which may include provision for consultation, for the appointment of an independent person or a combination¹³; (iii) include provision about the circumstances in which a charging authority may and may not apply CIL to projects not included on the list¹⁴. In making provision about funding the regulations may, in particular: (a) permit CIL to be used to reimburse expenditure already incurred¹⁵; (b) permit CIL to be reserved for expenditure that may be incurred on future projects¹⁶; (c) permit CIL to be applied, either generally or subject to limits set by or determined in accordance with the regulations, to administrative expenses in connection with infrastructure or in connection with CIL¹⁷; (d) include provision for the giving of loans, guarantees or indemnities¹⁸; (e) make provision about the application of CIL where the projects to which it was to be applied no longer require funding¹⁹. The regulations may: (aa) require a charging authority²⁰ to account separately, and in accordance with the regulations, for CIL received or due²¹; (bb) require a charging authority to monitor the use made and to be made of CIL in its area²²; (cc) require a charging authority to report on actual or expected charging, collection and application of CIL²³; (dd) permit a charging authority to cause money to be applied in respect of things done outside its area²⁴; (ee) permit a charging authority or other body to spend money²⁵; (ff) permit a charging authority to pass money to another body²⁶. CIL regulations may also contain provision enabling an authority to prohibit development pending assumption of liability for CIL²⁷ or pending payment of CIL²⁸.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19.

2 Such regulations are known as 'CIL regulations': see the Planning Act 2008 s 205(4).

3 Planning Act 2008 s 205(1). CIL regulations: (1) may make provision that applies generally or only to specified cases, circumstances or areas; (2) may make different provision for different cases, circumstances or areas; (3) may provide, or allow a charging schedule to provide, for exceptions; (4) may confer, or allow a charging schedule to confer, a discretionary power on the Secretary of State, a local authority or another specified person; (5) may apply an enactment, with or without modifications; and (6) may include provision of a kind permitted by s 232(3)(b) (incidental, consequential, supplementary, transitional or transitory provision or savings): s 222(1). They must be made by statutory instrument and must not be made unless a draft has been laid before and approved by resolution of the House of Commons: s 222(2).

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(i) Control by Requirement of Permission/A. IN GENERAL/2. The charge and the charging authorities

2. The charge and the charging authorities

A charging authority may charge community infrastructure levy ('CIL')¹ in respect of development² of land in its area³. A local planning authority⁴ is the charging authority for its area⁵; but the Mayor of London⁶ is a charging authority for Greater London⁷ in addition to the local planning authorities⁸, the Broads Authority⁹ is the only charging authority for the Broads¹⁰ and the Council of the Isles of Scilly is the only charging authority for the Isles of Scilly¹¹. CIL regulations¹² may, however, provide for any of the following to be the charging authority for an area, or in the case of Greater London one of the charging authorities, in place of the local planning authority, the Broads Authority or the Council of the Isles of Scilly¹³: (1) a county council; (2) a county borough council; (3) a district council; (4) a metropolitan district council; and (5) a London borough council¹⁴. If a joint committee that includes a charging authority is established for the purposes of Part 2 of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004, CIL regulations may provide that the joint committee is to exercise specified functions, in respect of the area specified in the agreement establishing that committee, on behalf of the charging authority¹⁵. The Secretary of State¹⁶ may give guidance to a charging authority or other public authority¹⁷ about any matter connected with CIL; and the authority must have regard to the guidance¹⁸.

CIL regulations may also include provision about the exercise of any other power relating to planning or development⁵. The Secretary of State⁶ may give guidance to a charging or other authority⁷ about how a power relating to planning or development is to be exercised; and authorities must have regard to the guidance⁸. Provision may be made, and guidance may be given, however, under the above provisions⁹ only if the Secretary of State thinks it necessary or expedient¹⁰ for: (1) complementing the main purpose of CIL regulations¹¹; (2) enhancing the effectiveness, or increasing the use, of CIL regulations¹²; (3) preventing agreements, undertakings or other transactions from being used to undermine or circumvent CIL regulations¹³; (4) preventing agreements, undertakings or other transactions from being used to achieve a purpose that the Secretary of State thinks would better be achieved through the application of CIL regulations¹⁴; or (5) preventing or restricting the imposition of burdens, the making of agreements or the giving of undertakings, in addition to CIL¹⁵. CIL regulations may provide that a power to give guidance or directions may not be exercised: (a) in relation to matters specified in the regulations¹⁶; (b) in cases or circumstances specified in the regulations¹⁷; (c) for a purpose specified in the regulations¹⁸; or (d) to an extent specified in the regulations¹⁹.

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(i) Control by Requirement of Permission/A. IN GENERAL/5. Liability for community infrastructure levy

5. Liability for community infrastructure levy

Where liability to community infrastructure levy ('CIL')¹ would arise² in respect of proposed development³ a person may assume liability to pay the levy⁴. An assumption of liability may be made before development commences⁵, and must be made in accordance with any provision of CIL regulations about the procedure for assuming liability⁶. A person who assumes liability for CIL before the commencement of development becomes liable when development is commenced in reliance on planning permission⁷. CIL regulations must make provision for an owner⁸ or developer⁹ of land to be liable for CIL where development is commenced in reliance on planning permission if: (1) nobody has assumed liability in accordance with the regulations; or (2) other specified circumstances arise, such as the insolvency or withdrawal of a person who has assumed liability¹⁰. CIL regulations may make provision about: (a) joint liability, with or without several liability¹¹; (b) liability of partnerships¹²; (c) assumption of partial liability¹³; (d) apportionment of liability, which may include provision for referral to a specified person or body for determination¹⁴ and include provision for appeals¹⁵; (e) withdrawal of assumption of liability¹⁶; (f) cancellation of assumption of liability by a charging authority, in which case head (1) above applies¹⁷; (g) transfer of liability, whether before or after development commences and whether or not liability has been assumed¹⁸. The amount of any liability for CIL is to be calculated by reference to the time when planning permission first permits the development¹⁹ as a result of which the levy becomes payable²⁰. CIL regulations may, however, make provision for liability for CIL to arise where development which requires planning permission is commenced without it²¹. CIL regulations may provide for liability to CIL to arise in respect of a development where the development was exempt from CIL, or subject to a reduced rate of CIL charge²², and the description or purpose of the development changes²³.

1 As to CIL generally see PARA 236A.1.

2 In accordance with provision made by a charging authority under and by virtue of the Planning Act 2008 s 206 (see PARA 236A.2) and CIL regulations: s 208(1). As to the meaning of 'CIL regulations' see PARA 236A.1.

3 For the purposes of the Planning Act 2008 s 208, 'development' means (1) anything done by way of or for the purpose of the creation of a new building; or (2) anything done to or in respect of an existing building: s 209(1). CIL regulations may provide for (a) works or changes in use of a specified kind not to be treated as development; (b) the creation of, or anything done to or in respect of, a structure of a specified kind to be treated as development: s 209(2). As to the meaning of 'development' generally see s 32; and PARA 217 (definitions applied by s 235(1)).

- 5 Planning Act 2008 s 208(2)(a). CIL regulations must include provision for determining when development is treated as commencing: s 209(3). Regulations under s 209(3) may, in particular, provide for development to be treated as commencing when some specified activity or event is undertaken or occurs, where the activity or event (1) is not development within the meaning of s 209(1); but (2) has a specified kind of connection with a development within the meaning of s 209(1): s 209(4).
- 6 Planning Act 2008 s 208(2)(b).
- 7 Planning Act 2008 s 208(3). CIL regulations must define planning permission (which may include planning permission within the meaning of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 and any other kind of permission or consent, however called, and whether general or specific): Planning Act 2008 s 209(5).
- 8 For these purposes, 'owner' of land means a person who owns an interest in the land: Planning Act 2008 s 209(7)(a). CIL regulations may make provision for a person to be or not to be treated as an owner of land in specified circumstances: s 209(8).
- 9 For these purposes, 'developer' means a person who is wholly or partly responsible for carrying out a development: Planning Act 2008 s 209(7)(b). CIL regulations may make provision for a person to be or not to be treated as a developer of land in specified circumstances: s 209(8).

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(i) Control by Requirement of Permission/A. IN GENERAL/6. Exemptions and reductions for charities

6. Exemptions and reductions for charities

CIL regulations¹ must provide for an exemption from liability to pay community infrastructure levy ('CIL')² in respect of a development³ where: (1) the person who would otherwise be liable to pay CIL in respect of the development is a relevant charity⁴ in England and Wales; and (2) the building or structure in respect of which CIL liability would otherwise arise is to be used wholly or mainly for a charitable purpose⁵ of the charity⁶. CIL regulations may: (a) provide for an exemption from liability to pay CIL where the person who would otherwise be liable to pay CIL in respect of the development is an institution established for a charitable purpose⁷; (b) require charging authorities⁸ to make arrangements for an exemption from, or reduction in, liability to pay CIL where the person who would otherwise be liable to pay CIL in respect of the development is an institution established for a charitable purpose⁹. Regulations under heads (1) and (2) or heads (a) and (b) above may, however, provide that an exemption or reduction does not apply if specified conditions are satisfied¹⁰.

1 As to the meaning of 'CIL regulations' see PARA 236A.1.

2 As to CIL see generally PARA 236A.1.

3 As to the meaning of 'development' see the Planning Act 2008 ss 32, 235(1); and PARA 217. See also, however, PARA 236A.5.

4 For the purposes of the Planning Act 2008 s 210(1), a relevant charity in England and Wales is an institution which (1) is registered in the register of charities kept by the Charity Commission under the Charities Act 1993 s 3; or (2) is a charity within the meaning of the Charities Act 2006 s 1(1) but is not required to be registered in the register kept under the Charities Act 1993 s 3: Planning Act 2008 s 210(4).

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(i) Control by Requirement of Permission/A. IN GENERAL/7. Amount of the charge and preparation of charging schedule

7. Amount of the charge and preparation of charging schedule

A charging authority¹ which proposes to charge community infrastructure levy ('CIL')² must issue a document (a 'charging schedule') setting rates, or other criteria, by reference to which the amount of CIL chargeable in respect of development³ in its area is to be determined⁴. A charging authority may consult, or take other steps, in connection with the preparation of a charging schedule, subject to CIL regulations⁵. In setting rates or other criteria, a charging authority must have regard, to the extent and in the manner specified by CIL regulations, to: (1) actual and expected costs of infrastructure⁶; (2) matters specified by CIL regulations relating to the economic viability of development, which may include, in particular, actual or potential economic effects of planning permission or of the imposition of CIL; (3) other actual and expected sources of funding for infrastructure⁷. CIL regulations may make other provision about setting rates or other criteria⁸ and may, in particular, permit or require charging authorities in setting rates or other criteria: (a) to have regard, to the extent and in the manner specified by the regulations, to actual or expected administrative expenses in connection with CIL⁹; (b) to have regard, to the extent and in the manner specified by the regulations, to values used or documents produced for other statutory purposes¹⁰; (c) to integrate the process, to the extent and in the manner specified by the regulations, with processes undertaken for other statutory purposes¹¹; (d) to produce charging schedules having effect in relation to specified periods, subject to revision¹². The regulations may permit or require charging schedules to adopt specified methods of calculation¹³. In particular, they may: (i) permit or require charging schedules to operate by reference to descriptions or purposes of development¹⁴; (ii) permit or require charging schedules to operate by reference to any measurement of the amount or nature of development, whether by reference to measurements of floor space, to numbers or intended uses of buildings¹⁵, to numbers or intended uses of units within buildings, to allocation of space within buildings or units, to values or expected values or in any other way¹⁶; (iii) permit or require charging schedules to operate by reference to the nature or existing use of the place where development is undertaken¹⁷; (iv) permit or require charging schedules to operate by reference to an index used for determining a rate of inflation¹⁸; (v) permit or require charging schedules to operate by reference to values used or documents produced for other statutory purposes¹⁹; (vi) provide, or permit or require provision, for differential rates, which may include provision for supplementary charges, a nil rate, increased rates or reductions²⁰. The regulations may require a charging authority to provide in specified circumstances an estimate of the amount of CIL chargeable in respect of development of land²¹.

Before approving a charging schedule¹ a charging authority² must appoint a person ('the examiner') to examine a draft³. The charging authority must appoint someone who, in the opinion of the authority, is independent of the charging authority and has appropriate qualifications and experience⁴; and it may, with the agreement of the examiner, appoint persons to assist the examiner⁵. The draft submitted to the examiner must be accompanied by a declaration approved in the specified manner⁶: (1) that the charging authority has complied with the statutory requirements⁷; (2) that the charging authority has used appropriate available evidence to inform the draft charging schedule; and (3) dealing with any other matter prescribed by CIL regulations⁸. CIL regulations must require a charging authority to allow anyone who makes representations about a draft charging schedule to be heard by the examiner; and the regulations may make provision about timing and procedure⁹. The examiner must consider the matters listed in heads (1) to (3) above and recommend that the draft charging schedule be approved, rejected or approved with specified modifications¹⁰. He must give reasons for the recommendations¹¹ and the charging authority must publish the recommendations and reasons¹². CIL regulations may make provision for examiners to reconsider their decisions with a view to correcting errors, before or after the approval of a charging schedule¹³. The charging authority may withdraw a draft¹⁴.

12. Appeals

CIL regulations¹ must provide for a right of appeal on a question of fact in relation to the application of methods for calculating community infrastructure levy ('CIL')² to a person appointed by the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs³. The regulations must require that the person so appointed is either a valuation officer⁴ or a district valuer⁵. Regulations⁶ may, in particular, make provision about: (1) the period within which the right of appeal may be exercised⁷; (2) the procedure on an appeal⁸; and (3) the payment of fees, and award of costs, in relation to an appeal⁹. In any proceedings for judicial review of a decision on an appeal, the defendant must be the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs and not the person appointed as mentioned above¹⁰.

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(i) Control by Requirement of Permission/A. IN GENERAL/13. Collection of community infrastructure levy

13. Collection of community infrastructure levy

CIL regulations¹ must include provision about the collection of community infrastructure levy ('CIL')². The regulations may make provision for payment: (1) on account³; (2) by instalments⁴, and may make provision about repayment, with or without interest, in cases of overpayment⁵. The regulations may: (a) make provision about payment in forms other than money, such as making land available, carrying out works or providing services⁶; (b) permit or require a charging authority⁷ or other public authority to collect CIL charged by another authority⁸. Regulations under these provisions may replicate or apply, with or without modifications, any enactment relating to the collection of a tax⁹. They may also make provision about the source of payments in respect of Crown interests¹⁰.

14. Regulations about enforcement of community infrastructure levy

CIL regulations¹ must include provision about enforcement of community infrastructure levy ('CIL')². The regulations must make provision about the consequences of late payment and failure to pay³ and may make provision about the consequences of failure to assume liability⁴, to give a notice or to comply with another procedure under CIL regulations in connection with CIL⁵. In particular, the regulations may include provision: (1) for the payment of interest⁶; (2) for the imposition of a penalty or surcharge⁷; (3) for the suspension or cancellation of a decision relating to planning permission⁸; (4) enabling an authority to prohibit development⁹ pending assumption of liability for CIL or pending payment of CIL¹⁰; (5) conferring a power of entry onto land¹¹; (6) requiring the provision of information¹²; (7) creating a criminal offence, including, in particular, offences relating to evasion or attempted evasion or to the provision of false or misleading information or failure to provide information, and offences relating to the prevention or investigation of other offences created by the regulations¹³; (8) conferring power to prosecute an offence¹⁴; (9) for enforcement of sums owed, whether by action on a debt, by distraint against goods or in any other way¹⁵; (10) conferring jurisdiction on a court to grant injunctive or other relief to enforce a provision¹⁶ of the regulations¹⁷; (11) for enforcement in the case of death or insolvency of a person liable for CIL¹⁸. CIL regulations may also include provision, whether or not in the context of late payment or failure to pay, about registration or notification of actual or potential liability to CIL¹⁹; and the regulations may include provision: (a) for the creation of local land charges²⁰; (b) for the registration of local land charges²¹; (c) for enforcement of local land charges, including, in particular, for enforcement against successive owners, and by way of sale or other disposal with consent of a court²²; (d) for making entries in statutory registers²³; (e) for the cancellation of charges and entries²⁴. Regulations under these provisions may replicate or apply, with or without modifications, any enactment relating to the enforcement of a tax²⁵ and may provide for appeals²⁶. They may also provide that any interest, penalty or surcharge payable by virtue of the regulations is to be treated²⁷ as if it were CIL²⁸.

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(i) Control by Requirement of Permission/A. IN GENERAL/15. Compensation with regard to enforcement action

15. Compensation with regard to enforcement action

CIL regulations¹ may require a charging authority² or other public authority to pay compensation in respect of loss or damage suffered as a result of enforcement action³. The regulations must not, however, require payment of compensation to a person who has failed to satisfy a liability to pay community infrastructure levy ('CIL')⁴ or in other circumstances specified by the regulations⁵. Regulations under these provisions may make provision about: (1) the time and manner in which a claim for compensation is to be made⁶; and (2) the sums, or the method of determining the sums, payable by way of compensation⁷. CIL regulations may permit or require a charging authority to apply CIL, either generally or subject to limits set by or determined in accordance with the regulations, for expenditure incurred under these provisions⁸. A dispute about compensation may be referred to and determined by the Upper Tribunal⁹.

1 As to the meaning of 'CIL regulations' see PARA 236A.1.

2 As to charging authorities see PARA 236A.2.

3 Planning Act 2008 s 219(1). For these purposes, 'enforcement action' means action taken under regulations under s 218 (see PARA 236A.14), including (1) the suspension or cancellation of a decision relating to planning permission; and (2) the prohibition of development pending assumption of liability for community infrastructure levy ('CIL') or pending payment of CIL: s 219(2). DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(i) Control by Requirement of Permission/A. IN GENERAL/237. Development not requiring planning permission.

237. Development not requiring planning permission.

Planning permission¹ is not required:

- 977 (1) where planning permission to develop² land³ has been granted for a limited period⁴, for the resumption, at the end of that period, of its use⁵ for the purpose for which it was normally used⁶ before the permission was granted⁷;
- 978 (2) where by a development order⁸ or local development order⁹ planning permission to develop land has been granted subject to limitations¹⁰, for the use of that land which, apart from its use in accordance with that permission, is its normal use¹¹;
- 979 (3) where an enforcement notice¹² has been issued in respect of any development of land, for the use of the land for the purpose for which it could lawfully¹³ have been used if that development had not been carried out¹⁴;
- 980 (4) where on 1 July 1948 land was being temporarily¹⁵ used for a purpose other than the purpose for which it was normally used, for the resumption of the use of the land for the latter purpose before 6 December 1968¹⁶;
- 981 (5) where on 1 July 1948 land was normally used for one purpose and was also used on occasions, whether at regular intervals or not, for another purpose, in respect of the use of the land for that other purpose on similar occasions on or after 6 December 1948 if the land has been used for that other purpose on at least one similar occasion since 1 July 1948 and before the beginning of 1968¹⁷;
- 982 (6) where land was unoccupied on 1 July 1948, but had before that date been occupied¹⁸ at some time on or after 7 January 1937, in respect of any use of the land begun before 6 December 1968 for the purpose for which the land was last used before 1 July 1948¹⁹.

- 6 In determining for these purposes and for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 57(3) (as amended) (see head (2) in the text) what is or was the normal use of land, no account is to be taken of any use begun in contravention of Pt III (ss 55-106B) (as amended) (see PARA 217 et seq ante, PARA 238 et seq post) or of previous planning control: s 57(5). A use of land is taken to have been begun in contravention of previous planning control if it was begun in contravention of the Town and Country Planning Act 1947 Pt III (ss 12-36) (repealed), the Town and Country Planning Act 1962 Pt III (ss 12-44) (repealed) or the Town and Country Planning Act 1971 Pt III (ss 22-53) (repealed): Town and Country Planning Act 1990 ss 57(6), 336(1). Notwithstanding anything in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 4 paras 1-3, the use of land as a caravan site is not treated, by virtue of Sch 4 paras 1-3, as a use for which planning permission is not required, unless the land was so used on one occasion at least during the period of two years ending with 9 March 1960: Sch 4 para 4. For these purposes, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'caravan site' has the meaning given in the Caravan Sites and Control of Development Act 1960 s 1(4) (see PARA 1032 note 4 post): Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1).
- 17 Ibid Sch 4 para 2. See also note 16 supra.
- 18 The former Minister of Housing and Local Government held that the corresponding provision in the Town and Country Planning Act 1947 (repealed) did not apply unless the use of the land had been so abandoned or so destroyed as to make it impossible to say that there was any use: Selected Appeals XI/23 (land unoccupied as a result of undertaking given to council). Cf note 19 infra.
- 19 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 4 para 3. See also note 16 supra. It seems that in such a case there is no development (Fyson v Buckinghamshire County Council [1958] 2 All ER 286n at 288n, [1958] 1 WLR 634, DC, per Donovan J), at least where no use in contravention of previous planning control intervened. Resumption of the use of the land which was unlawful is not permitted by this provision: Glamorgan County Council v Carter [1962] 3 All ER 866, [1963] 1 WLR 1, DC. Where the last use lasted only for short periods in each year, permission is not required to use the land for the same purpose for longer periods, at least where there is no other use: Washington UDC v Gray (1958) 10 P & CR 264, DC.

237 Development not requiring planning permission

NOTE 11--Day now appointed in relation to England for remaining purposes: SI 2006/1061.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/4. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(i) Control by Requirement of Permission/A. IN GENERAL/238. Deemed planning permission.

238. Deemed planning permission.

Where the authorisation of a government department¹ is required by virtue of an enactment in respect of development to be carried out by a local authority² or National Park authority³ or by statutory undertakers⁴ who are not a local authority or National Park authority, that department may, on granting that authorisation, direct that planning permission⁵ for that development shall be deemed to be granted, subject to such conditions, if any, as may be specified in the direction⁶.

On granting a consent under the Electricity Act 1989⁷ in respect of any operation or change of use⁸ that constitutes development, the Secretary of State⁹ may direct that planning permission for that development and any ancillary development¹⁰ shall be deemed to be granted, subject to such conditions, if any, as may be specified in the direction¹¹.

On making an order under the Transport and Works Act 1992¹² which includes provision for development, the Secretary of State or, where the order has effect solely in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales¹³ may direct that planning permission for that development shall be deemed to be granted, subject to such conditions, if any, as may be specified in the direction¹⁴.

Permission is also deemed to be granted¹⁵:

- 983 (1) where the display of advertisements in accordance with regulations for the control of advertisements involves development¹⁶;
- 984 (2) for the carrying out of specified development in connection with the construction of the Channel Tunnel¹⁷ and the Channel Tunnel Rail Link¹⁸ or the Cardiff Bay Barrage¹⁹;
- 985 (3) where certain requirements of an enforcement notice have been complied with²⁰.

1 For these purposes, development is authorised by a government department if (1) any consent, authority or approval to or for the development is granted by the department in pursuance of an enactment; (2) a compulsory purchase order is confirmed by the department authorising the purchase of land for the purpose of the development; (3) consent is granted by the department to the appropriation of land for the purpose of the development or the acquisition of land by agreement for that purpose; (4) authority is given by the department (a) for the borrowing of money for the purpose of the development; or (b) for the application for that purpose of any money not otherwise so applicable; or (5) any undertaking is given by the department to pay a grant in respect of the development in accordance with an enactment authorising the payment of such grants; and references to the authorisation of a government department are to be construed accordingly: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 90(4). For the meaning of 'government department' see PARA 3 note 5 ante; for the meaning of 'development' see PARA 217 ante; for the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 2 note 11 ante; and for the meaning of 'land' see PARA 2 note 10 ante. In Wales, the functions of Ministers of the Crown under s 90(1) (as amended) other than the Secretary of State for Wales are not transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1 (as amended).

The provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 except Pt XII (ss 284-292) (as amended) (see PARA 43 et seq ante, PARA 648 post) apply in relation to any planning permission deemed to be granted by virtue of a direction under s 90 (as amended) as if it had been granted by the Secretary of State or the National Assembly for Wales on an application referred to him or to it under s 77 (as amended) (see PARA 483 post): s 90(3) (amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 31, Sch 6 paras 8, 12; modified by virtue of the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1). 10 For these purposes, 'ancillary development', in relation to development consisting of the extension of a generating station, does not include any development which is not directly related to the generation of electricity by that station; and 'extension' and 'generating station' have the same meanings as in the Electricity Act 1989 Pt I (ss 3A-64) (as amended): Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 90(5).

B. CROWN LAND

239. In general.

At the date at which this title states the law, and notwithstanding any interest of the Crown in Crown land¹, any restrictions or powers imposed or conferred by the statutory provisions relating to control of development² apply and are exercisable³ in relation to Crown land to the extent of any interest⁴ in it for the time being held otherwise than by or on behalf of the Crown⁵.

As from a day to be appointed⁶, however, the provisions set out above are repealed by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004⁷. Subject to express provision made by Part XIII of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990⁸, the normal requirements for planning permission are to bind the Crown⁹.

1 For the meaning of 'Crown land' see PARA 11 note 1 ante.

2 Ie imposed or conferred by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt III (ss 55-106B) (as amended): see PARA 217 et seq ante, PARA 244 et seq post.

3 Ie subject to ibid s 296(1)(a) (as substituted; prospectively repealed): see PARA 11 ante at head (a) in the text.

4 A person who is entitled to occupy Crown land by virtue of a licence in writing is treated for the purposes of ibid s 296(1)(c) (as amended; prospectively repealed) so far as applicable to Pt III (ss 55-106B) (as amended) as having an interest in land: s 293(4).

5 See ibid s 296(1)(c) (as amended; prospectively repealed); and PARA 11 ante at head (c) in the text. Although, at the date at which this title states the law, the Crown does not in any event require planning permission for development (see Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food v Jenkins [1963] 2 QB 317, [1963] 2 All ER 147, CA; Lord Advocate v Dumbarton District Council [1990] 2 AC 580, [1990] 1 All ER 1, HL), government departments in general consult with local planning authorities before carrying out development which would otherwise require planning permission.

6 Ie as from a day to be appointed under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 121. At the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed.

7 See the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 ss 84(1), 120, Sch 9. At the date at which this title states the law, those repeals were not in force.

8 Ie made by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt XIII (ss 292A-302) (as amended): see PARAS 11, 14 et seq ante, PARAS 455, 555, 899-901, 922 post.

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(i) Control by Requirement of Permission/B. CROWN LAND/240. Requirement of planning permission for continuation of use instituted by the Crown.

240. Requirement of planning permission for continuation of use instituted by the Crown.

At the date at which this title states the law, a local planning authority¹ in whose area any Crown land² is situated may agree with the appropriate authority³ that the following provisions⁴ are to apply to such use of land by the Crown⁵ as is specified in the agreement, being a use resulting from a material change made or proposed to be made by the Crown in the use of the land⁶.

Where an agreement is so made in respect of any Crown land, then, if at any time the land ceases to be used by the Crown for the purposes specified in the agreement, the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 has effect in relation to any subsequent private use⁷ of the land as if:

- 986 (1) the specified use by the Crown had required planning permission⁸; and
- 987 (2) that use had been authorised by planning permission granted subject to a condition⁹ requiring its discontinuance at that time¹⁰.

As from a day to be appointed¹¹, however, the provisions set out above are repealed by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004¹², subject to transitional arrangements¹³. Subject to express provision made by Part XIII of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹⁴, the normal requirements for planning permission are to bind the Crown¹⁵.

3 For the meaning of 'the appropriate authority' see PARA 11 note 20 ante.

4 I.e. the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 301(2): see the text and notes 7-10 infra.

5 For these purposes, references to the use of land by the Crown include references to its use on behalf of the Crown: ibid s 301(5). For the meaning of 'use' see PARA 221 note 4 ante.

6 Ibid s 301(1). An agreement so made by a local planning authority is a local land charge; and for the purposes of the Local Land Charges Act 1975 (see LAND CHARGES), the local planning authority by which such an agreement is made is treated as the originating authority as respects the charge constituted by the agreement: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 301(4).

7 For these purposes, 'private use' means use otherwise than by or on behalf of the Crown: ibid s 301(5).

8 For the meaning of 'planning permission' see PARA 43 note 6 ante.

9 Such a condition is not enforceable against any person who had a private interest in the land at the time when the agreement was made unless the local planning authority by which the agreement was made has notified him of the making of the agreement and of the effect of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 301(2): s 301(3). For the meaning of 'private interest' see PARA 11 note 19 ante.

10 Ibid s 301(2).

11 It is as from a day to be appointed under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 121. At the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed.

12 See the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 ss 79(4), 120, Sch 3 para 27(1), Sch 9. At the date at which this title states the law, those repeals were not in force.

13 The repeal of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 301 does not affect its operation in relation to an agreement made as mentioned in s 301(1) before the commencement of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 Sch 3 para 27: Sch 3 para 27(2).

14 It is made by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt XIII (ss 292A-302) (as amended): see PARAS 11, 14 et seq ante, PARAS 455, 555, 899-901, 922 post.

A. PLANNING CONTRIBUTION

241. Introduction.

Under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004, new provision is made for the procedures under which developers may make a planning contribution¹. Once the relevant regulations are in place, the existing provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 regarding planning obligations² are to be repealed³. Negotiated planning obligations will not, however, disappear as provision may be made for them in regulations to be made under the 2004 Act⁴.

In the Barker Review Report (Delivering stability--securing our future housing needs (HM Treasury, 2004)) Ch 3, the reforms made by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 are described as 'second best, leaving open the possibility of prolonged and costly section 106 negotiations for large developments' and alternative proposals are put forward coupled with a proposed new planning gain supplement described in Ch 4 (see recommendation 24). For the government response to these proposals see HL Debates vol 659 cols 912-915 (25 March 2004).

241 Introduction

NOTE 4--The Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs, the Secretary of State and a Northern Ireland Department may incur expenditure for the purpose of, or in connection with, preparing for the imposition of a tax on the increase in the value of land resulting from the grant of permission for development: Planning-gain Supplement (Preparations) Act 2007 s 1(1), (2). Expenditure by virtue of the Commissioners or the Secretary of State must be paid out of money provided by Parliament: s 1(3).

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(ii) Control by Agreement/A. PLANNING CONTRIBUTION/242. Power to make regulations.

242. Power to make regulations.

Partly as from a day to be appointed¹, the Secretary of State² may, by regulations³, make provision for the making of a planning contribution in relation to the development⁴ or use⁵ of land⁶ in the area of a local planning authority⁷ in England⁸. The National Assembly for Wales⁹ may, as from a day to be appointed¹⁰, make the like provision in relation to land in Wales¹¹. The contribution may be made:

- 988 (1) by the prescribed means¹²;
- 989 (2) by compliance with the relevant requirements¹³; or
- 990 (3) by a combination of such means and compliance¹⁴.

The regulations may require the local planning authority to include in a development plan document¹⁵ in relation to England, or a local development plan¹⁶ in relation to Wales¹⁷, or in such other document as is prescribed¹⁸:

- 991 (a) a statement of the developments or uses or descriptions of development or use in relation to which the authority will consider accepting a planning contribution;
- 992 (b) a statement of the matters relating to development or use in relation to which it will not consider accepting a contribution by the prescribed means;
- 993 (c) the purposes to which receipts from payments made in respect of contributions are, in whole or in part, to be put;
- 994 (d) the criteria by reference to which the value of a contribution made by the prescribed means is to be determined¹⁹.

The regulations may make provision as to circumstances in which:

- 995 (i) except in the case of a contribution to which head (b) above applies, the person making the contribution ('the contributor') must state the form in which he will make the contribution;
- 996 (ii) the contribution may not be made by compliance with the relevant requirements if it is made by the prescribed means;
- 997 (iii) the contribution may not be made by the prescribed means if it is made by compliance with the relevant requirements;

998 (iv) a contribution must not be made²⁰.

They may also:

- 999 (A) require the local planning authority to apply receipts from planning contributions made by the prescribed means only to purposes mentioned in head (c) above²¹;
- 1000 (B) make provision for setting out in writing the terms of the planning contribution²²;
- 1001 (C) make provision in relation to the modification or discharge of a planning contribution²³;
- 1002 (D) make different provision in relation to the areas of different local planning authorities or different descriptions of local planning authority²⁴;
- 1003 (E) exclude their application, in whole or in part, in relation to the area of one or more local planning authorities or descriptions of local planning authority²⁵.

At the date at which this title states the law, ss 46-48 (see the text and notes 2-25 infra; and PARA 243 post) had been brought into force for the purpose of making, or making provision by means of, subordinate legislation (see the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 (Commencement No 1) Order 2004, SI 2004/2097, art 2; and PARA 4 ante) but no regulations had been made thereunder.

Maximum and minimum amounts may be prescribed in relation to a payment falling within s 46(5)(a) (see head (1) supra): s 47(1), (2). For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 5 ante.

The local planning authority⁴ may be required to publish an annual report containing such information in relation to the planning contribution as is prescribed⁵.

Provision may be made for the enforcement by the local planning authority of the terms of a planning contribution including provision:

- 1004 (1) for a person obstructing the taking of such steps as are prescribed to be guilty of an offence punishable by a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale⁶;
- 1005 (2) for a person deriving title to the land⁷ from the contributor⁸ to be bound by the terms of the contribution;
- 1006 (3) for a condition to be attached to any planning permission⁹ relating to the land requiring the contribution to be made before any development¹⁰ is started;

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(ii) Control by Agreement/B. PLANNING OBLIGATIONS/(A) In general/244. Planning obligations.

B. PLANNING OBLIGATIONS

(A) IN GENERAL

244. Planning obligations.

Any person interested in land¹ in the area of a local planning authority² may, by agreement or otherwise, enter into an obligation ('a planning obligation') enforceable to the extent provided³:

- 1008 (1) restricting the development⁴ or use⁵ of the land in any specified⁶ way;
- 1009 (2) requiring specified operations or activities to be carried out in, on, under or over the land;
- 1010 (3) requiring the land to be used in any specified way; or
- 1011 (4) requiring a sum or sums to be paid to the authority on a specified date or dates or periodically⁷.

A planning obligation may:

- 1012 (a) be unconditional or subject to limitations;
- 1013 (b) impose any restriction or requirement mentioned in heads (1) to (3) above either indefinitely or for such period or periods as may be specified; and
- 1014 (c) if it requires a sum or sums to be paid, require the payment of a specified amount or an amount determined in accordance with the instrument by which the obligation is entered into and, if it requires the payment of periodical sums, require them to be paid indefinitely or for a specified period⁸.

A planning obligation may not be entered into except by an instrument executed as a deed which:

- 1015 (i) states that the obligation is a planning obligation for these purposes;

- 1016 (ii) identifies the land in which the person entering into the obligation is interested;
- 1017 (iii) identifies the person entering into the obligation and states what his interest in the land is; and
- 1018 (iv) identifies the local planning authority by which the obligation is enforceable⁹.

A copy of any such instrument must be given to the authority so identified¹⁰.

Regulations may provide for the charging on the land of:

- 1019 (A) any sum or sums required to be paid under a planning obligation; and
- 1020 (B) any expenses recoverable by a local planning authority¹¹.

A planning obligation is a local land charge¹².

Where a developer offers to enter into a planning obligation which has more than a minimal connection with the proposed development, that may be a material consideration to which the local planning authority is entitled to have regard in deciding whether or not to grant planning permission¹³ in accordance with its established policy¹⁴. The use of a decision not to take enforcement action, combined with a planning obligation as a means of permitting a development to proceed, is not unlawful but cannot avoid the requirement to provide an environmental impact assessment if such an assessment is required; however there is no need to carry out a new consultation process and assessment on such a decision, if one has already been carried out¹⁵.

The statutory provisions set out above are prospectively repealed by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004¹⁶ but it is anticipated that similar arrangements are to be put in place in the regulations about planning contribution to be made under the 2004 Act¹⁷.

1 For these purposes, 'land' has the same meaning as in the Local Land Charges Act 1975 (see LAND CHARGES vol 26 (2004 Reissue) PARA 672 note 2): Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106(13) (s 106 substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 12(1)). 'Person interested in land' includes any person who has an enforceable interest as against the owner to use the land: Pennine Raceway Ltd v Kirklees Metropolitan Borough Council [1983] QB 382, [1982] 3 All ER 628, CA (contractual licence). As to a licensee of Crown land see PARA 239 note 4 ante.

2 As to local planning authorities see PARA 28 et seq ante. See also note 9 infra.

3 ie enforceable to the extent mentioned in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106(3) (as substituted): see PARA 245 post.

4 For the meaning of 'development' see PARA 217 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'use' see PARA 221 note 4 ante.

6 For these purposes, 'specified' means specified in the instrument by which the planning obligation is entered into: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106(13) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). The question whether any such agreement is within the statutory powers depends solely on whether it is entered into for the purpose of restricting or regulating the development or use of the land: JA Pye (Oxford) Ltd v South Gloucestershire District Council [2001] EWCA Civ 450, (2001) 81 P & CR 448, [2001] All ER (D) 343 (Mar) (decided under previous legislation).

7 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106(1) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). See R v South Northamptonshire District Council, ex p Crest Homes plc (1994) 93 LGR 205, [1994] 3 PLR 47, CA (council entitled to ask developer for costs where residential development made additional infrastructure necessary). As to unilateral undertakings see South Oxfordshire District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment (1994) 68 P & CR 551, [1994] 1 PLR 72 (unilateral undertaking to dispose of golf course and use income so generated for the repair of listed buildings over a 20-year period in accordance with a yearly schedule to be submitted to the local council was capable of constituting a planning obligation); R (on the application of Davey)

v Aylesbury Vale District Council [2005] EWHC 359 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 192 (Mar) (unilateral undertakings making provision for a travel plan regarding the application site and prohibiting the taking off or landing of helicopters there obviated any need to impose conditions to that effect when granting planning permission). The deposit of a sum of money with the authority under a planning obligation creates a form of trust: see Patel v Brent London Borough Council [2005] EWCA Civ 644, [2005] 31 EG 82, [2005] All ER (D) 384 (May). The existence of a planning obligation may give rise to a legitimate expectation that planning permission will be granted for development; but where the permission granted is an outline permission, there can be no legitimate expectation that the statutory time limit for approval of reserved matters will be extended or that the authority will view the proposed development in a favourable light in perpetuity: see Kebbell Development Ltd v First Secretary of State [2003] EWCA Civ 1855, [2003] All ER (D) 116 (Dec). For criticism of the system of requiring developers to pay an upfront contribution under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106 (as substituted) see the Barker Review Report (Delivering stability--securing our future housing needs (HM Treasury, 2004)) Ch 3 para 3.32; for a fuller discussion of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106 (as substituted) see PARA 3.42 et seq; and for proposed reforms see recommendation 24.

Policy guidance issued to local authorities in England by the Secretary of State sets out the following broad principles with regard to planning obligations:

- 126 (1) the Secretary of State's policy requires planning obligations to be sought only where they meet all the following tests, ie that a planning obligation must be: (a) relevant to planning; (b) necessary to make the proposed development acceptable in planning terms; (c) directly related to the proposed development; (d) fairly and reasonably related in scale and kind to the proposed development; (e) reasonable in all other respects (ODPM Circular 05/2005 Planning Obligations Annex B para B5);
- 127 (2) the use of planning obligations must be governed by the fundamental principle that planning permission may not be bought or sold; it is therefore not legitimate for unacceptable development to be permitted because of benefits or inducements offered by a developer which are not necessary to make the development acceptable in planning terms (Annex B para B6);
- 128 (3) similarly, planning obligations should never be used purely as a means of securing for the local community a share in the profits of development, ie as a means of securing a 'betterment levy' (Annex B para B7).

In Wales, national policy guidance is based on Welsh Office Circular 13/97 Planning Obligations: see Planning Policy Wales (National Assembly for Wales, 2002) PARAS 4.7.1-4.7.5.

As to planning conditions see PARAS 522-523 et seq post; and as to the status of policy guidance in England and Wales see PARA 9 ante.

As to agreements regulating the development of land before 25 October 1991 see the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106 (as originally enacted); the Local Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1982 s 33 (as originally enacted). The amendment of s 33 by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 32, Sch 7 para 6 has confined its scope to non-planning contexts. See also the Town and Country Planning Act 1971 s 52 (repealed). As to agreements under previous legislation see the Town and Country Planning Act 1971 s 292(1), Sch 24 para 88 (repealed). Without prejudice to the generality of the Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990 ss 3-5, Sch 3 paras 1, 2, notwithstanding the repeal by that Act of the Town and Country Planning Act 1971 s 292(1), Sch 24 (as amended), the provisions of Sch 24 (as amended) continue to have effect, in so far as they are not specifically reproduced in the Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990 Sch 3 (as amended) and remain capable of having effect, with any reference in those provisions to any provisions of the repealed enactments which is reproduced in the consolidating Acts being taken, so far as the context otherwise permits, as including a reference to the corresponding provision of those Acts: Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990 Sch 3 para 3. For the meaning of 'the repealed enactments' and 'the consolidating Acts' see PARA 2 note 5 ante.

8 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106(2) (as substituted: see note 1 supra).

9 Ibid s 106(9) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). As to the formalities of execution of a deed see DEEDS AND OTHER INSTRUMENTS vol 13 (2007 Reissue) PARA 27 et seq. Any rule of law which required a seal for the valid execution of an instrument as a deed by an individual has, except in relation to a corporation sole, been abolished: see the Law of Property (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1989 s 1(1)(b), (10); and DEEDS AND OTHER INSTRUMENTS vol 13 (2007 Reissue) PARA 7. Where a planning obligation lays down conditions under which one party could be compelled to dispose of his land, the requirements of the Law of Property (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1989 s 2 (as amended) (see SALE OF LAND vol 42 (Reissue) PARA 29 et seq) have to be complied with: see Jelson Ltd v Derby County Council [1999] 39 EG 149, [1999] All ER (D) 601 cited in PARA 245 note 6 post.

In construing a planning obligation, the normal rules as to the exclusion of evidence about prior negotiations and the subjective intentions of the parties apply, and such evidence relating to a separate agreement between the parties which has not been concluded is similarly inadmissible: see Stroude v Beazer Homes Ltd [2005]

In relation to land in England or Wales in the area of a joint planning board, a person entering into a planning obligation under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106 (as substituted) may identify the council of the county in England or the county or county borough in Wales in which the land is situated as the authority by which the obligation is enforceable: s 1(5)(c),(6), Sch 1 para 20(3), Sch 1A para 11 (s 1(6), Sch 1A para 11 added by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 s 18, Sch 4; the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 1(5)(c), (6) amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(3), Sch 24; the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 1 para 20(3) substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 Sch 7 paras 8, 53(9)). The Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 1 para 20(3) (as so substituted) does not, however, apply in Greater London: Sch 1 para 21(1). For the meaning of 'joint planning board' see PARA 30 ante; and as to Greater London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 29. As to councils of counties see PARA 28 ante.

11 Ibid s 106(12) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). At the date at which this title states the law, no such regulations had been made. As to the making of regulations generally see PARA 3 ante.

12 Ibid s 106(11) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). For the purposes of the Local Land Charges Act 1975 (see LAND CHARGES), the authority by which the obligation is enforceable is treated as the originating authority as respects such a charge: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106(11) (as so substituted). Agreements under previous legislation (see note 7 supra) were, by contrast, imposed on the land in question as restrictive covenants.

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(ii) Control by Agreement/B. PLANNING OBLIGATIONS/(A) In general/245. Enforceability of planning obligations.

245. Enforceability of planning obligations.

A planning obligation¹ is enforceable² by the authority identified³ as the authority by which the obligation is enforceable against the person entering into the obligation⁴ and against any person deriving title from that person⁵. The instrument by which a planning obligation is entered into may, however, provide that a person shall not be bound by the obligation in respect of any period during which he no longer has an interest in the land⁶.

A restriction or requirement imposed under a planning obligation is enforceable by injunction⁷. If, however, there is a breach of a requirement in a planning obligation to carry out any operations in, on, under or over the land to which the obligation relates, the authority by which the obligation is enforceable may⁸:

- 1021 (1) enter the land and carry out the operations; and
- 1022 (2) recover from the person or persons against whom the obligation is enforceable any expenses reasonably incurred by it in doing so⁹.

Before an authority so exercises its power of entry under head (1) above, it must give not less than 21 days' notice of its intention to do so to any person against whom the planning obligation is enforceable¹⁰.

Any person who wilfully obstructs a person acting in the exercise of a power of entry under head (1) above is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹¹.

The provisions set out above are prospectively repealed by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004¹² but it is anticipated that similar arrangements are to be put in place in the regulations about planning contribution to be made under the 2004 Act¹³.

For these purposes, references (1) to a person from whom title is derived by another person include references to any predecessor in title of that person; (2) to a person deriving title from another person include references to any successor in title of that other person; (3) to deriving title are references to deriving title either directly or indirectly: s 336(8).

6 Ibid s 106(4) (as substituted: see note 4 supra). For the meaning of 'land' for these purposes see PARA 244 note 1 ante. In relation to land which for the time being is Crown land, a planning obligation may not be enforced by injunction without the consent of the appropriate authority: s 296(2)(aa)(i) (s 296(2)(aa) added by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 12(2)). DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(ii) Control by Agreement/B. PLANNING OBLIGATIONS/(B) Modification and Discharge/246. In general.

(B) MODIFICATION AND DISCHARGE

246. In general.

A planning obligation¹ may not be modified or discharged except:

- 1023 (1) by agreement between the authority by which the obligation is enforceable and the person or persons against whom the obligation is enforceable; or
- 1024 (2) in accordance with the following provisions and with the statutory provisions² providing for appeals³; and an agreement falling within head (1) above may not be entered into except by an instrument executed as a deed⁴.

A person against whom a planning obligation is enforceable may, at any time after the expiry of the relevant period⁵, apply to the local planning authority⁶ by which the obligation is enforceable for the obligation:

- 1025 (a) to have effect subject to such modifications as may be specified in the application; or
- 1026 (b) to be discharged⁷.

Any such application for the modification of a planning obligation may not specify a modification imposing an obligation on any other person against whom the obligation is enforceable⁸.

The provisions set out above are prospectively repealed by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004⁹ but it is anticipated that similar arrangements are to be put in place in the regulations about planning contribution to be made under the 2004 Act¹⁰.

1 For the meaning of 'planning obligation' see PARA 244 ante.

2 Ie the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106B (as substituted): see PARA 616 post.

3 Ibid s 106A(1) (s 106A substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 12(1)). The Law of Property Act 1925 s 84 (as amended) (power to discharge or modify restrictive covenants affecting land: see EQUITY vol 16(2) (Reissue) PARA 630 et seq) does not apply to a planning obligation: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106A(10) (as so substituted). This is in contrast to the position regarding agreements under previous legislation (ie agreements under the Town and Country Planning Act 1947 s 25 (repealed) or the Town and Country Planning Act 1962 s 37 (repealed), 'section 52 agreements' under the Town and Country Planning Act 1971 s 52 (repealed) or 'section 106 agreements' under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106 (as originally enacted)); the burden of such an agreement runs with the land as a restrictive covenant (see eg s 106(3) (as originally enacted)) and where extant can only be discharged or modified on application to the Lands Tribunal under the Law of Property Act 1925 s 84 (as amended).

It is not open to developers to seek the discharge of a planning obligation otherwise than under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106A (as substituted) under the guise of a claim that the authority has repudiated the agreement: see Patel v Brent London Borough Council [2005] EWCA Civ 664, [2005] 31 EG 82, [2005] All ER (D) 384 (May).

4 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106A(2) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). As to the formalities of the execution of a deed see DEEDS AND OTHER INSTRUMENTS vol 13 (2007 Reissue) PARA 27 et seq. Any rule of law which required a seal for the valid execution of an instrument as a deed by an individual has, except in relation to a corporation sole, been abolished: see the Law of Property (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1989 s 1(1)(b), (10); and DEEDS AND OTHER INSTRUMENTS vol 13 (2007 Reissue) PARA 7.

5 For these purposes, 'the relevant period' means (1) such period as may be prescribed; or (2) if no period is prescribed, the period of five years beginning with the date on which the obligation is entered into: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106A(4) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 16 note 5 ante. As to the power to make regulations for these purposes see note 7 infra. At the date at which this title states the law, no regulations had been made prescribing a period for these purposes.

6 As to local planning authorities see PARA 28 et seq ante.

7 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106A(3) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). Regulations may make provision with respect to: (1) the form and content of applications for modification or discharge; (2) the publication of notices of such applications; and (3) the procedures for considering any representations made with respect to such applications: s 106A(9)(a)-(c) (as so substituted). As to the exercise of this power see the Town and Country Planning (Modification and Discharge of Planning Obligations) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/2832; and PARA 247 et seq post. As to the making of regulations generally see PARA 3 ante.

247. Method of application.

An application for the modification or discharge of a planning obligation¹ must be made on a form provided by the local planning authority², which must require the following information:

- 1027 (1) the name and address of the applicant;
- 1028 (2) the address or location of the land³ to which the application relates and the nature of the applicant's interest in that land;
- 1029 (3) sufficient information to enable the authority to identify the planning obligation which the applicant wishes to have modified or discharged;
- 1030 (4) the applicant's reasons for applying for the modification or discharge of that obligation; and
- 1031 (5) such other information as the authority considers necessary to enable it to determine the application⁴.

The application must include the information required by the application form, a map identifying the land to which the obligation relates and such other information as the applicant considers relevant to the determination of the application⁵.

1 le an application under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 106A (as substituted) (see PARA 246 ante) made in respect of the modification or discharge of a planning obligation entered into under s 106 (as substituted) (see PARA 244 ante) or s 299A (as added and prospectively repealed) (see PARA 251 post): Town and Country Planning (Modification and Discharge of Planning Obligations) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/2832, reg 2. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(ii) Control by Agreement/B. PLANNING OBLIGATIONS/(B) Modification and Discharge/248. Notices of and publicity for applications.

248. Notices of and publicity for applications.

An applicant for the modification or discharge of a planning obligation¹ must give notice in the prescribed form² of the application to any person other than the applicant against whom, on the day 21 days before the date of the application, the planning obligation is enforceable and whose name and address is known to the applicant³. In order to comply with this requirement, the applicant must take reasonable steps to ascertain the name and address of every such person⁴. Where the names and addresses of all such persons are not known to the applicant after he has taken reasonable steps to ascertain that information, he must, during the 21 day period immediately preceding the application, publish notice of the application in a local newspaper circulating in the locality of the land⁵ to which the application relates⁶.

The notice required to be so served or published must invite representations on the application to be made to the local planning authority within 21 days of the date on which the notice is served or published, as the case may be⁷.

An application for the modification or discharge of a planning obligation must be accompanied by a certificate in the appropriate form⁸ certifying that the above requirements have been satisfied⁹.

When a local planning authority¹⁰ receives an application for the modification or discharge of a planning obligation it must publicise the application by:

- 1032 (1) posting notice of the application on or near the land to which the planning obligation relates for not less than 21 days; or
- 1033 (2) serving notice of the application on the owners¹¹ and occupiers of land adjoining that land; or 1034 (3) publishing notice of the application in a local newspaper circulating in the locality in which that land is situated¹².

The notice posted, served, or published in accordance with heads (1) to (3) above must be in the prescribed form¹³ and must invite representations on the application to be made to the local planning authority within 21 days of the date on which the notice is posted or served, or within 14 days of the date on which the notice is published, as the case may be¹⁴. The local planning authority must make a copy of the application and the relevant part of the instrument by which the planning obligation was entered into available for inspection during the period so allowed for making representations¹⁵.

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(ii) Control by Agreement/B. PLANNING OBLIGATIONS/(B) Modification and Discharge/249. Determination of application.

249. Determination of application.

A local planning authority¹ must not determine an application for the modification or discharge of a planning obligation² before the expiry of the period or periods provided³ for making representations⁴. Where an application is made to an authority for a planning obligation to have effect subject to such modifications as may be specified in the application or for the obligation to be discharged, the authority may determine:

- 1035 (1) that the planning obligation shall continue to have effect without modification;
- 1036 (2) if the obligation no longer serves a useful purpose, that it shall be discharged; or
- 1037 (3) if the obligation continues to serve a useful purpose, but would serve that purpose equally well if it had effect subject to the modifications specified in the application, that it shall have effect subject to those modifications⁵.

The authority must give written notice of its determination to the applicant within the period of eight weeks from the date on which the application is received or, except where the applicant has already given notice of appeal to the Secretary of State⁶ or, in relation to Wales, to the National Assembly for Wales⁷, within such extended period as may be agreed upon in writing by the applicant and the authority⁸. When a local planning authority determines that a planning obligation shall continue to have effect without modification, the notice of that decision must state, clearly and precisely, the authority's full reasons for its decision and must include a statement to the effect that the applicant may appeal to the Secretary of State or to the Assembly against the decision within six months of the date of the notice or within such longer period as the Secretary of State or the Assembly may, at any time, allow⁹.

Where an authority determines that a planning obligation shall have effect subject to modifications specified in the application, the obligation as modified is enforceable as if it had been entered into on the date on which the notice of the determination was given to the applicant¹⁰.

The provisions set out above are prospectively repealed by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004¹¹ but it is anticipated that similar arrangements are to be put in place in the regulations to be made under the 2004 Act¹².

C. CROWN LAND

250. Agreements relating to Crown land; arrangements before amendment by the 2004 Act.

At the date at which this title states the law, the appropriate authority¹ and the local planning authority² for the area in which any Crown land³ is situated may make agreements for securing the use⁴ of the land, so far as may be prescribed by any such agreement, in conformity with the provisions of the development plan⁵ applicable to it⁶.

Any such agreement may contain such consequential provisions, including provisions of a financial character, as may appear to be necessary or expedient having regard to the purposes of the agreement⁷; but an agreement so made by a government department⁸ does not have effect unless it is approved by the Treasury⁹.

In considering whether to make or approve such an agreement relating to:

- 1038 (1) land belonging to a government department; or
- 1039 (2) land held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department, the department and the Treasury must have regard to the purposes for which the land is held by or for the department¹⁰.

As from a day to be appointed¹¹, however, the provisions set out above are repealed by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004¹². Prospective provision is made for applications for planning permission by the Crown¹³. These are to be subject to transitional arrangements¹⁴.

250 Agreements relating to Crown land; arrangements before amendment by the 2004 Act

TEXT AND NOTES 11, 12--Day now appointed and repeals in force: SI 2006/1281.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/4. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(3) METHODS OF CONTROL/(ii) Control by Agreement/C. CROWN LAND/251. Crown planning obligations; arrangements before amendment by the 2004 Act.

251. Crown planning obligations; arrangements before amendment by the 2004 Act.

At the date at which this title states the law, the appropriate authority¹ in relation to any Crown interest² or Duchy interest³ in land⁴ in the area of a local planning authority⁵ may enter into a planning obligation⁶ enforceable to the specified⁷ extent⁸.

A planning obligation may not, however, be so entered into except by an instrument executed as a deed which:

- 1040 (1) states that the obligation is a planning obligation for these purposes;
- 1041 (2) identifies the land in relation to which the obligation is entered into;

- 1042 (3) identifies the appropriate authority which is entering into the obligation and states what the Crown or Duchy interest in the land is; and 1043 (4) identifies the local planning authority by which the obligation is enforceable⁹.

A planning obligation so entered into is enforceable:

- 1044 (a) against any person with a private interest¹⁰ deriving from the Crown or Duchy interest stated in accordance with head (3) above;
 1045 (b) by the authority identified in accordance with head (4) above¹¹.

The consent of the appropriate authority must be obtained to:

- 1046 (i) the enforcement by injunction of a planning obligation against a person in respect of land which is Crown land; and 1047 (ii) the exercise, in relation to Crown land, of the power¹² to enter land¹³.

As from a day to be appointed¹⁴, however, the provisions set out above are repealed by the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004¹⁵. Further, the existing statutory provisions with regard to planning obligations generally¹⁶ are prospectively repealed and replaced with new powers to make regulations about planning contribution under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004¹⁷.

251 Crown planning obligations; arrangements before amendment by the 2004 Act

TEXT AND NOTES 14, 15--Day now appointed and repeals in force: SI 2006/1281.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/4. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/A. IN GENERAL/252. Power to make development order.

(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER

(i) General and Special Development Orders

A. IN GENERAL

252. Power to make development order.

The Secretary of State¹ or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales² may by order (a 'development order') provide for the granting of planning permission³.

A development order may either:

- 1048 (1) itself grant planning permission for development⁴ specified in the order or for development of any class specified⁵; or
- 1049 (2) in respect of development for which planning permission is not granted by the order itself, provide for the granting of planning permission by the local planning authority⁶, or in specified cases⁷ by the Secretary of State or the Assembly, on application to the authority in accordance with the provisions of the order⁸.

A development order may be made either:

- 1050 (a) as a general order⁹ applicable, except so far as the order otherwise provides, to all land¹⁰; or
- 1051 (b) as a special order¹¹ applicable only to such land or descriptions of land as may be specified in the order¹².

For the purposes of enabling development to be carried out in accordance with planning permission, or otherwise for the purpose of promoting proper development in accordance with the development plan¹³, a development order may direct that any pre-1947 Act enactment¹⁴, or any regulations, orders or byelaws made at any time under any such enactment:

- 1052 (i) shall not apply to any development specified in the order; or
- 1053 (ii) shall apply to it subject to such modifications as may be so specified¹⁵.

A general development order may make different provision with respect to different descriptions of land¹⁶.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

2 As to the transfer of functions under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 ss 59, 61 (see the text and notes 3-16 infra), so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, to the Assembly see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1 (as amended); and as to the Assembly see PARA 20 ante.

3 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 59(1). For the meaning of 'planning permission' see PARA 43 note 6 ante. The power to make development orders is exercisable by statutory instrument subject, in the case of an order made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 333(4), (5)(b); and see PARA 20 the text and notes 5-9 ante. Without prejudice to s 333(5), where a development order makes provision for excluding or modifying any enactment contained in a public general Act (other than any of the enactments specified in Sch 17 (as amended) (provisions relating to highways)) the order does not have effect until that provision is approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament: see s 333(6); and PARA 3 ante. Without prejudice to the Interpretation Act 1978 s 14 (implied power to amend), the power conferred by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 59 to make an order includes power to vary or revoke any such order by a subsequent order: see s 333(7); and PARA 3 ante. As to the exercise of this power of revocation see eg the Town and Country Planning (Atomic Energy Establishments Special Development) (Revocation) Order 1996, SI 1996/3194.

7 Ie in the cases provided by the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 ss 60-106B (as amended): see PARA 254 et seq post.

8 Ibid s 59(2)(b).

9 Prior to the transfer of functions in Wales to the Assembly, the Secretary of State made (1) the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418 (now as amended) which came into force on 3 June 1995 (art 1(1)) and which applies to all land in England and Wales, except that (a) where land is the subject of a special development order, whether made before or after 3 June 1995, the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418 (as amended) applies to that land only to such extent and subject to such modifications as may be specified in the special development order (art 2(1)); and (b) nothing in that general development order applies to any permission which is deemed to be granted under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 222 (planning permission not needed for advertisements complying with regulations: see PARA 773 post) (Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 2(2)); (2) the Town and Country Planning (General Development Procedure) Order 1995, SI 1995/419 (now as amended) which also came into force on 3 June 1995 (art 1(1)) and which applies to the same extent as the general development order referred to in head (1) supra (see art 2). As to the exercise of this power by the Assembly see eg the Town and Country Planning (General Development Procedure) (Amendment) (Wales) Order 2002, SI 2002/1877, amending the general development order referred to in head (2) supra. The orders referred to in heads (1)-(2) supra have both been extensively amended; the amending instruments are cited in the notes to the relevant paragraphs of this title below.

10 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 59(3)(a). For the meaning of 'land' see PARA 2 note 10 ante.

11 At the date at which this title states the law, by virtue of the Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990 s 2 (see PARA 2 ante), the Town and Country Planning (New Towns) Special Development Order 1977, SI 1977/665 (as amended) has effect as if so made: see PARA 1360 et seq post. See also eg the Town and Country Planning (Telecommunications Networks) (Railway Operational Land) Special Development Order 1982, SI 1982/817 (as amended). As to special development orders relating to urban development corporations see PARA 1462 post. As to the exercise of the power to revoke a special development order see note 3 supra.

12 Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 59(3)(b).

13 For the meaning of 'development plan' see the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 s 38; and PARA 91 ante.

14 For these purposes, 'pre-1947 Act enactment' means (1) any enactment passed before 6 August 1947 (ie the date of the passing of the Town and Country Planning Act 1947 (repealed)); and (2) any enactment contained in the Highways Act 1980 (see generally HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES) which (a) is an enactment derived from the Highways Act 1959 (repealed); and (b) re-enacts, with or without modifications, any such enactment as is mentioned in head (1) supra: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 61(3).

UPDATE

252 Power to make development order

NOTE 5--The Secretary of State must carry out a review of the effect in England of development orders made by virtue of the 1990 Act s 59(2)(a): Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 s 10(1). The purpose of the review is to enable the Secretary of State to form a view as to what provision (or further provision) such development orders should make to facilitate development in England consisting of the installation, within the curtilage of a dwellinghouse, of equipment, apparatus or appliances for microgeneration (see FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 618 et seq): 2006 Act s 10(2). As soon as reasonably practicable after he has carried out the review, the Secretary of State must lay before Parliament a report of the review, including his view and the reasons for it: s 10(3). The report must also set out what provision (or further provision), if any, the Secretary of State proposes to make in development orders by virtue of the 1990 Act s 59(2)(a) in consequence of the review: 2006 Act s 10(4). Where the Secretary of State proposes to make provision (or further provision) in development orders in consequence of the review, he must (1) exercise his powers under the 1990 Act s 59 so as to provide that development orders made by virtue of that section make such provision in consequence of the review as he considers appropriate; and (2) exercise those powers as soon as reasonably practicable after laying the report before Parliament: 2006 Act s 10(5). 'Dwellinghouse' does not include a building containing one or more flats, or a flat contained within such a building; and 'flat' means a separate and self-contained set of premises constructed or adapted for use for the purpose of a dwelling and forming part of a building from some other part of which it is divided horizontally: s 10(6).

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/4. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/A. IN GENERAL/253. Restrictions and consultation requirements which may be included in development order.

253. Restrictions and consultation requirements which may be included in development order.

The Secretary of State¹ or, in relation to Wales and where a local planning authority² is not the local highway authority³, the National Assembly for Wales⁴ may include in a development order⁵ such provisions as he or it thinks fit enabling a local highway authority to impose restrictions on the grant by the local planning authority of planning permission⁶ for the following descriptions of development⁷ relating to land⁸ in the area of the local highway authority:

- 1054 (1) the formation, laying out or alteration of any means of access⁹ to a classified road¹⁰ or to a proposed road the route of which has been adopted by resolution of the local highway authority and notified as such to the local planning authority;
- 1055 (2) any other operations or use¹¹ of land which appear to the local highway authority to be likely to result in a material increase in the volume of traffic entering or leaving such a classified or proposed road, to prejudice the improvement or construction of such a road or to result in a material change in the character of traffic entering, leaving or using such a road¹².

The Secretary of State or the Assembly may include in a development order provision enabling a local highway authority to impose restrictions on the grant by an urban development corporation which is the local planning authority of planning permission for such descriptions of development as may be specified in the order¹³.

A development order relating to England may also include provision:

- 1056 (a) requiring a county planning authority¹⁴ which is determining any application for planning permission or for a certificate of lawfulness of existing or proposed use or development¹⁵ and relating to a county matter¹⁶, or an application for approval of a matter reserved under an outline planning permission¹⁷ and so relating, to give the district planning authority¹⁸ for the area in which the land to which the application relates is situated an opportunity to make recommendations to the county planning authority as to the manner in which the application is determined, and to take into account any such recommendations¹⁹;
- 1057 (b) requiring a county or district planning authority which has received any application so mentioned or any application for such approval to notify the district or, as the case may be, county planning authority of the terms of its decision, or, where the application is referred to the Secretary of State, the date when it was so referred and, when notified to the authority, the terms of his decision²⁰.

A development order may require a local planning authority which is dealing with an application of which a parish council in England or a community council in Wales is entitled to be notified²¹:

- 1058 (i) to give the council an opportunity to make representations to the local planning authority as to the manner in which the application should be determined;
- 1059 (ii) to take into account any such representations;
- 1060 (iii) to notify the council of the terms of its decision or, where the application is referred to the Secretary of State or the Assembly²², the date when it was so referred and, when notified to the authority, the terms of his or the Assembly's decision²³.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 19 ante.

2 As to local planning authorities see PARA 28 et seq ante. For these purposes, however, the reference to a local planning authority is not to be construed as including a reference to an urban development corporation which is the local planning authority by virtue of an order under the Local Government, Planning and Land Act 1980 s 149 (as amended) (see PARA 1464 post); and no provision of a development order which is included in it by virtue of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 1(5)(c) (as amended), Sch 1 para 5(1) or, as the case may be, s 1(6), Sch 1A para 1(1) (as added) is to be construed as applying to such a corporation: Sch 1 para 5(2); Sch 1A para 1(2) (Sch 1A added by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 s 18(7), Sch 4). The Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 1 para 5(1), (2) (see the text and notes 3-12 infra) does not, however, apply in Greater London: Sch 1 para 21(1). As to Greater London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 29.

21 In England, a local planning authority which has the function of determining applications for planning permission must, if requested to do so by the council of any parish situated in its area, notify the council of (1) any relevant planning application; and (2) any alteration to that application accepted by the authority; and for these purposes 'a relevant planning application' means an application which relates to land in the parish and is an application for planning permission or for approval of a matter reserved under an outline planning permission within the meaning of s 92 (as amended) (see PARA 519 post): Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 1 para 8(1), (2) (Sch 1 para 8 substituted by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 s 32, Sch 7 para 53; amended by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 ss 20(4), 66(8), Sch 6 para 24(15), Sch 18). Any request made for these purposes must be in writing and state that the council wishes to be notified of all relevant applications or all applications of a description specified in the request: Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Sch 1 para 8(3) (as so substituted). An authority must comply with the duty to notify a council of an application by (a) sending the council a copy of the application; or (b) indicating to the council the nature of the development which is the subject of the application and identifying the land to which it relates; and any notification falling within head (b) supra must be in writing: Sch 1 para 8(4) (as so substituted). An authority must comply with its duty to notify a council of an alteration by either sending a copy of the alteration to the council or informing the council in writing of its general effect; but it need not notify a council of an alteration which in its opinion is trivial: Sch 1 para 8(5) (as so substituted).

In Wales, a local planning authority which has the function of determining applications for planning permission must, if requested to do so by the council for any community or group of communities situated in its area, notify that council of any relevant planning application and of any alteration to that application accepted by the authority; and for these purposes 'relevant planning application' means an application which (i) relates to land in the community or (as the case may be) one of the communities concerned; and (ii) is an application for planning permission or for approval of a matter reserved under an outline planning permission within the meaning of s 92 (as amended): Sch 1A para 2(1), (2) (as added: see note 2 supra). Any request made for these purposes must be in writing and must state that the community council wishes to be notified of all relevant applications or all applications of a description specified in the request: Sch 1A para 2(3) (as so added). An authority must comply with the duty to notify a community council of an application by: (A) sending the council a copy of the application; or (B) indicating to the council the nature of the development which is the subject of the application and identifying the land to which it relates; and any notification falling within head (B) supra must be in writing: Sch 1A para 1(4) (as so added). An authority must comply with its duty to notify a community council of an alteration by either sending a copy of the alteration to the council or informing the council in writing of its general effect, but it need not notify a community council of an alteration which in its opinion is trivial: Sch 1A para 1(5) (as so added).

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/A. IN GENERAL/254. Permission granted by development order.

254. Permission granted by development order.

Planning permission¹ granted by a development order² may be granted either unconditionally or subject to such conditions or limitations as may be specified in the order³.

Where planning permission is granted by a development order for the erection⁴, extension or alteration of any buildings⁵, the order may⁶ require the approval of the local planning authority⁷ to be obtained with respect to the design or external appearance of the buildings⁸.

Where planning permission is granted by a development order for development of a specified class, the order may⁹ enable the Secretary of State¹⁰ or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales¹¹, or the local planning authority, to direct that the permission shall not apply either:

- 1061 (1) in relation to development in a particular area; or
- 1062 (2) in relation to any particular development¹².

254 Permission granted by development order

NOTES--As to the grant of permission for development which is likely to have a significant effect on a European site or a European offshore marine site see PARA 254A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/4. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/A. IN GENERAL/254A. General and special development orders and planning zones.

254A. General and special development orders and planning zones.

Development, permission for which was granted by general development order¹, which is likely to have a significant effect on a European site² in Great Britain or a European offshore marine site³ and which is not directly connected with or necessary to the management of the site, must not be commenced until the developer has received written notification of the local planning authority's approval⁴.

Where it is intended to carry out development in reliance on the permission granted by a general development order, application may be made in writing to the appropriate nature conservation body⁵ for its opinion whether the development is likely to have a significant effect on a European site⁶. The appropriate nature conservation body must consider whether this is likely⁷, and provide a written opinion to the applicant and local planning authority⁸. An opinion that the development is not likely to have such an effect is conclusive of that question for the purpose of reliance on the planning permission granted by a general development order⁹. If the appropriate nature conservation body considers that it has insufficient information to reach a conclusion, it must notify the applicant in writing indicating in what respects it considers the information insufficient; and the applicant may supply further information with a view to enabling the body to reach a decision on the application¹⁰.

Planning permission must not be granted in a simplified planning zone¹¹, enterprise zone¹² or by special development order¹³ made or designated after 30 October 1994 if it is likely to have a significant effect on a European site in Great Britain and is not directly connected with or necessary to the management of the site¹⁴. Planning permission must not be granted in a simplified planning zone, enterprise zone or by special development order made on or after 21 August 2007 if it is likely to have a significant effect on a European offshore marine site¹⁵.

1 As to general development orders see the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2716, regs 60-63; and PARA 252 et seq.

2 'European site' means: (1) a special area of conservation; (2) a site of European Community importance; (3) a site hosting a priority natural habitat or priority species; or (4) a classified area: Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2716, regs 2(1), 10 (as amended), implementing the requirements of EC Council Directive 43/92 (OJ L206, 22.7.92, p 7) on the conservation of natural habitats and of wild fauna and flora (as amended). See further OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE.

3 'European offshore marine site' means a European offshore marine site within the meaning of the Offshore Marine Conservation (Natural Habitats, etc) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/1842, reg 15: Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2716, reg 2(1) (definition added by SI 2007/1843).

As to the approval of the local planning authority see the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2716, reg 62 (amended by SI 2007/1843). Where development had already begun before 30 October 1994, it must not be continued until the developer has received written notification of the local planning authority's approval: see the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2716, reg 60(2), (3). 'Local planning authority' means, in England and Wales, except as otherwise provided, any authority having any function as a local planning authority or mineral planning authority under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990: Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2716, reg 2(1).

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/A. IN GENERAL/255. Development permitted by the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995.

255. Development permitted by the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995.

Subject to the provisions of the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995¹ and to certain regulations regarding the conservation of natural habitats², planning permission³ is granted⁴ by that Order for the specified classes of development⁵ described as permitted development in Schedule 2 to that Order⁶; but any permission so granted is subject to any relevant exception, limitation or condition specified in that Schedule⁷. Furthermore, nothing in the 1995 Order permits development contrary to any condition imposed by any planning permission granted or deemed to be granted under Part III of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990⁸ otherwise than by that Order⁹.

The permission so granted does not, however, apply if:

- 1063 (1) in the case of permission granted in connection with an existing building¹⁰, the building operations involved in the construction of that building are unlawful;
- 1064 (2) in the case of permission granted in connection with an existing use¹¹, that use is unlawful¹².

Nor, subject to certain exceptions¹³, does the permission so granted:

- 1065 (a) authorise any development¹⁴ which requires or involves the formation, laying out or material widening of a means of access¹⁵ to an existing highway which is a trunk road¹⁶ or classified road¹⁷, or creates an obstruction to the view of persons using any highway used by vehicular traffic, so as to be likely to cause danger to such persons¹⁸;
- 1066 (b) grant permission for the laying or construction of a notifiable pipeline¹⁹, except in the case of the laying or construction²⁰ of a notifiable pipeline by a gas transporter²¹;
- 1067 (c) except as specifically provided²², permit any development which requires or involves the demolition of a building²³.

Any development falling within the specified description of development²⁴ authorised by an Act or order subject to the grant of any consent or approval is not treated for the purposes of the 1995 Order as authorised unless and until that consent or approval is obtained, except where the Act was passed or the order was made after 1 July 1948 and it contains provision to the contrary²⁵.

Subject to certain exceptions²⁶, Schedule 1 development or Schedule 2 development within the meaning of the Town and Country Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) (England and Wales) Regulations 1999²⁷ is not permitted by the 1995 Order unless:

- 1068 (i) the local planning authority²⁸ has adopted a screening opinion²⁹ that the development is not EIA development³⁰;
- 1069 (ii) the Secretary of State³¹ or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales³² has made a screening direction³³ that the development is not EIA development; or
- 1070 (iii) the Secretary of State or the Assembly has given a direction³⁴ that the development is exempted from the application of the 1999 Regulations³⁵.

For these purposes, where:

- 1071 (A) the local planning authority has adopted a screening opinion³⁶ that development is EIA development and the Secretary of State or the Assembly has, in relation to that development, neither made a screening direction to the contrary³⁷ nor directed³⁸ that the development is exempted from the application of the 1999 Regulations; or
- 1072 (B) the Secretary of State or the Assembly has directed that development is EIA development, that development is treated as development which is not permitted by the 1995 Order³⁹.

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/A. IN GENERAL/257. Use of electronic communications.

257. Use of electronic communications.

Where an electronic communication¹ is used by a person for the purpose of fulfilling any requirement in the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995² or in any Schedule to that Order to give or send any statement, notice or other document to any other person ('the recipient'), that requirement is taken to be fulfilled where the notice or other document transmitted by means of the electronic communication is:

- 1080 (1) capable of being accessed by the recipient;
- 1081 (2) legible in all material respects³; and
- 1082 (3) sufficiently permanent to be used for subsequent reference⁴.

Where the electronic communication is received by the recipient outside the recipient's business hours, it is taken to have been received on the next working day⁵.

A requirement in the 1995 Order or in any Schedule to that Order that any document should be in writing is fulfilled where that document meets the criteria set out in heads (1) to (3) above⁶.

References in the 1995 Order or in any Schedule to that Order to plans, drawings, notices or other documents, or to copies of such documents, include references to such documents or copies of them in electronic form⁷.

Where a person uses electronic communications for making any application required to be made under any of Parts 6, 7, 22, 23, 24, 30 or 31 of Schedule 2 to the 1995 Order⁸, that person is taken to have agreed:

- 1083 (a) to the use of electronic communications for all purposes relating to his application which are capable of being effected using such communications;
- 1084 (b) that his address for the purpose of such communications is the address incorporated into, or otherwise logically associated with, his application; and
- 1085 (c) that his deemed agreement under this provision subsists until he gives notice in writing that he wishes to revoke the agreement⁹.

¹ For these purposes, 'electronic communication' has the meaning given in the Electronic Communications Act 2000 s 15(1) (as amended) (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 947; TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND BROADCASTING vol 45(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 616): Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 1(2) (definition added in relation to England by SI 2003/956 and in relation to Wales by SI 2004/3156).

³ 'Legible in all material respects' means that the information contained in the notice or document is available to the recipient to no lesser extent than it would be if sent or given by means of a document in printed form: ibid art 1(9) (art 1(7)-12) added in relation to England by SI 2003/956 and in relation to Wales by SI 2004/3156).

B. DIRECTIONS RESTRICTING PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT

258. Directions restricting permitted development ('article 4(1) directions').

If the Secretary of State¹ or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales², or the appropriate local planning authority³ is satisfied that it is expedient that development of any of the specified Classes⁴ should not be carried out unless permission is granted for it on an application, he or it may give a direction under this provision that the permission otherwise granted⁵ is not to apply to:

- 1086 (1) all or any of such development in an area specified in the direction; or
- 1087 (2) any particular such development which is specified in the direction, and the direction must specify that it is made under this provision⁶. Such a direction does not affect the carrying out of:

- 1088 (a) development permitted by Part 11 of Schedule 2 to the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995⁷ authorised by an Act passed after 1 July 1948 or by an order requiring the approval of both Houses of Parliament approved after that date;
- 1089 (b) any development in an emergency; or
- 1090 (c) any development mentioned in Part 24⁸, unless the direction specifically so provides⁹.

A direction so given or having effect as if so given does not, unless the direction so provides, affect the carrying out by a statutory undertaker¹⁰ of the following descriptions of development:

- 1091 (i) the maintenance of bridges, buildings¹¹ and railway stations;
- 1092 (ii) the alteration and maintenance of railway track, and the provision and maintenance of track equipment, including signal boxes, signalling apparatus and other appliances and works required in connection with the movement of traffic by rail;
- 1093 (iii) the maintenance of docks, harbours, quays, wharves, canals and towing paths;
- 1094 (iv) the provision and maintenance of mechanical apparatus or appliances (including signalling equipment) required for the purposes of shipping or in connection with the embarking, disembarking, loading, discharging or transport of passengers, livestock or goods at a dock, quay, harbour, bank, wharf or basin;
- 1095 (v) any development required in connection with the improvement, maintenance or repair of watercourses or drainage works;
- 1096 (vi) the maintenance of buildings, runways, taxiways or aprons at an aerodrome¹²;
- 1097 (vii) the provision, alteration and maintenance of equipment, apparatus and works at an aerodrome, required in connection with the movement of traffic by air, other than buildings the construction, erection, reconstruction or alteration of which is permitted¹³ by Class A of Part 18¹⁴.

3 For these purposes, and the purposes of the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, arts 5, 6 (see PARAS 259-263 post), 'appropriate local planning authority' means: (1) in relation to a conservation area in a non-metropolitan county in England, the county planning authority or the district planning authority; and (2) in relation to any other area, the local planning authority whose function it would be to determine an application for planning permission for the development to which the direction relates or is proposed to relate: art 4(6) (amended by SI 1996/528).

4 I.e. development described in any Part, Class or paragraph in the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 (as amended), other than Pt 22, Class B or Pt 23, Class B (see PARAS 388-390, 392-393 post): art 4(1).

5 I.e. the permission granted by ibid art 3 (as amended): see PARA 255 ante.

6 Ibid art 4(1). Such a direction is known as an 'article 4(1) direction'. Any power conferred by the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418 (as amended) to give a direction includes power to cancel or vary the direction by a subsequent direction: art 8. The power to make an article 4(1) direction is only to be exercised in exceptional cases: see eg Magauran v First Secretary of State [2005] All ER (D) 132 (Jul).

7 I.e. development permitted by the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 11 (as amended): see PARAS 322-323 post.

10 For these purposes, unless the context otherwise requires, 'statutory undertaker' includes, in addition to any person mentioned in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 262(1) (meaning of statutory undertakers: see PARA 1009 post), a universal service provider (within the meaning of the Postal Services Act 2000) in connection with the provision of a universal postal service (within the meaning of that Act), the Civil Aviation Authority, the Environment Agency, any water undertaker, any gas transporter, and any licence holder within the meaning of the Electricity Act 1989 s 64(1) (interpretation) (ie the holder of a licence under s 6 (as substituted)): Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 1(2) (definition amended by SI 2001/1149; by the Environment Act 1995 s 120, Sch 22 para 233(1); and by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7)). As to the Environment Agency see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 68 et seq.

11 For the meaning of 'building' see PARA 255 note 10 ante.

12 For these purposes, and unless the context otherwise requires, 'aerodrome' means an aerodrome as defined in the Air Navigation Order 2005, SI 2005/1970, art 155 (interpretation) which is: (1) licensed under that Order; (2) a government aerodrome; (3) one at which the manufacture, repair or maintenance of aircraft is carried out by a person carrying on business as a manufacturer or repairer of aircraft; (4) one used by aircraft engaged in the public transport of passengers or cargo or in aerial work; or (5) one identified to the Civil Aviation Authority before 1 March 1986 for inclusion in the UK Aerodrome Index; and, for the purposes of this definition, the terms 'aerial work', 'government aerodrome' and 'public transport' have the meanings given in arts 155, 157: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 1(2); Interpretation Act 1979 s 17(2).

13 le permitted by the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 18, Class A: see PARAS 353-354 post.

258 Directions restricting permitted development ('article 4(1) directions')

TEXT AND NOTES 7-9--SI 1995/418 art 4(3) amended: SI 2006/1386 (Wales).

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/4. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/B. DIRECTIONS RESTRICTING PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT/259. Secretary of State's or Assembly's approval for article 4(1) direction by local planning authority.

259. Secretary of State's or Assembly's approval for article 4(1) direction by local planning authority.

Subject to certain exceptions¹, a direction by a local planning authority restricting permitted development² requires the approval of the Secretary of State³ or, in relation to Wales, of the National Assembly for Wales⁴; and he or it may approve the direction with or without modifications⁵. On making such a direction or submitting such a direction to the Secretary of State for approval a county planning authority⁶ must give notice of it to any district planning authority⁷ in whose district the area to which the direction relates is situated and, except in metropolitan districts in England⁸, a district planning authority must give notice of it to the county planning authority, if any⁹.

Unless it affects the carrying out of specified development by a statutory undertaker¹⁰, the approval of the Secretary of State or of the Assembly is not required for a direction which relates to:

1099 (2) a building which is notified to the authority by the Secretary of State or the Assembly as a building of architectural or historic interest; or

and does not relate to land¹³ of any other description¹⁴. Nor is such approval required for a direction relating only to development permitted by any of Parts 1 to 4¹⁵ or Part 31¹⁶ of Schedule 2 to the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, if the relevant authority considers the development would be prejudicial to the proper planning of its area or constitute a threat to the amenities of its area¹⁷; but this latter exception does not apply to a second or subsequent direction relating to the same development or to development of the same Class or any of the same Classes, in the same area or any part of that area as that to which the first direction relates or related¹⁸ and, unless disallowed or approved by the Secretary of State or the Assembly¹⁹, such a direction²⁰ expires at the end of six months from the date on which it was made²¹.

The Secretary of State or the Assembly may give notice to the local planning authority that he or it has disallowed any such direction and the direction then ceases to have effect: art 5(8).

259 Secretary of State's or Assembly's approval for article 4(1) direction by local planning authority

NOTES--Certain persons or indorsements mentioned in this paragraph are specified for the purposes of Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 37, Schs 5, 6 (meaning of 'regulator' for the purposes of imposing civil sanctions): see ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) PARA 196A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/4. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/B. DIRECTIONS RESTRICTING PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT/260. Notice of article 4(1) directions.

260. Notice of article 4(1) directions.

Notice of any direction restricting permitted development¹ must be served by the appropriate local planning authority² on the owner and occupier of every part of the land³ within the area to which the direction relates as soon as practicable after the direction has been made or, where the direction is required to be approved by the Secretary of State⁴ or, in relation to Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales⁵, as soon as practicable after it has been so approved; and a direction comes into force in respect of any part of the land within the area to which the direction relates on the date on which notice is so served on the occupier of that part, or, if there is no occupier, on the owner⁶.

If a direction which does not require prior approval but of which a copy has been sent to the Secretary of State or to the Assembly⁷ is approved by the Secretary of State or by the Assembly within the period of six months from the date when it was made⁸, then the authority which made the direction must⁹, as soon as practicable, serve notice of that approval on the owner and occupier of every part of the land within the area to which the direction relates; and where the Secretary of State or the Assembly has approved the direction with modifications the notice must indicate the effect of the modifications¹⁰.

The local planning authority must as soon as reasonably practicable give notice that a direction has been disallowed in the same manner as notice of the direction was given¹¹.

¹ I.e. any direction made under the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 4(1); see PARA 258 ante.

² For the meaning of 'appropriate local planning authority' see PARA 258 note 3 ante; and as to the use of electronic communications see PARA 257 ante.

³ For the meaning of 'land' see PARA 2 note 10 ante.

⁶ Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 5(10). Where, however, in the case of a direction under art 4(1)(a) an authority considers that individual service in accordance with art 5(10) or art 5(11) (see the text and notes 7-10 infra) is impracticable for the reasons set out in art 5(14) it must publish a notice of the direction, or of the approval, by local advertisement: art 5(12). A notice published pursuant to art 5(12) must contain a statement of the effect of the direction and of any modification made to it by the Secretary of State or the Assembly, and must name a place or places where a copy of the direction, and of a map defining the area to which it relates, may be seen at all reasonable hours: art 5(13). The reasons referred to in art 5(12) are that the number of owners and occupiers within the area to which the direction relates makes individual service impracticable, or that it is difficult to identify or locate one or more of them: art 5(14). Where notice of a direction has been published in accordance with art 5(12), the direction comes into force on the date on which the notice is first published: art 5(15). For these purposes, and unless the context otherwise requires, 'by local advertisement' means by publication of the notice in at least one newspaper circulating in the locality in which the area or, as the case may be, the whole or relevant part of the conservation area to which the direction relates is situated: art 1(2). As to directions in respect of conservation areas see PARA 262 et seq post.

- 7 Ie a direction to which ibid art 5(4) applies: see PARA 259 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/4. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/B. DIRECTIONS RESTRICTING PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT/262. Directions restricting permitted development in a conservation area ('article 4(2) directions').

262. Directions restricting permitted development in a conservation area ('article 4(2) directions').

If the appropriate local planning authority¹ is satisfied that it is expedient that any particular development described below should not be carried out within the whole or any part of a conservation area² unless permission is granted for it on an application, the authority may give a direction under this provision that the permission otherwise granted by the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995³ is not to apply to all or any particular development of the Class in question within the whole or any part of the conservation area, and the direction must specify the development and conservation area or part of that area to which it relates and that it is made under this provision⁴. The development referred to is development described in the following provisions of Schedule 2 to the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995:

- 1101 (1) Class A of Part 1⁵, consisting of the enlargement, improvement or other alteration of a dwelling house⁶, where any part of the enlargement, improvement or alteration would front a relevant location⁷;
- 1102 (2) Class C of Part 1⁸, where the alteration would be to a roof slope which fronts a relevant location;
- 1103 (3) Class D of Part 1⁹, where the external door in question fronts a relevant location;
- 1104 (4) Class E of Part 1¹⁰, where the building or inclosure, swimming or other pool to be provided would front a relevant location, or where the part of the building or inclosure maintained, improved or altered would front a relevant location;
- 1105 (5) Class F of Part 1¹¹, where the hard surface would front a relevant location;
- 1106 (6) Class H of Part 1¹², where the part of the building or other structure on which the satellite antenna¹³ is to be installed, altered or replaced fronts a relevant location;
- 1107 (7) Part 1¹⁴, consisting of the erection, alteration or removal of a chimney on a dwelling house or on a building within the curtilage¹⁵ of a dwelling house;
- 1108 (8) Class A of Part 2¹⁶, where the gate, fence, wall or other means of inclosure would be within the curtilage of a dwelling house and would front a relevant location;
- 1109 (9) Class C of Part 2¹⁷, consisting of the painting of the exterior of any part, which fronts a relevant location, of a dwelling house or any building or inclosure within the curtilage of a dwelling house;
- 1110 (10) Class B of Part 3¹⁸, where the gate, fence, wall or other means of inclosure is within the curtilage of a dwelling house and fronts a relevant location¹⁹.

Such a direction does not affect the carrying out of:

- 1111 (a) development permitted by Part 11²⁰ authorised by an Act passed after 1 July 1948 or by an order requiring the approval of both Houses of Parliament approved after that date;

- 1112 (b) any development in an emergency; or
- 1113 (c) any development mentioned in Part 24²¹, unless the direction specifically so provides²²; and a direction so given or having effect as if so given does not, unless the direction so provides, affect the carrying out by a statutory undertaker²³ of the specified descriptions²⁴ of development²⁵.

On making such a direction, a county planning authority²⁶ in England must give notice of it to any district planning authority²⁷ in whose district the conservation area or part of that area to which the direction relates is situated and, except in metropolitan districts²⁸, a district planning authority must give notice of it to the county planning authority, if any²⁹.

262 Directions restricting permitted development in a conservation area ('article 4(2) directions')

NOTE 19--SI 1995/418 art 4(5) amended: SI 2005/2935.

TEXT AND NOTES 20-22--SI 1995/418 art 4(3) amended: SI 2006/1386 (Wales).

Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/4. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/B. DIRECTIONS RESTRICTING PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT/263. Notice and confirmation of article 4(2) directions.

263. Notice and confirmation of article 4(2) directions.

Notice of any direction made restricting particular permitted development in a conservation area¹ must, as soon as practicable after the direction has been made, be given by the appropriate local planning authority²:

- 1114 (1) by local advertisement³; and
- 1115 (2) subject to certain exceptions⁴, by serving the notice on the owner and occupier of every dwelling house⁵ within the whole or the relevant part of the conservation area to which the direction relates⁶.

The notice must:

- 1116 (a) include a description of the development and the conservation area or part of that area to which the direction relates, and a statement of the effect of the direction;
- 1117 (b) specify that the direction is made under the relevant statutory provision⁷;

- 1118 (c) name a place where a copy of the direction, and a copy of the map defining the conservation area or part of that area to which it relates, may be seen at all reasonable hours; and
- 1119 (d) specify a period of at least 21 days, stating the date on which that period begins, within which any representations concerning the direction may be made to the local planning authority⁸.

The direction comes into force in respect of any part of the land⁹ within the conservation area or part of that area to which it relates on the date on which the notice is served on the occupier of that part of the land or, if there is no occupier, on the owner¹⁰. If, however, individual service was not required¹¹, then the direction comes into force on the date on which the notice is first published in accordance with head (1) above¹².

A direction restricting particular permitted development in a conservation area¹³ expires at the end of six months from the date on which it was made unless confirmed by the appropriate local planning authority in accordance with the following provisions before the end of that six month period¹⁴. In deciding whether to confirm such a direction, the local planning authority must take into account any representations received during the period specified in the notice referred to in head (d) above¹⁵. The local planning authority may not confirm the direction until a period of at least 28 days has elapsed following the latest date on which any notice relating to the direction was served or published¹⁶.

The appropriate local planning authority must, as soon as practicable, give notice that a direction has been confirmed in the same manner as in heads (1) and (2) above¹⁷.

2 For the meaning of 'appropriate local planning authority' see PARA 258 note 3 ante; and as to the use of electronic communications see PARA 257 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'by local advertisement' see PARA 260 note 6 ante.

4 The local planning authority need not serve notice on an owner or occupier in accordance with the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 6(1)(b) (see head (2) in the text) where it considers that individual service on that owner or occupier is impracticable because it is difficult to identify or locate him: art 6(4). Nor need the local planning authority serve any notice in accordance with art 6(1)(b) where it considers that the number of owners or occupiers within the conservation area or part of that area to which the direction relates makes individual service impracticable: art 6(5).

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/B. DIRECTIONS RESTRICTING PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT/264. Directions restricting certain permitted development relating to minerals.

264. Directions restricting certain permitted development relating to minerals.

If, on receipt of a notification from any person that he proposes to carry out certain development relating to mineral exploration¹ or the removal of material from mineral-working deposits², a mineral planning authority³ is satisfied that it is expedient that the development, or any part of it, should not be carried out unless permission for it is granted on an application because:

1120 (1) the land on which the development is to be carried out is within:
89

- 126. (a) a National Park⁴;
- 127. (b) an area of outstanding natural beauty⁵;
- 128. (c) a site of archaeological interest⁶;
- 129. (d) a site of special scientific interest⁷; or
- 130. (e) the Broads⁸;

90

1121 (2) the development, either taken by itself or taken in conjunction with other development which is already being carried out in the area or in respect of which notification has been given⁹, would cause serious detriment to the amenity¹⁰ of the area in which it is to be carried out or would adversely affect the setting of a building shown as Grade 1 in the list of buildings of special architectural or historic interest compiled¹¹ by the Secretary of State¹² or, in relation to Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales¹³;

1122 (3) the development would constitute a serious nuisance to the inhabitants of a nearby residential building, hospital or school; or the authority may, within a period of 21 days beginning with the receipt of the notification, direct that the permission granted by the provisions previously discussed¹⁵ shall not apply to the development, or to such part of the development as is specified in the direction¹⁶.

A direction so made must contain a statement as to the day on which, if it is not disallowed¹⁷, it will come into force, which must be 29 days from the date on which notice of it is sent¹⁸ to the Secretary of State or to the Assembly¹⁹. As soon as is reasonably practicable a copy of such a direction must be sent by the mineral planning authority to the Secretary of State or to the Assembly and to the person who gave notice of the proposal to carry out development²⁰.

The Secretary of State or the Assembly may, at any time within a period of 28 days beginning with the date on which the direction is made, disallow the direction; and, immediately upon receipt of notice in writing from the Secretary of State or the Assembly that he or it has disallowed the direction, the mineral planning authority must give notice in writing to the person who gave notice of the proposal that he is authorised to proceed with the development²¹.

C. CLASSES OF PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT

(A) PART 1: DEVELOPMENT WITHIN THE CURTILAGE OF A DWELLING HOUSE

265. Class A; permitted development.

The enlargement¹, improvement or other alteration² of a dwelling house is permitted development³.

1 For these purposes, the erection within the curtilage of a dwelling house of any building with a cubic content greater than ten cubic metres is treated as the enlargement of the dwelling house for all purposes including calculating cubic content where (1) the dwelling house is on article 1(5) land; or (2) in any other case, any part of that building would be within five metres of any part of the dwelling house: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 3(1), Sch 2 Pt 1 para A.3(a). 'Cubic content' means the cubic content of a structure or building measured externally: art 1(2). For the purposes of Sch 2 Pt 1, Class A, where any part of the dwelling house would be within five metres of an existing building within the same curtilage, that building is treated as forming part of the resulting building for the purpose of calculating the cubic content: Sch 2 Pt 1 para A.3(b). For the meaning of 'existing' and 'building' see PARA 255 note 10 ante; for the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 262 note 6 ante; for the meaning of 'article 1(5) land' see PARA 256 ante; for the meaning of 'curtilage' see PARA 223 note 13 ante; and for the meaning of 'resulting building' see PARA 266 note 3 post.

2 'Enlargement, improvement or other alteration' can only be to a dwelling house in existence when the works are carried out; these words do not cover rebuilding: Sainty v Minister of Housing and Local Government (1964) 15 P & CR 432, DC. 265-418 Classes of Permitted Development

In relation to Wales, as to classes of permitted development in respect of development by the crown, aviation development by the crown, crown railways, dockyards and lighthouses, emergency development by the crown and development for national security purposes, see the Town and Country (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pts 34-38 (added by SI 2006/1386). Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/4. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/C. CLASSES OF PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT/(A) Part 1: Development within the Curtilage of a Dwelling House/266. Development not permitted by Class A.

266. Development not permitted by Class A.

Development is not permitted by Class A¹ if:

- 1124 (1) the cubic content² of the resulting building³ would exceed the cubic content of the original⁴ dwelling house:
- 91 131. (a) in the case of a terrace house⁵ or in the case of a dwelling house on article 1(5) land⁶, by more than 50 cubic metres or 10%, whichever is the greater:
- 132. (b) in any other case, by more than 70 cubic metres or 15%, whichever is the greater;
- 133. (c) in any case, by more than 115 cubic metres;
- 92 1125 (2) the part of the building enlarged, improved or altered would exceed in height⁷ the highest part of the roof of the original dwelling house;
- 1126 (3) the part of the building enlarged, improved or altered would be nearer to any highway which bounds the curtilage of the dwelling house than:
- 93 134. (a) the part of the original dwelling house nearest to that highway; or
- 135. (b) any point 20 metres from that highway,
- 94 1127 whichever is the nearer to the highway;
- 1128 (4) in the case of development other than the insertion, enlargement, improvement or other alteration of a window in an existing wall of a dwelling house, the part of the building enlarged, improved or altered would be within 2 metres of the boundary of the curtilage of the dwelling house and would exceed 4 metres in height;
- 1129 (5) the total area of ground covered by buildings within the curtilage, other than the original dwelling house, would exceed 50% of the total area of the curtilage, excluding the ground area of the original dwelling house;
- 1130 (6) it would consist of or include the installation, alteration or replacement of a satellite antenna⁸;

- 1131 (7) it would consist of or include the erection of a building within the curtilage of a listed building⁹; or 1132 (8) it would consist of or include an alteration to any part of the roof¹⁰.

In the case of a dwelling house on any article 1(5) land, development is not permitted by Class A if it would consist of or include the cladding of any part of the exterior with stone, artificial stone, timber, plastic or tiles¹¹.

1 le by the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 3(1), Sch 2 Pt 1, Class A: see PARA 265 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'cubic content' see PARA 265 note 1 ante.

3 For the purposes of the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 1 (as amended), 'resulting building' means the dwelling house as enlarged, improved or altered, taking into account any enlargement, improvement or alteration to the original dwelling house, whether permitted by Sch 2 Pt 1 (as amended) or not: Sch 2 Pt 1 para I. As to the circumstances in which an erection within the curtilage of a dwelling house of a building is treated as the enlargement of a dwelling house see PARA 265 note 1 ante. For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 262 note 6 ante.

4 For these purposes, 'original' means, in relation to a building existing on 1 July 1948, as existing on that date and, in relation to a building built on or after 1 July 1948, as so built: ibid art 1(2). For the meanings of 'building' and 'existing' see PARA 255 note 10 ante.

5 For the purposes of ibid Sch 2 Pt 1 (as amended), 'terrace house' means a dwelling house situated in a row of three or more dwelling houses used or designed for use as single dwellings where (1) it shares a party wall with, or has a main wall adjoining the main wall of, the dwelling house on either side; or (2) if it is at the end of a row, it shares a party wall with, or has a main wall adjoining the main wall of, a dwelling house which fulfils the requirements of head (1) supra: Sch 2 Pt 1 para I.

6 For the meaning of 'article 1(5) land' see PARA 256 ante.

7 For these purposes, unless the context otherwise requires, any reference to the height of a building or of plant or machinery is to be construed as a reference to its height when measured from ground level; and 'ground level' means the level of the surface of the ground immediately adjacent to the building or plant or machinery in question or, where the level of the surface of the ground on which it is situated or is to be situated is not uniform, the level of the highest part of the surface of the ground adjacent to it: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 2(3). 280. Class A; permitted development.

The erection, construction, maintenance, improvement or alteration of a gate, fence, wall or other means of inclosure¹ is permitted development².

1 The building of a wall is not so authorised unless it has some function of inclosure; but, if a wall in fact operates as a means of inclosure, it does not necessarily lose its privilege under the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 3(1), Sch 2 Pt 2, Class A merely because it also has some function such as retaining soil: Prengate Properties Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment (1973) 25 P & CR 311, DC. See also Ewen Developments Ltd v Secretary of State for the Environment and North Norfolk District Council [1980] JPL 404, DC; Lovejoy v Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions and Caradon District Council (1998) 78 P & CR 1, [1999] JPL 441 (the building of an embankment next to a river will not be so authorised if it does not have some function of inclosure). The presence of some inclosing function does not, however, automatically render a wall permitted development: see R (on the application of Dennis) v Sevenoaks District Council [2004] EWHC 2758 (Admin), [2005] JPL 791, [2004] All ER (D) 223 (Nov).

- 1159 (2) the height of any other gate, fence, wall or means of inclosure erected or constructed would exceed 2 metres above ground level;
- 1160 (3) the height of any gate, fence, wall or other means of inclosure maintained, improved or altered would, as a result of the development, exceed its former height or the height referred to in head (1) or head (2) above as the height appropriate to it if erected or constructed, whichever is the greater; or

(F) PART 6: AGRICULTURAL BUILDINGS AND OPERATIONS

302. Class A; permitted development on units of 5 hectares or more.

The carrying out on agricultural land¹ comprised in an agricultural unit² of 5 hectares or more in area of:

- 1190 (1) works for the erection, extension or alteration of a building; or
- 1191 (2) any excavation or engineering operations, which are reasonably necessary for the purposes of agriculture³ within that unit is permitted development⁴.

1 For these purposes, 'agricultural land' means land which, before development permitted by the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 3(1), Sch 2 Pt 6 (as amended) is carried out, is land in use for agriculture and which is so used for the purposes of a trade or business, and excludes any dwelling house or garden: Sch 2 Pt 6 para D.1. For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 262 note 6 ante. As to the meaning of 'agriculture' see PARA 16 note 6 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'agricultural unit' means agricultural land which is occupied as a unit for the purposes of agriculture, including (1) any dwelling or other building on that land occupied for the purpose of farming the land by the person who occupies the unit; or (2) any dwelling on that land occupied by a farmworker: ibid Sch 2 Pt 6 para D.1. 265-418 Classes of Permitted Development

In relation to Wales, as to classes of permitted development in respect of development by the crown, aviation development by the crown, crown railways, dockyards and lighthouses, emergency development by the crown and development for national security purposes, see the Town and Country (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pts 34-38 (added by SI 2006/1386). Halsbury's Laws of England/TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING (VOLUME 46(1) (REISSUE) PARAS 1-550; VOLUME 46(2) (REISSUE) PARAS 551-1008; VOLUME 46(3) (REISSUE) PARAS 1009-1508)/4. DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/C. CLASSES OF PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT/(F) Part 6: Agricultural Buildings and Operations/303. Special conditions to which development permitted by Class A is subject.

303. Special conditions to which development permitted by Class A is subject.

Development is permitted by Class A¹ subject to the following conditions:

- 1192 (1) where development is carried out within 400 metres of the curtilage² of a protected building³, any building, structure, excavation or works resulting from the development may not be used for the accommodation of livestock⁴ except in the specified circumstances⁵ or for the storage of slurry⁶ or sewage sludge;

- 1193 (2) where the development involves the extraction of any mineral from the land, including removal from any disused railway embankment, or the removal of any mineral from a mineral-working deposit, the mineral may not be moved off the unit;
- 1194 (3) waste materials may not be brought on to the land from elsewhere for deposit except for use in works for the erection, extension or alteration of a building⁷ or in the provision of a hard surface and any materials so brought must be incorporated forthwith into the building or works in question⁸.

Development consisting of the erection, extension or alteration of a building, the formation or alteration of a private way⁹, the carrying out of excavations or the deposit of waste material, where the relevant area¹⁰ exceeds 0.5 hectare, or the placing or assembly of a tank¹¹ in any waters is permitted by Class A¹² subject to the following conditions:

- 1195 (a) the developer must, before beginning the development, apply to the local planning authority¹³ for a determination as to whether the prior approval of the authority will be required to the siting, design and external appearance of the building, the siting and means of construction of the private way, the siting of the excavation or the siting and appearance of the tank, as the case may be;
- 1196 (b) the application must be accompanied by a written description of the proposed development, the materials to be used and a plan indicating the site together with any fee required to be paid¹⁴;
- 1197 (c) the development may not be begun before the occurrence of one of the following:
- 113
158. (i) the receipt by the applicant from the local planning authority of a written notice of its determination that such prior approval is not required;
159. (ii) where the local planning authority gives the applicant notice within 28 days following the date of receiving his application of its determination that such prior approval is required, the giving of such approval; or
160. (iii) the expiry of 28 days following the date on which the application was received by the local planning authority without that authority making any determination as to whether such approval is required or notifying the applicant of its determination;
- 114
- 1198 (d) where the local planning authority gives the applicant notice that such prior approval is required, the applicant must display a site notice¹⁵ by site display¹⁶ on or near the land on which the proposed development is to be carried out, leaving the notice in position for not less than 21 days in the period of 28 days from the date on which the local planning authority gave the notice to the applicant¹⁷;
- 1199 (e) the development must, except to the extent that the local planning authority otherwise agrees in writing, be carried out:
- 115
161. (i) where prior approval is required, in accordance with the details approved;
162. (ii) where prior approval is not required, in accordance with the details submitted with the application; and
- 116
- 1200 (f) the development must be carried out:
- 117
163. (i) where approval has been given by the local planning authority, within a period of five years from the date on which approval was given;
164. (ii) in any other case, within a period of five years from the date on which the local planning authority was given the information referred to in head (ii) above¹⁸.
- 118

The conditions set out in heads (a) to (f) above do not, however, apply to the extension or alteration of a building if the building is not on article 1(6) land¹⁹ except in the case of a significant extension²⁰ or a significant alteration²¹.

Development consisting of the significant extension or the significant alteration of a building may²² be carried out only once²³. Where development consisting of works for the erection, extension or alteration of a building is permitted²⁴, the developer must notify the local planning authority, in writing and within seven days, of the date on which the development was substantially completed²⁵.

Where development consists of works for the erection, significant extension or significant alteration of a building and

1201 (A) the use of the building or extension for the purposes of agriculture within the unit permanently ceases within ten years from the date on which the development was substantially completed²⁶; and

1202 (B) planning permission²⁷ has not been granted on an application²⁸, or has not been deemed to be granted²⁹ for development for purposes other than agriculture, within three years from the date on which the use of the building or extension for the purposes of agriculture within the unit permanently ceased³⁰, then, unless the local planning authority has otherwise agreed in writing, the building or, in the case of development consisting of an extension, the extension, must be removed from the land and the land must, so far as is practicable, be restored to its condition before the development took place, or to such condition as may have been agreed in writing between the local planning authority and the developer³¹.

1 Ie by the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 3(1), Sch 2 Pt 6, Class A: see PARA 302 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'curtilage' see PARA 223 note 13 ante. See also PARA 273 note 2 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'protected building' means any permanent building which is normally occupied by people or would be so occupied, if it were in use for purposes for which it is apt; but does not include (1) a building within the agricultural unit; or (2) a dwelling or other building on another agricultural unit which is used for or in connection with agriculture: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 6 para D.1. For the meaning of 'building' for these purposes, and for the meaning of 'agricultural unit', see PARA 302 note 2 ante.

4 'Livestock' includes fish or shellfish which are farmed: ibid Sch 2 Pt 6 para D.1.

5 The circumstances so specified are that no other suitable building or structure, 400 metres or more from the curtilage of a protected building, is available to accommodate the livestock; and (1) that the need to accommodate the livestock arises from (a) quarantine requirements; or (b) an emergency due to another building or structure in which the livestock could otherwise be accommodated being unavailable because it has been damaged or destroyed by fire, flood or storm; or (2) in the case of animals normally kept out of doors, they require temporary accommodation in a building or other structure (a) because they are sick or giving birth or newly born; or (b) to provide shelter against extreme weather conditions: ibid Sch 2 Pt 6 para D.3. However, there is no statutory presumption against granting planning permission for agricultural buildings to house livestock within the 400 metres range: see Graham v Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions [2002] EWHC 1150 (Admin), [2002] All ER (D) 541 (May).

6 For these purposes, 'slurry' means animal faeces and urine, whether or not water has been added for handling: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 6 para D.1.

7 Ie except for use in works described in ibid Sch 2 Pt 6, Class A(a): see PARA 302 ante at head (1) in the text.

8 Ibid Sch 2 Pt 6 para A.2(1).

9 For these purposes, 'private way' means a highway not maintainable at the public expense and any other way other than a highway: ibid art 1(2).

10 For these purposes, the relevant area of the proposed excavation or the area on which it is proposed to deposit waste together with the aggregate of the areas of all other excavations within the unit which have not been filled and of all other parts of the unit on or under which waste has been deposited and has not been removed: ibid Sch 2 Pt 6 para D.4.

11 For these purposes, 'tank' includes any cage and any other structure for use in fish farming; and 'fish farming' means the breeding, rearing or keeping of fish or shellfish, which includes any kind of crustacean or mollusc: ibid Sch 2 Pt 6 para D.1.

12 See note 1 supra.

13 As to local planning authorities see PARA 28 et seq ante.

14 As to the use of electronic communications see PARA 257 ante; and as to the fee payable see PARA 465 post. As to the meaning of the phrase 'the materials to be used' see R v Caradon District Council, ex p Lovejoy [2000] JPL 186 per Jowitt J (the phrase is to be construed as being a reference to the materials which will be used if the development is carried out and does not refer simply to materials which may be used or one or more of which may be used if the development is carried out).

15 For these purposes, 'site notice' means a notice containing (1) the name of the applicant; (2) the address or location of the proposed development; (3) a description of the proposed development and of the materials to be used; (4) a statement that the prior approval of the authority will be required to the siting, design and external appearance of the building, the siting and means of construction of the private way, the siting of the excavation or deposit or the siting and appearance of the tank, as the case may be; (5) the name and address of the local planning authority, and which is signed and dated by or on behalf of the applicant: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 6 para D.5.

16 For these purposes, unless the context otherwise requires, 'by site display' means by the posting of the notice by firm affixture to some object, sited and displayed in such a way as to be easily visible and legible by members of the public: ibid art 1(2).

17 Where the site notice is, without any fault or intention of the applicant, removed, obscured or defaced before the period of 21 days referred to in head (d) in the text has elapsed, the applicant is treated as having complied with the requirements set out in that head if he has taken reasonable steps for protection of the notice and, if need be, for its replacement: Sch 2 Pt 6 para A.2(2)(d)(iv)(bb).

18 Ibid Sch 2 Pt 6 para A.2(2).

Development permitted by Class B¹ and carried out within 400 metres of the curtilage² of a protected building³ is subject to the condition that any building which is extended⁴ or altered, or any works resulting from the development, may not be used for the accommodation of livestock⁵ except in the specified circumstances⁶ or for the storage of slurry⁷ or sewage sludge⁸.

Development consisting of the extension or alteration of a building situated on article 1(6) land⁹ or the provision, rearrangement or replacement of a private way¹⁰ on such land is permitted subject to:

- 1220 (1) the condition that the developer must, before beginning the development, apply to the local planning authority¹¹ for a determination as to whether the prior approval of the authority will be required to the siting, design and external appearance of the building as extended or altered or the siting and means of construction of the private way; and 1221 (2) the specified¹² conditions¹³.

Development is permitted for the deposit of waste¹⁴ subject to the following conditions:

- 1222 (a) that waste materials are not brought on to the land from elsewhere for deposit unless they are for use in specified works¹⁵ and are incorporated forthwith into the building or works in question; and
- 1223 (b) that the height of the surface of the land will not be materially increased by the deposit¹⁶.

Development consisting of the extension or alteration of an agricultural building is permitted¹⁷ subject to the following conditions:

- 1224 (i) where development consists of works for the significant extension or significant alteration¹⁸ of a building and
- 123 171. (A) the use of the building or extension for the purposes of agriculture within the unit permanently ceases within ten years from the date on which the development was substantially completed; and

- 124 1225 then, unless the local planning authority has otherwise agreed in writing, the extension, in the case of development consisting of an extension, must be removed from the land and the land must, so far as is practicable, be restored to its condition before the development took place, or to such condition as may have been agreed in writing between the local planning authority and the developer;
- 1226 (ii) where an appeal has been made²² in relation to an application for development described in head (i)(B) above, within the period there described, that period is extended until the appeal is finally determined or withdrawn;
- 1227 (iii) the developer must notify the local planning authority in writing and within seven days, of the date on which the development was substantially completed²³.

311. Special conditions to which development permitted by Class A is subject.

Development consisting of the erection of a building¹ or the extension or alteration of a building or the formation or alteration of a private way² is permitted by Class A³ subject to the following conditions:

- 1236 (1) the developer must, before beginning the development, apply to the local planning authority⁴ for a determination as to whether the prior approval of the authority will be required to the siting, design and external appearance of the building or, as the case may be, the siting and means of construction of the private way;
- 1237 (2) the application must be accompanied by a written description of the proposed development, the materials to be used and a plan indicating the site together with any fee required to be paid⁵;

- 1238 (3) the development may not be begun before the occurrence of one of the following:
- 131
188. (a) the receipt by the applicant from the local planning authority of a written notice of its determination that such prior approval is not required;
189. (b) where the local planning authority gives the applicant notice within 28 days following the date of receiving his application of its determination that such prior approval is required, the giving of such approval;
190. (c) the expiry of 28 days following the date on which the application was received by the local planning authority without that authority making any determination as to whether such approval is required or notifying the applicant of its determination;
- 132
- 1239 (4) where the local planning authority gives the applicant notice that such prior approval is required, the applicant must display a site notice⁶ by site display⁷ on or near the land on which the proposed development is to be carried out, leaving the notice in position for not less than 21 days in the period of 28 days from the date on which the local planning authority gave the notice to the applicant⁸;
- 1240 (5) the development must, except to the extent that the local planning authority otherwise agrees in writing, be carried out:
- 133
191. (a) where prior approval is required, in accordance with the details approved;
192. (b) where prior approval is not required, in accordance with the details submitted with the application;
- 134
- 1241 (6) the development must be carried out:
- 135
193. (a) where approval has been given by the local planning authority, within a period of five years from the date on which approval was given;
194. (b) in any other case, within a period of five years from the date on which the local planning authority was given the information referred to in head (2) above⁹.
- 136

The conditions set out above do not, however, preclude the extension or alteration of a building if the building is not on article 1(6) land¹⁰ except in the case of a significant extension¹¹ or a significant alteration¹².

In the case of development consisting of the significant extension or the significant alteration of a building, such development may be carried out only once¹³.

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/C. CLASSES OF PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT/(N) Part 14: Development by Drainage Bodies/328. Class A; permitted development.

(N) PART 14: DEVELOPMENT BY DRAINAGE BODIES

328. Class A; permitted development.

Development by a drainage body¹ in, on or under a watercourse or land drainage² works in connection with the improvement, maintenance or repair of the watercourse or works is permitted development³.

No specific provision is made with regard to development not permitted by Class A.

1 For this purpose, 'drainage body' has the same meaning as in the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 72(1) (interpretation: see WATER AND WATERWAYS vol 101 (2009) PARA 573) other than the Environment Agency: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 3(1), Sch 2 Pt 14 para A.1 (amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 233(1)). As to the Environment Agency see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 68 et seq; and as to permitted development by that Agency see PARAS 329-330 post.

2 For these purposes, unless the context otherwise requires, 'land drainage' has the same meaning as in the Land Drainage Act 1976 s 116 (as amended) (interpretation) (ie the drainage of land and the provision of flood warning systems): Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 1(2). As to flood defence and land drainage see generally WATER AND WATERWAYS vol 101 (2009) PARA 559 et seq.

3 Ibid Sch 2 Pt 14, Class A. As to the general conditions subject to which such development is permitted see PARA 255 ante; and as to directions restricting permitted development see PARA 258 et seq ante.

(R) PART 18: AVIATION DEVELOPMENT

353. Class A; permitted development at an airport and special conditions to which it is subject.

The carrying out on operational land by a relevant airport operator¹ or its agent of development, including the erection or alteration of an operational building², in connection with the provision of services and facilities at a relevant airport is permitted development³. Development is so permitted, however, subject to the condition that the relevant airport operator consults⁴ the local planning authority⁵ before carrying out any development, unless that development is development which:

- 1347 (1) is urgently required for the efficient running of the airport; and
- 1348 (2) consists of the carrying out of works, or the erection or construction of a structure or of an ancillary building, or the placing on land of equipment, and the works, structure, building, or equipment do not exceed four metres in height⁶ or 200 cubic metres in capacity⁷.

1 For these purposes, 'relevant airport operator' means a relevant airport operator within the meaning of the Airports Act 1986 s 57 (as amended) (see AIR LAW vol 2 (2008) PARA 189): Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 3(1), Sch 2 Pt 18 para K.

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/C. CLASSES OF PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT/(T) Part 20: Coal Mining Development by the Coal Authority and Licensed Operators/372. Class A; permitted development.

(T) PART 20: COAL MINING DEVELOPMENT BY THE COAL AUTHORITY AND LICENSED OPERATORS

372. Class A; permitted development.

Development by a licensee of the Coal Authority¹, in a mine² started before 1 July 1948, consisting of:

1389 (1) the winning and working underground of coal or coal-related minerals³ in a designated seam area⁴; or

1390 (2) the carrying out of development underground which is required in order to gain access to and work coal or coal-related minerals in a designated seam area, is permitted development⁵.

1 For these purposes, 'a licensee of the Coal Authority' means any person who is for the time being authorised by a licence under the Coal Industry Act 1994 Pt II (ss 26-36) (as amended) to carry on coal-mining operations to which s 25 (coal-mining operations to be licensed) (see MINES, MINERALS AND QUARRIES vol 31 (2003 Reissue) PARA 91) applies: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI

1995/418, art 3(1), Sch 2 Pt 20 para A.2. As to the Coal Authority see MINES, MINERALS AND QUARRIES vol 31 (2003 Reissue) PARA 52 et seq.

2 For the meaning of 'mine' see PARA 313 note 2 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'coal-related minerals' means minerals other than coal which are, or may be, won and worked by coal-mining operations: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 20 para A.2. 'Coal-mining operations' has the same meaning as in the Coal Industry Act 1994 s 65 (interpretation: see MINES, MINERALS AND QUARRIES vol 31 (2003 Reissue) PARA 50 note 10) and references to any development or use in connection with coal-mining operations include references to development or use for or in connection with activities carried on in association with, or for purposes connected with, the carrying on of those operations: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 20 para F.1.

4 'Designated seam area' means land identified, in accordance with para (a) of the definition of 'seam plan' (see head (1) infra), in a seam plan which was deposited with the mineral planning authority before 30 September 1993; and 'seam plan' means a plan or plans on a scale of not less than 1 to 25,000 showing: (1) land comprising the maximum extent of the coal seam or seams that could have been worked from shafts or drifts existing at a mine at 13 November 1992, without further development on an authorised site other than development permitted by the Town and Country Planning General Development Order 1988, SI 1988/1813, Sch 2 Pt 20, Class B (revoked) as originally enacted; (2) any active access used in connection with the land referred to in head (1) supra; (3) the National Grid lines and reference numbers shown on Ordnance Survey maps; (4) a typical stratigraphic column showing the approximate depths of the coal seam referred to in head (1) supra: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 20 para A.2. 'Active access' means a surface access to underground workings which is in normal and regular use for the transportation of coal, materials, spoil or men; and 'normal and regular use' means use other than intermittent visits to inspect and maintain the fabric of the mine or any plant or machinery: Sch 2 Pt 20 para F.1.

373. Special conditions to which development permitted by Class A is subject.

Except on land in respect of which there is an extant planning permission¹ which has been granted on an application² and has been implemented³, development is permitted by Class A⁴ subject to the following conditions:

- 1391 (1) except in a case where there is an approved restoration scheme⁵ or mining operations⁶ have permanently ceased, the developer was before 31 December 1995 to apply, or must before any later date which the mineral planning authority⁷ may agree in writing apply, to the mineral planning authority for approval of a restoration scheme;
- 1392 (2) where there is an approved restoration scheme, reinstatement, restoration and aftercare must be carried out in accordance with that scheme;
- 1393 (3) if an approved restoration scheme does not specify the periods within which reinstatement, restoration or aftercare should be carried out, it is subject to conditions that:
- 187
258. (a) reinstatement or restoration, if any, must be carried out before the end of the period of 24 months from either the date when the mining operations have permanently ceased or the date when any application for approval of a restoration scheme under head (1) above has been finally determined⁸, whichever is later; and
259. (b) aftercare, if any, in respect of any part of a site must be carried out throughout the period of five years from either the date when any reinstatement or restoration in respect of that part is completed or the date when any application for approval of a restoration scheme under head (1) above has been finally determined, whichever is later;
- 188
- 1394 (4) where there is no approved restoration scheme, then before the end of the specified period⁹:
- 189
260. (a) all buildings¹⁰, plant¹¹, machinery¹², structures and erections used at any time for or in connection with any previous coal-mining operations¹³ at that mine must be removed from any land which is an authorised site¹⁴ unless the mineral planning authority has otherwise agreed in writing; and
261. (b) that land must, so far as practicable, be restored to its condition before any previous coal-mining operations at that mine took place or to such condition as may have been agreed in writing between the mineral planning authority and the developer¹⁵.

1 For the meaning of 'planning permission' see PARA 43 note 6 ante.

2 Ie on an application under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt III (ss 55-106B) (as amended): see PARA 217 et seq ante, PARA 419 et seq post.

3 Ie the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 3(1), Sch 2 Pt 20 para A.1(a) (see the text and notes 4-15 infra) does not apply to such land: see Sch 2 Pt 20 para A.1(b).

4 Ie by ibid Sch 2 Pt 20, Class A: see PARA 372 ante.

5 For these purposes, 'approved restoration scheme' means a restoration scheme which is approved when an application made under ibid Sch 2 Pt 20 para A.1(a)(i) (see head (1) in the text) is finally determined, as approved (with or without conditions), or as subsequently varied with the written approval of the mineral planning authority (with or without conditions); and 'restoration scheme' means a scheme which makes provision for the reinstatement, restoration or aftercare (or a combination of these) of any land which is an authorised site and has been used at any time for or in connection with any previous coal-mining operations at that mine: Sch 2 Pt 20 para A.2. As to when an application made under head (1) in the text is finally determined see note 8 infra; for the meaning of 'previous coal-mining operations' see note 13 infra; and for the meaning of 'authorised site' see note 14 infra.

6 For the meaning of 'mining operations' see PARA 297 note 2 ante.

7 For the meaning of 'mineral planning authority' see PARA 29 ante.

8 For these purposes, an application for approval of a restoration scheme has been finally determined when the following conditions have been met: (1) any proceedings on the application, including any proceeding on or in consequence of an application under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 288 (as amended) (proceedings for questioning the validity of certain orders, decisions and directions: see PARA 47 ante), have been determined; and (2) any time for appealing under s 78 (as amended) (right to appeal against planning decisions and failure to take such decisions: see PARA 598 post), or applying or further applying under s 288 (as amended), where there is a right to do so, has expired: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 20 para A.1(a)(vi).

9 The period referred to in head (4) in the text is: (1) the period of 24 months from the date when the mining operations have permanently ceased or, if an application for approval of a restoration scheme has been made under head (1) in the text before that date, 24 months from the date when that application has been finally determined, whichever is later; or (2) any longer period which the mineral planning authority has agreed in writing: ibid Sch 2 Pt 20 para A.1(a)(v).

11 For the meaning of 'plant' see PARA 255 note 10 ante.

12 For the meaning of 'machinery' see PARA 255 note 10 ante.

13 For these purposes, 'previous coal-mining operations' has the same meaning as in the Coal Industry Act 1994 s 54(3) (obligations to restore land affected by coal-mining operations: see MINES, MINERALS AND QUARRIES vol 31 (2003 Reissue) PARA 357) and references in the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 20 Class A to the use of anything in connection with any such operations includes references to its use for or in connection with activities carried on in association with, or for purposes connected with, the carrying on of those operations: Sch 2 Pt 20 para A.2.

14 Subject to ibid Sch 2 Pt 20 para F.2(2), land is an authorised site for these purposes if: (1) it is identified in a grant of planning permission or any instrument by virtue of which planning permission is deemed to be granted as land which may be used for development described in Sch 2 Pt 20; or (2) in any other case, it is land immediately adjoining an active access which, on 5 December 1988, was in use for the purposes of that mine in connection with coal-mining operations: Sch 2 Pt 20 para F.2(1). For the purposes of heads (1)-(2) supra, however, land is not to be regarded as in use in connection with coal-mining operations if (a) it is used for the permanent deposit of waste derived from the winning and working of minerals; or (b) there is on, over or under it a railway, conveyor, aerial ropeway, roadway, overhead power line or pipeline which is not itself surrounded by other land used for those purposes: Sch 2 Pt 20 para F.2(2).

DEVELOPMENT CONTROL; IN GENERAL/(4) PERMISSION GRANTED BY DEVELOPMENT ORDER/(i) General and Special Development Orders/C. CLASSES OF PERMITTED DEVELOPMENT/(T) Part 20: Coal Mining Development by the Coal Authority and Licensed Operators/380. Class E; permitted development.

380. Class E; permitted development.

The carrying out by the Coal Authority¹ or a licensed operator², with the prior approval of the mineral planning authority³, of development required for the maintenance or safety of a mine⁴ or a disused mine or for the purposes of ensuring the safety of the surface of the land at or adjacent to a mine or a disused mine is permitted development⁵.

The prior approval of the mineral planning authority to development permitted by Class E is not, however, required if:

- 1411 (1) the external appearance of the mine or disused mine at or adjacent to which the development is to be carried out would not be materially affected;
- 1412 (2) no building⁶, plant or machinery⁷, structure or erection:
191
 - 262. (a) would exceed a height⁸ of 15 metres above ground level; or
 - 263. (b) would, where any building, plant, machinery, structure or erection is rearranged, replaced or repaired, exceed a height of 15 metres above ground level or the height of what was replaced, rearranged or repaired, whichever is the greater; and
- 192 1413 (3) the development consists of an extension, alteration or replacement of an existing⁹ building, within the specified¹⁰ limits¹¹.

Furthermore, such prior approval may not be refused or granted subject to conditions unless the authority is satisfied that it is expedient to do so because:

- 1414 (i) the proposed development would injure the amenity¹² of the neighbourhood and modifications could reasonably be made or conditions reasonably imposed in order to avoid or reduce that injury; or
- 1415 (ii) the proposed development ought to be, and could reasonably be, sited elsewhere¹³.

No specific provision is made with regard to development not permitted by Class E.

Class A; permitted development and special conditions to which it is subject.

(U) PART 21: WASTE TIPPING AT A MINE

381. Class A; permitted development and special conditions to which it is subject.

The deposit, on premises used as a mine¹ or on ancillary mining land² already used for the purpose, of waste derived from the winning and working of minerals at that mine or from minerals brought to the surface at that mine, or from the treatment or the preparation for sale, consumption or utilisation of minerals from the mine is permitted development³.

Development is so permitted, however, subject to the following conditions:

- 1416 (1) except in a case where a relevant scheme⁴ or a waste management scheme⁵ has already been approved by the mineral planning authority, the developer must, if the mineral planning authority so requires, within three months or such longer period as the authority may specify, submit a waste management scheme for that authority's approval;

1417 (2) where a waste management scheme or a relevant scheme has been approved, the depositing of waste and all other activities in relation to that deposit must be carried out in accordance with the scheme as approved⁶.

1 For the meaning of 'mine' see PARA 313 note 2 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'ancillary mining land' means land adjacent to and occupied together with a mine at which the winning and working of minerals is carried out in pursuance of planning permission granted or deemed to be granted under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt III (ss 55-106B) (as amended) (see PARA 217 et seq ante, PARA 419 et seq post): Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 3(1), Sch 2 Pt 21 para A.3. 4 For these purposes, 'relevant scheme' means a scheme, other than a waste management scheme, requiring approval by the mineral planning authority in accordance with a condition or limitation on any planning permission granted or deemed to be granted under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt III (as amended), for making provision for the manner in which the deposit of waste is to be carried out and for the carrying out of other activities in relation to that deposit: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 21 para C. For the meaning of 'waste management scheme' see note 5 infra; and for the meaning of 'mineral planning authority' see PARA 29 ante.

5 For these purposes, 'waste management scheme' means a scheme required by the mineral planning authority to be submitted for its approval in accordance with the condition in ibid Sch 2 Pt 21 para A.2(a) (see head (1) in the text) which makes provision for (1) the manner in which the depositing of waste, other than waste deposited on a site for use for filling any mineral excavation in the mine or on ancillary mining land in order to comply with the terms of any planning permission granted on an application or deemed to be granted under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt III (as amended), is to be carried out after the date of the approval of that scheme; (2) where appropriate, the stripping and storage of the subsoil and topsoil; (3) the restoration and aftercare of the site: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 21 para A.3. 16 For these purposes, 'mast' means a radio mast or a radio tower: ibid Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.4 (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

17 For the meaning of references to the height of a building see PARA 266 note 7 ante.

18 Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.2(4)(b) (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

19 For these purposes, 'owner' means any person who is the estate owner in respect of the fee simple, or who is entitled to a tenancy granted or extended for a term of years certain of which not less than seven years remain unexpired: ibid Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.4 (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

20 For these purposes, 'tenant' means the tenant of an agricultural holding any part of which is comprised in the land to which the application relates: ibid Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.4 (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

21 For these purposes, 'developer's notice' means a notice signed and dated by or on behalf of the developer and containing (1) the name of the developer; (2) the address or location of the proposed development; (3) a description of the proposed development (including its siting and appearance and the height of any mast); (4) a statement that the developer will apply to the local planning authority for a determination as to whether the prior approval of the authority will be required to the siting and appearance of the development; (5) the name and address of the local planning authority to which the application will be made; (6) a statement that the application will be available for public inspection at the offices of the local planning authority during usual office hours; (7) a statement that any person who wishes to make representations about the siting and appearance of the proposed development may do so in writing to the local planning authority; (8) the date by which any such representations should be received by the local planning authority, being a date not less than 14 days from the date of the notice; and (9) the address to which such representations should be made: ibid Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.4 (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

23 For the meaning of 'aerodrome' see PARA 258 note 12 ante.

24 As to the Civil Aviation Authority see AIR LAW vol 2 (2008) PARA 50 et seq.

25 For these purposes, 'aerodrome operator' means the person for the time being having the management of an aerodrome or, in relation to a particular aerodrome, the management of that aerodrome: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.4 (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

26 Ibid Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(2) (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

27 Ibid Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(3) (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

28 As to the required fee see PARA 465 post.

29 Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(4) (as substituted: see note 5 supra). The evidence referred to in the text is evidence: (1) where Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(1) (as so substituted) applies (see head (3)(a) in the text), evidence that the requirements of Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(1) (as so substituted) have been satisfied; and (2) where Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(2) (as so substituted) applies (see head (3)(b) in the text), by evidence that the Civil Aviation Authority, the Secretary of State for Defence or the aerodrome operator, as the case may be, has been notified of the proposal: Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(4)(b), (c) (as so substituted).

30 Subject to ibid Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(7)(c), (d) (as substituted) (see note 33 heads (3)-(4) infra), upon receipt of the application the local planning authority must, for development plan in force in the area in which the category set out in the Town and Country Planning (General Development Procedure) Order 1995, SI 1995/419, art 10, Table (as amended) (see PARA 475 post), consult the authority or person mentioned in relation to that category, except where (1) the local planning authority is the authority so mentioned; or (2) the authority or person so mentioned has advised the local planning authority that it does not wish to be consulted, and must give the consultees at least 14 days within which to comment: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(5)(a) (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

31 See ibid Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(5)(b)-(d) (as substituted: see note 5 supra). In the case of development which does not accord with the provisions of the development plan in force in the area in which the land to which the application relates is situated or which would affect a right of way to which the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 Pt III (ss 53-66) (as amended) (public rights of way: see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 591 et seq) applies, upon receipt of the application the local planning authority must give notice of the proposed development, in the appropriate form set out in the Town and Country Planning (General Development Procedure) Order 1995, SI 1995/419, Sch 3 (as amended), (1) by site display in at least one place on or near the land to which the application relates for not less than 21 days; and (2) by local advertisement: Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(5)(b) (as so substituted). In the case of development which does not fall within Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(5)(b) (as so substituted) but which involves development carried out on a site having an area of one hectare or more, the local planning authority must give notice of the proposed development, in such appropriate form, (a) by site display in at least one place on or near the land to which the application relates for not less than 21 days or by serving notice on any adjoining owner or occupier; and (b) by local advertisement: Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(5)(c) (as so substituted). In the case of development which does not fall within either of those provisions, the local planning authority must give notice of the proposed development, in such appropriate form, (i) by site display in at least one place on or near the land to which the application relates for not less than 21 days; or (ii) by serving the notice on any adjoining owner or occupier: Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(5)(d) (as so substituted). For these purposes, 'by local advertisement' means by publication of the notice in a newspaper circulating in the locality in which the land to which the application relates is situated; and 'by site display' means by the posting of the notice by firm affixture to some object, sited and displayed in such a way as to be easily visible and legible by members of the public: Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.4 (as so substituted).

32 Ibid Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(6) (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

33 Ibid Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(7) (as substituted: see note 5 supra). The events referred to in the text are: (1) the receipt by the applicant from the local planning authority of a written notice of its determination that such prior approval is not required; (2) where the local planning authority gives the applicant written notice that such prior approval is required, the giving of that approval to the applicant, in writing, within a period of 56 days beginning with the date on which it received his application; (3) where the local planning authority gives the applicant written notice that such prior approval is required, the expiry of a period of 56 days beginning with the date on which the local planning authority received his application without the local planning authority notifying the applicant, in writing, that such approval is given or refused; or (4) the expiry of a period of 56 days beginning with the date on which the local planning authority received the application without the local planning authority notifying the applicant, in writing, of its determination as to whether such prior approval is required: Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(7)(a)-(d) (as so substituted). A failure by the local planning authority to reach a decision within the 56-day period is not necessarily unreasonable: see eg R (on the application of Richards) v South Bucks District Council [2004] EWHC 2145 (Admin), [2004] All ER (D) 156 (Sep). Where prior approval for the installation of a mobile telephone mast is refused but notification to that effect is served on the developer outside the 56-day period mentioned in head (3) supra, the developer is not in breach of planning control if it installs the mast: see R (on the application of Nunn) v First Secretary of State [2005] EWCA Civ 101, [2005] 2 All ER 987, (2005) Times, 23 February. An inspector subsequently appointed to determine an appeal against enforcement notices served by the local planning authority in the belief that such a breach has taken place has no jurisdiction to consider objections to the siting of the mast: R (on the application of Nunn) v First Secretary of State supra.

As to the consideration of alternative sites see Phillips v First Secretary of State [2003] EWHC 2415 (Admin), [2003] All ER (D) 362 (Oct); St Leger-Davey v First Secretary of State [2004] EWCA Civ 1612, [2005] 2 P & CR 86, [2004] All ER (D) 08 (Dec); and as to the extent to which local concerns about possible health risks can be taken into account see T-Mobile (UK) Ltd v First Secretary of State [2004] EWHC 1713 (Admin), (2004) Times, 8 July, [2004] All ER (D) 253 (Jun); affd [2004] EWCA Civ 1763, (2004) Times, 16 November, [2004] All ER (D) 208 (Nov).

34 Ibid as mentioned in the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(7)(b) (as substituted): see note 33 head (2) supra.

35 Ibid Sch 2 Pt 24 para A.3(8) (as substituted: see note 5 supra). For a case where enforcement action was upheld when the finished structure was higher than indicated in the details supplied see Wandsworth London Borough Council v First Secretary of State [2003] EWHC 622 (Admin), [2004] 1 P & CR 507, [2003] All ER (D) 280 (Jan).
